COAL CODE PEACE AT HAND

Today

Apple Annie's Party.

Wet, Says Vermont.

War With No Men Visible.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE REPRESENTATIVE of our State Department in Cuba observes more and more the influence of "reds" in Cuban affairs. Others, perhaps better acquainted with Cuba, find much dissatisfaction with government and business conditions, but no unusual indication of Communistic activity.

However, there are American citizens in Cuba to be thought of, and also many millions of American dollars invested there, so Uncle Sam is interested.

Late yesterday it was announced that while President Roosevelt would resort to intervention in Cuba only as a last resort, for the protection of Americans and their interests, the "spread of disorders through the island" made immediate precautionary steps necessary.

The Secretary of the Navy was sent to Cuba by the President on the battleship Indianapolis accompanied by other ships. All fighting ships on the Atlantic Coast and twelve hundred Marines were ordered to hold themselves in readiness.

WHEN ANYTHING like a revolution happens, in Manchukuo, Hitler's new Germany, Cuba, or elsewhere, everybody is "so surprised." Bertrand Russell, philosophical Englishman, reminds you that the history of the western world has been a long series of revolutions.

"In the sixteenth century, Luther and the Reformation; in the seventeenth, the Puritans, who abolished bishops and cut off the king's head; in the eighteenth, the American and French revolutions, plus Wesley's in religion. In the nineteenth century, revolutions everywhere. As for this century, so far it has been nothing but one long convulsion."

IT WAS also an important revolution when our ancestors stopped running around on foot to ride on tame buffaloes, a greater revolution when they invented two round disks, held together by an axle, and rode on wheels. Other revolutions came with steam, electricity, automobiles and aviation.

And at this moment, the United States, with NRA, is trying the biggest revolution in the history of modern government, the government itself taking over responsibility for industry, wages, hours, prosperity and employment.

Nothing more revolutionary has happened since Louis the Eleventh in France absorbed in himself and the monarchy the powers that had been exercised by the great feudal lords.

AN OLD lady in New York, called Apple Annie, because she sells apples and is very poor, taken in hand as part of a moving picture advertising plan, is told that she is to have "one glorious day." Apple Annie has had it.

They bought her a fashionable dress and a hat that came down over one eye. She could not see too well with two, being past seventy.

The "svelte" young lady, in whose charge she was put, had Annie's hands manicured, her hair waved, took her to lunch at the MOST fashionable restaurant, and ordered the most fashionable food. They took Apple Annie all over town, to see, be seen, and help the advertising idea.

WHEN THE old London bus man had his yearly holiday, and really wanted to enjoy himself, he climbed up beside another bus driver to drive back and forth all day over his own route, delighted with freedom from responsibility.

Something like that might have suited Apple Annie better, for instance, a present of fifty dollars, a comfortable seat and comfortable day's gossip next to some other busy apple lady. But there would have been no advertising in that.

VERMONT, FOR nearly fifty years one of the most earnest prohibition states, now votes two to one against prohibition in the Constitution. Vermonters apparently think that the beauties of constitutional prohibition are not great enough to offset the crime wave and kidnaping epidemic financed by bootlegging.

Twenty-five states have voted against prohibition, none in favor of it. That which this column, guessing inaccurately, thought could not happen, apparently will happen, thirty-six states voting to abolish prohibition and bring back the strong as well as the light drinks.

THE FRENCH, carrying out army maneuvers on the frontier, have only 13,000 men engaged, instead of the former gigantic marching armies, and operate with not a single soldier visible, except swift motorcycle riders and automobile drivers.

The rifle and bayonet are discarded. Fighting men travel hidden inside swiftly moving, steel-armored "tanks," that roll over ditches and hills at fifty miles an hour, no infantry, no cavalry.

The object is swiftest possible transportation from point to point, cannon and machine guns mounted on the steel tanks, airplanes guiding, spying and informing.

That is the new war: The United States will probably hear about it sometime in the year two thousand and thirty-three, or sooner, in case we are attacked.

7, He's Assessed As a Voter in Fifth Ward

JAMES PUGH, JR. . . ONE OF FIFTH WARD CHILDREN ASSESSED

State Troopers Here To Guard Polls as Citizens Register

As a precaution against fraud, the Pittsburgh Registration Board took possession of registration books in 25 districts at the conclusion of the morning period of registration today. The districts were mostly in the Second and Third wards.

State police sent here by Gov. Pinchot, accompanied by county investigators, went to the various polling places with letters from the Registration Board demanding the books when the polls closed at 11 a. m.

BOOKS GUARDED

The books were taken to the offices of the Registration Board for safe keeping until 5 p. m., when the polls will reopen until 11 p. m.

Other details of state police and county detectives were assigned to see that all polling places closed at the specified time.

Leo Riordan, chief county investigator, disclosed that attempts had been made in several instances to assess children eight and nine years old in the Fifth Ward.

The names and addresses of several children were used by persons seeking to register fraudulently, Riordan stated. He said the attempt had failed through alertness of his investigators.

City NRA Parade Set For 15th

Pittsburgh will celebrate the success of the President's recovery move with an NRA Victory Day parade the evening of September 15.

It will be the largest marching demonstration since the original Armistice Day parade, according to plans announced today by Frank C. Harper, general secretary of the NRA campaign committee.

If efforts are successful in getting Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson here for the day, the parade will be climaxed by a mass meeting in Forbes Field.

HARPER TELLS PURPOSE

Its purpose, as given by Harper, is:

"To mark the success of the drive to get Pittsburgh employes under the Blue Eagle and demonstrate the overwhelming extent to which the public is backing up the government's recovery program."

Thousands of men and women who have gone back to work as a result of the Blue Eagle's drive will have a place of honor in the line of march. Labor will send a vast representation from all lines of work, according to Mayor John S. Herron, who also is honorary chairman of the local NRA committee.

INVITE MANY GROUPS

Every veterans organization and patriotic group in the county will be invited to participate, according to Harper. Industry's co-operation has been assured and the larger employers will be called upon for floats symbolic of the march of the Blue Eagle.

Martial air will be lent by two reserve regiments of artillery and the National Guard signal corps, Boy Scouts and drum and bugle corps.

The line of march will be between Fifth Avenue High School and Stockton avenue, North Side. In the event of a mass meeting, the parade will start from North Side.

U. S. RUSHES MORE SHIPS TO CUBA

Marines to Be Landed At First Threat To Americans

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—With the dispatch of 16 destroyers, bringing to 30 the armada of American war vessels to border Cuba, the American government stood ready to land Marines and Blue Jackets on the first genuine threat to American citizens.

At the same time, there was resolution against the momentus step of taking over the island's government by armed intervention.

Already the psychological effect of American fighting vessels in sight of the coast was seen as aiding in holding the lid on the cauldron which Cuba has become.

ORDERS GUARDED

Orders in the hands of the commanders of the destroyers, cruisers and the one big battleship either en route to Cuban waters or already there were guarded closely, but it was understood the administration would not hesitate a moment in putting armed men ashore to guard Americans and their property.

For such a course there was ample precedent. On several occasions in the last two decades small American forces have been lnaded when sudden revolt flared and Americans on their sugar properties or in their homes were placed in jeopardy.

In each instance they were withdrawn promptly when matters had settled down. Action of this type, prompt and definite though it might be, is regarded here as nothing like armed intervention in which thousands of marines or soldiers are massed

ROOSEVELT TO RULE ON OPEN SHOP

Union Drops Demand For Checkoff; NRA Drafting Terms

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Hugh S. Johnson announced today that as a result of the conference with President Roosevelt last night, bituminous coal operators and the United Mine Workers have "cleared up their points of disagreement" on phrasing of labor clauses in the contract being framed for the industry.

In a prepared statement, the NRA executive went on to say that the hitherto contesting parties are proceeding "to negotiations of details with what, I am informed, are excellent prospects of success."

The principal point which had been before the operators and miners was phraseology of a clause by which, despite the claims of preponderant organization of the bituminous coal fields by the United Mine Workers, opportunity of employment would be left open to non-members of this union.

LABOR CLAUSE

Such a clause was considered necessary because the industrial control laws guarantee of a free right of workers to organize is construed by the administration as barring the "closed shop" in which only members of a certain union would be given work. The phrasing finally decided upon by the operators and miners was not announced by Johnson.

Both operators and union officials expected President Roosevelt to issue a statement on their open shop controversy. It developed that they had agreed to omit any reference to the open or closed shop in the contract, and to accept the President's interpretation in place of the open shop clause the operators had proposed and the miners rejected.

The union has given up its demand for deduction of union dues from miners' wages, as far as the Tppalachian contracts go.

LEWIS SATISFIED

Operators expected the President to say that the contracts would not be binding on miners who did not join the union. John L. Lewis, president of the United

UNTERMYER IN MELLON SUIT

Samuel Untermyer, internationally known lawyer, will enter the income tax suit involving over $5,000,000 against W. L. Mellon and five associate officers of the Gulf Oil Corporation, it was announced in Federal Court today.

The New Yorker, according to Attorney Morris L. Marcus, will lead counsel for Albert R. Knight, of Lansdowne, Pa., suing in his own and the government's behalf to get back income taxes which he alleged the Gulf officials evaded from 1926 to 1930.

In the event of a verdict for Knight, he would get half the money returned to the government.

Marcus made the announcement before Judge R. M. Gibson in asking that a hearing on demurrers, filed by Mellon's counsel, be postponed to give Untermyer time to study the case. Judge Gibson postponed the hearing to September 18. It had been slated for September 12.

Attorney L. E. Hickman, representing Mellon, argued against the postponement. Demurrers will be heard the same day in the suit of David A. Olson, of Washington, against Mellon alone.

Child Listed On Vote Rolls

James Pugh, Jr., aged 7, of 2446 Wadsworth street, grinned today when told his name had appeared on the county assessment books as a prospective voter.

He had jokingly boasted to his mother the other day:

"I'll vote the next time like daddy."

Jimmy wouldn't have voted, of course, but some adult who had used Jimmy's name likely would have cast a fraudulent ballot at the primaries, had it not been for a county investigator.

The name of James Pugh, Jr., was transmitted by the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes to the County Investigators after someone, unidentified, had sought to be assessed for voting purposes, giving Jimmy's name and address. The investigators checked the name, as they do all persons seeking assessment and discovered the fraud. The name was stricken from the lists. Jimmy attends St. Agnes school. His father, an unemployed truck driver and his mother were astonished to learn someone had tried to be an election cheater by using Jimmy's name.

FORBES FIELD, Sept. 7.—The New York Giants enjoyed a flag advantage over the Pirates of six and one-half games this afternoon as they clashed with the Buccos in the fourth game of their stirring series. Heinie Meine was on the slab for the Oaklanders. Manager Terry, of the Giants, gave Roy Parmelee, fast-ball recruit, the slab assignment.

Several thousand women and girls saw the contest as guests of the home management. It was the regular weekly ladies' day, but the guests were assigned the new stands in rightfield instead of their customary places. The series will close tomorrow with a single game.

Boy Makes Adventure Of Auto Injury, Help

Stowe Township police said today good intentions and youthful imagination were a confusing mixture.

Frank Artinger, 16, of Shang Hollow road, returned home last night, they said, and informed his parents he had been struck by an automobile. The driver, he said, drove him to a lonely street, bought bandages and antiseptic, dressed an injured foot, gave him 50 cents and sent him home. Frank took the license number of the car.

Today Stowe Township police arrested Charles W. Mathen, 38, of Bower Hill road, Mt. Lebanon. They said Mathen admitted his machine had struck the boy but denied driving anywhere to escape attention.

The "lonely street," he told police, was one on which a doctor's office was located. The doctor being out, police said, Mathen dressed the boy's injury and sent him home.

Mathen was charged with reckless driving.

CLOSED BANKS TO TAKE BONDS

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7. — Closed banks in Pennsylvania today had orders from Dr. William D. Gordon, state secretary of banking, to accept bonds of the Federal Home Owners' Loan Corporation in exchange for mortgages.

Dr. Gordon, in announcing the order, issued to all deputy secretaries in charge of closed banks, said acceptance of the home owners' bonds would speed reopening of the institutions since it would permit conversion of their frozen holdings into fluid assets.

The state secretary ordered the deputies to co-operate with home owners desirous of making the exchange.

First Registration Day for City

Today Pittsburgh voters have their first opportunity to register and obtain the right to vote in the primaries and in the regular election in November.

Registrars will be at the polling places of each voting district from 8 to 11 a. m. and from 5 to 11 p. m., daylight saving time.

To register, a voter must:

Present a county tax receipt issued since November 7, 1931.

Enroll as a member of some political party.

At the primary a voter may vote only for candidates for nomination by the party in which he is enrolled.

At the November election he may vote for the nominees of any party, regardless of his enrollment.

Big Manhunt For Officer's Slayers Set

A modern manhunt in which every weapon of police power will be employed was being organized today by representatives of state, county and city police.

The hunt is designed to bring to justice the murderers of Highway Patrolman Herbert P. Brantlinger, shot to death last week near Bridgeville by two men in an automobile, whom he was questioning.

The meeting this afternoon was held in District Attorney Andrew T. Park's office. Attending were Highway Patrol Supt. Philip Dorr, four state police captains, County Detective Chief George W. Murren, Supt. Franklin T. McQuaide, of the city police, and City Detective Inspector Frank R. Boyd. Sitting with them was Assistant District Attorney Roy T. Clunk.

Following a morning conference in McQuaide's office, which he called a "critique," all clues were threshed out, and orders given to police to exert every effort to find trace of the murderer's car.

Johnson's Own Firm Held NRA Violator

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Eric Ross, labor union official, charges violations of the NRA at the local Lea Fabrics, Inc., factory, of which Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, is president, in telegrams sent to President Roosevelt and Gen. Johnson.

Ross, secretary and treasurer of the International Carpet Works' Union, said the Lea firm has cut the working week of its employes from 48 to 40 hours without increasing their hourly wage.

2 Roosevelt Families Refuse to Pose

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Members of the two Roosevelt families—those of the late President Theodore Roosevelt and those of the President, Franklin D. Roosevelt—met today at the docking of the liner Manhattan, and declined to pose together for pictures.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was agreeable, but the suggestion, made by newspaper photographers, was vetoed by Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Sr., widow of the dead President.

When asked if she and the members of her family would pose with their cousins, Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt said:

"I'll be glad to but you had better ask them about it."

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Sr., when asked if she were agreeable, said:

"Oh, we've posed enough already. Please don't ask us to pose again."

The request was not pressed and the group pictures were not taken.

Members of the two families did mingle together, however, and their greetings did not appear to be strained or over-formal. If any of them realized the implications in the dowager Mrs. Roosevelt's declination of a group photograph, they did not show it.

The meeting of the two families was occasioned by the fact that Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., son of the dead President; his wife and his daughter, Grace, and Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., returned from Europe on the Manhattan.

PITTSBURGH'S FLOOD CONTROL PLAN READY FOR ICKES

FEDERAL WORK CHIEF TO GET PROGRAM

Unemployment Relief Project Up to Government

By JOHN P. COWAN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Pittsburgh's gigantic flood control project, which would eliminate serious inundations in the Allegheny, Monongahela and upper Ohio valleys and provide employment in volume estimated at 21,000 man-years, is ready for submission to the Emergency Public Works Administration.

With the completion of the engineering conclusions and recommendations by Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of the Corps of United States Engineers, which will be submitted late today or tomorrow to Harold L. Ickes, public works administrator, this comprehensive plan for flood prevention offers the government opportunity for an important stroke to relieve unemployment and render timely aid to navigation.

PITTSBURGH PLAN

The system proposed by the Flood Commission of Pittsburgh has been recommended by federal engineers. The report by Maj. W. D. Styer, United States district engineer at Pittsburgh, approved by his superior officers, states that the project is feasible from engineering and economic standpoints and constitutes the best program that could be devised at the present time.

Maj. Styer eliminates from the list of reservoirs one which he had previously proposed in the middle fork of the Monongahela. The eight unit system, as it now stands, comprises reservoirs at French Creek, Allegheny, Tionesta, Red Bank, Crooked Creek, Loyalhanna, in the Allegheny River basin, and Tygart River and West Fork in the Monongahela basin.

The total cost of the eight-unit system, including capitalized allowances for operation, maintenance, depreciation and amortization will be $51,433,000, while the capitalized benefits will be $59,251,800.

UNITED FRONT

A united front in behalf of the work is presented through the activities of the Tri-State Authority, recently organized in Pittsburgh, and composed of representative men in Western Pennsylvania, Northern West Virginia and Eastern Ohio.

Among the engineers' conclusions are:

"The system proposed by the Flood Commission of Pittsburgh appears to be best for consideration at the present time.

"The project is feasible from an engineering standpoint, and there is no indication that any unusual difficulties are to be encountered.

Respecting the specific plan of the Flood Commission's plan, the report states:

"A comparison of costs and capitalized benefits indicates the reduced system (Pittsburgh Flood Commission proposal) to be economic by about $7,800,000. Increased development within the flood zone and increased property values may be expected in the future to make the margin of economy for this reservoir system even greater."

CONSTRUCTION REPORT

The report then gives the time required for construction and the number of men required on each reservoir as follows:

Reservoir	Construction Time	Number Men Required
French Creek	2.5 years	900
Allegheny	3 years	1,700
Tionesta	2 years	800
Red Bank	3 years	900
Crooked Creek	2 years	600
Loyalhanna	2 years	600
Tygart River	3 years	2,000
West Fork	1.5 years	700

Letters to the public works administrator point out that, in addition to the great number of men who would be employed directly on the project, it would create an immense amount of labor in producing the various materials required. The details of the costs and benefits are summarized as follows:

TOTAL COST

Capitalized operation and maintenance	2,400,000
Capitalized depreciation and amortization	720,000
Total cost	$51,433,000

SUMMARY OF BENEFITS

Flood Relief	$50,000,000
Navigation	7,981,800
Water Supply	1,020,000
Hydroelectric Power	250,000

REGISTRATION BOOKS SEIZED

Former Magistrate Charles F. Papalo, who came out for McNair for mayor on the Democratic ticket after being fired by the Coyne-Herron organization, at Democratic headquarters for the Twelfth Ward received these figures:

The books of the Sixth District, Twelfth Ward, impounded by the Registration Board, however, showed a registration of 95 Republicans and 45 Democrats.

Other figures shown by the books were:

G. O. P. 'SURPRISE'

The Republican City Committee sprung a last-minute surprise by placing two watchers in all districts except those of the Thirteenth Ward, home of Mayor John S. Herron, candidate for the Republican nomination for Mayor.

The committee obtained certificates for 784 watchers from the County Commissioners last night.

Today Harry Workmaster, a member of the County Board for Assessment and Revision of Taxes, obtained 100 watchers' certificates in the name of the Square Deal party.

Use of watchers on registration day, while permissible under the law, is said to be without precedent here. Attorney B. Robert Averbach, representing the Republican city organization backing the Coyne-Herron slate, telephoned to the Registration Board to protest the attitude of registration boards in the First Ward.

These boards, Averbach complained, had demanded birth certificates of Chinese who were willing to testify they were of legal age. The board informed Averbach the registrars, in so ruling, were within their rights.

Two strangers were reported challenging voters in the First District, First Ward, in the basement of the City-County Building. They were ordered away by county investigators.

TROOPERS MASSED

Seven state troopers in command of Sergt. E. T. Cohee, of the Greensburg barracks, arrived soon after registration started and reported to Chairman John K. Morrow, of the Registration Board. Thirty-two uniformed county police and 25 county detectives also were on duty.

Sergt. Cohee, Chairman Morrow and Capt. William Rucker, of the county police, toured the Hill district, while 10 county cars filled with county police and investigators cruised the various wards during the day.

Today was the first of three registration days on which citizens of Pittsburgh who have been assessed and paid a state or county tax may qualify to vote in the primary election, September 19, at which a Mayor, five members of Council, and important county officers are to be nominated.

The other days are September 12 and 16. Polls are open from 8 a. m. to 11 a. m., and from 5 to 11 p. m

Democratic leaders are relying on the popularity of President Roosevelt and the NRA to increase materially the enrollment of citizens in the Democratic column.

Chairman Morrow of the Registration Board announced that David Lawrence would be removed during the afternoon recess as a member of the board in the First District, First Ward. Morrow said he had investigated complaints that Lawrence had been convicted on liquor charges and found this to be true. The Lawrence involved is not the collector of internal revenue.

M'Ardle Friend Charges Vote Board Aids Mackrell

R. Harry Henne, of 24 Alpine street, a supporter of Councilman P. J. McArdle for Mayor, today charged he had been ousted from the Registration Board of the First District, Twenty-fifth Ward, because he refused to switch to Joseph N. Mackrell.

Henne asserted that a man in a county car came to his home at 11 o'clock last night and asked that he surrender his certificate of appointment as a registrar issued August 15. He refused and reported for duty this morning at the district polling place, the fire engine house in Arch street. The chairman refused to swear him in and substituted another man appointed yesterday, Henne said.

MORROW'S EXCUSE

Henne said he called John K. Morrow, chairman of the Board of Registration Commissioners, by telephone. Morrow told him, Henne said that complaints had been made against him but refused to specify what the complaints were, or grant him a hearing. Henne added:

"Last week I accompanied a Mr. Griffith, who said he is in charge of registrars in the Twenty-fifth Ward, to a Mackrell meeting in the Clayton school. After the meeting Griffith asked me to go along with Mackrell. He told me:

"'I helped get you your job as a registrar. You ought to go along for Mackrell'."

STANDS BY FRIENDS

"I told him to let me think it over a few days. I decided not to desert my friends and hung up some more placards, 'McArdle for Mayor,' in the windows of my home. That's why they fired me as a registrar. Morrow and the county organization are all for Mackrell."

Asked concerning the discharge of Henne, Morrow said:

"We had never intended to appoint Mr. Henne in the first place. When we found out our mistake we put another man in his place. There was no politics connected with the change."

Dry Leader Asks U. S. to Guard Polls

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Dr. William Sheafe Chase, superintendent of the International Reform Federation, today sent a letter to Attorney General Cummings asking for 'as many responsible dry inspectors" of polling places in repeal elections "as the state law provides inspectors to protect advocates of repeal."

Roosevelt Maps Liquor Control Plan

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Satisfied repeal is certain before the year is out, President Roosevelt yesterday had his advisers working on a federal plan of liquor control for submission to Congress.

The entry of Vermont into the "wet" column, making the twenty-fifth state, convinced administration officials it is all over but the shouting.

The final states to complete repeal will vote on November 7, with the conventions in December.

President Roosevelt has two distinct interests in the situation. He is anxious for the additional revenue which repeal will bring into the federal treasury, easing the burden on other tax sources, and he is determined to replace the outworn federal statutes on liquor control.

Some believe the four-year law for "bottled in bond" liquor should be reduced to two years.

The President also wants to tighten up the law so as to help those states which intend to remain dry.

Michigan, Wisconsin, Rhode Island, Wyoming, New Jersey, Nevada, Delaware, Indiana, Massachusetts, New York, Illinois, Iowa, Connecticut, New Hampshire, California, West Virginia, Arkansas, Oregon, Alabama, Arizona, Tennessee, Missouri, Texas, Washington and Vermont.

States voting next week are:

POWER TRUST SPEAKER 'SOFT PEDALS' TALK

Goodnough Eliminates Complaints From 'Prepared Copy'

By WILLIAM PFARR
Staff Correspondent.

BEDFORD SPRINGS, Pa., Sept. 7.—Having exposed one cheek to Gov. Pinchot, the Power Trust today quickly recuperated and turned the other one to President Roosevelt's resigned brain-truster, Raymond Moley.

Gov. Pinchot wasn't here himself to chastize the Pennsylvania Electric Association, in convention, but his good friend and appointee, C. Jay Goodnough, chairman of the Public Service Commission, was.

Goodnough proved himself a master of rhetoric. He asked several pertinent questions, but his own answers were less clear. And from the prepared copies of his speech he eliminated two punchy points:

(1)—Quotations favoring public ownership of utilities and (2) the revelation that the Public Service Commission was receiving from 40 to 50 letters daily complaining of rates, billings, service, and this and that."

NOT SO RETICENT

Not so reticent was young P. H. Powers, vice president of the West Penn Power Company and president of this group, in his criticism of President Roosevelt.

He charged:

"We find the federal government launching into what appears to be a multi-million dollars program of competition with us and using our money for the purpose. We find municipalities being encouraged to spend public funds in duplication or replacement of our service. Additional tax rates are being placed upon us at a rate which begins to appear confiscatory. Things just don't make sense. Our single ray of hope lies in the fact that the public likes our service and our sales are picking up."

After Goodnough's speech, Powers, punning, announced that he was "good enough for us."

Tonight Moley speaks. His resignation as an assistant secretary of state is also effective today. This is his first opportunity to speak as a comparatively private individual, and everybody's wondering whether it'll be fireworks or "good-enough."

GOODNOUGH'S VIEWS

Goodnough, citing figures to show that rates hadn't come down as much as the cost of living, hinted in 200 words in answer to the last question was no—no, that is, if you read between the lines.

The chairman of the Public Service Commission had nothing but praise for kilowatt hours as such. He saw them "going into the mansion of the rich and cottage of the poor."

Car Workers Elect Parley Committee

Employes of the Pressed Steel Car Company, McKees Rocks, members of the Steel and Metal Workers' Industrial Union, were to ballot from 1 to 6 p. m. today on election of a workers' committee to negotiate with officials of the company.

An official of the NRA, in Pittsburgh yesterday, assured John Meldon, national secretary of the union, that the voting would be free from interference by the company, Meldon said. He declared labor troubles at the plant had drawn the attention of government officials.

LAMSON FACES NEW TEST IN TUB TRIAL

College Man Resumes Stand in Death Accusation

SAN JOSE, Cal., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Still exposed to the fire of prosecution questions, David A. Lamson was under call to continue his testimony today in his trial on charges of murdering his attractive wife, Allene, with a length of iron pipe.

Overcome once by emotion on the stand yesterday as he told of finding the nude body of his wife in the blood spattered bathroom of their Stanford University campus home last May 30, Lamson regained and held his composure while state's attorneys blasted away at his professions of innocence.

Repeatedly Deputy District Attorney Allan P. Lindsay called upon him to tell what happened in the bathroom and what went on just before and immediately after the tragedy became known. Thrice he related his version of what took place when he found the body, but many times his answer to specific questions was "I don't remember."

BLOOD ON CLOTHING

The clothes that Lamson wore the night before the tragedy were brought out by the prosecutor. Lamson had testified he had hung them in the bathroom several hours before the tragedy. Lindsay pointed to a blood spot on them and asked Lamson to explain it. The defendant said he could not tell how the spot got there. Here he told a detailed story of finding his wife's unclothed body in the blood-splotched bathroom. At this point he wept, but soon recovered his composure.

Lindsay asked Lamson what he did when he went into the bathroom and saw his wife's body. He answered:

"I lifted up Allene, under the arms."

"Then what happened?"

"My impressions at that time were a little hazy. I remember she slipped and went entirely into the tub."

"What did you do?"

FAILS TO LIFT HER

"Tried to lift her, and couldn't."

"How much do you weigh?"

"About 180 pounds."

"How much did Allene weigh?"

PARK WAITS BAR PROBE AUDIT

District Attorney Andrew T. Park announced today he would prosecute charges that bills of the County Bar Association's Inquiry Committee had been padded, if they were sustained by an audit now in progress.

Main & Co. is checking the accounts of Donald C. Anderson, secretary of the committee, Park said.

Leo Riordan, special investigator, charged before the County Commissioners the committee's bills for expenses were $2,500 in excess of the amount spent.

M'DIVANI ROUGH, MAE CHARGES

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—A new list of incidents to support her divorce charges that Prince M'Divani treated her cruelly, has been filed in Superior Court by Mae Murray, film actress.

Once, she related, M'Divani threw her to the floor of the Embassy Club in Hollywood with such force she was knocked unconscious. When she recovered, she said, the Georgian prince told her to "stop making a long face over nothing—you know you are not hurt."

BANK GUARANTY PLAN UPHELD

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—More than $1,000,000,000 will be returned to the banks as a result of the deposit guarantee clause of the 1933 banking act, Comptroller of the Currency J. F. T. O'Connor told the American Bankers Association today.

The convention attacked the clause yesterday as a "radical departure" and passed a resolution demanding its postponement.

In a stout defense of the guarantee clause, O'Connor asserted it will obviate the necessity for the postal savings system, banish the fear of bank runs and permit a modification of cash reserves and greater credit extensions.

He explained there would be no discrimination against the smaller banks and the clause was not for the purpose of "freezing them out," as some critics have charged.

WILEY POST CITY GUEST

Wiley Post, who flew around the world in seven days—the only man to do it alone—sat Winnie Mae, his favorite ship, down in the Municipal airport today.

And that meant a party.

Met by city and county officials, Aero Club officials and oil company representatives, Post made a brief address to the 100 or more gathered, and then started to do the town.

Led by siren-blowing motorcycle police, Post and his procession drove to the office of Mayor John S. Herron, where he was officially welcomed. Then he slipped over to the Chamber of Commerce to make an address at a luncheon of business men. And then to the Giants-Pirate ball game at Forbes Field.

Post today is the guest of officials of the Socony-Vacuum Oil Company and his host is W. D. Sherman, general manager.

GOVERNMENT TEST

If a government capable of protecting life and property—including the billion of American investments — is established by the Cuban people, nothing hinting of intervention will be invoked.

Eight Navy and eight Coast Guard destroyers were ordered today from off the east coast to Cuba. In addition, the Indianapolis was beaing Secretary Swanson there, and last night the Destroyer Overton was sent from the Panama Canal zone to the Isle of Pines off the South Cuban coast to protect American lives there, if necessary. Many wealthy Americans have winter residences on the Isle of Pines.

Havana Radicals Rally Against Americans

International News Service.

HAVANA, Sept. 7.—A manifesto calling upon all "comrades" to "join in a movement against Yankee imperialism" was issued by the left wing of the Student Party here today as the United States strengthened its forces in Cuban waters.

A mass meeting of all revolutionary groups of workmen and country people was scheduled to be held in Central Park late today.

Spurred to action by President Roosevelt's rapid moves of the past few hours, Cuba's new revolutionary junta struggled to restore governmental order and to check outbursts of mob fury against Americans.

The presence of American warships in Cuban waters served to make the junta leaders move cautiously and also influenced rebellious working groups to be calmer.

UNIVERSITY TO OPEN

After a prolonged session the revolutionary leaders announced that on October first the University of Havana would be reopened, and that certain officers of the army would be officially restored to their posts.

The university has been closed intermittently in the last two years of the regime of ex-President Gerardo Machado. All army officers were relieved of their duties and placed under technical arest when the present junta took the governmental helm following the "revolt of the sergeants," early Tuesday morning.

The junta took pains to announce the tranquility of the entire republic, a statement made in the face of frequent reports of disorders, particularly in the provinces, fomented by dissatisfied labor elements said to be influenced by communist propagandists.

AMERICAN TERRORIZED

The entire American colony and the 200 or more American tourists here showed particular interest in the terrorization of Mathew Molanphy, American head of the United Fruit Company in Havana, and his family, by radical members of the A B C, political group, and by angry stevedores.

Only the threat of Capt. Willmott, of the Ward liner Morro Castle, that he would call American Marines to his aid within five minutes turned the mob back as it attempted to remove Molanphy and his family from the liner, where they had sought refuge.

The mob, said to be antagonistic toward Molanphy because of his attitude during a recent dock strike arbitration, retreated hurriedly when an emissary from the American embassy arrived to warn them the calling of the Marines would provoke intervention by the United States.

COL. HERSHMAN'S DAUGHTER DIVORCES YOUNG HUSBAND

KIDNAP THREAT MADE AGAINST ORPHAN

Wife of Rich Man Who Planned Adoption Also Periled

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Threats to kidnap Mrs. Jean Strengs, wife of a wealthy Paterson mill owner, as well as Peter Christopholus, the 14-year-old orphan whom the Strengs family befriended, were made by extortionists who sought $50,000 as their price for "protection," Acting Deputy Chief Eugene Heller said today.

Letters postmarked at Newark directed Strengs to meet the plotters here on successive Saturday afternoons. Though Newark and Paterson police set a trap the extortionists failed to appear.

The first of the letters was received by Strengs shortly after the Christopholus boy came from an Omaha orphanage to live with the Strengs family, who thought they might adopt him, eight weeks ago. The letter warned that unless Strengs paid $50,000 to the writer, the boy would be kidnaped. A second letter, a few days later, threatened the safety of Mrs. Strengs and the third contained instructions for a meeting in front of Newark City Hall.

All the letters were in the same handwriting.

TRAP FAILS

While Strengs paced the sidewalk in front of city hall late on the afternoon of August 19, 12 detectives from Paterson and Newark watched from concealment. A well-dressed man approached Strengs and asked for the price of a meal. He was seized by the police, but, under questioning, proved to be an authentic panhandler. He was given a meal and released.

Again on Saturday, August 26, Strengs waited at the corner of Broad and Market streets, carrying a purse containing newspaper clippings and wrapped in green paper, but the writer of the letters failed to appear.

Postoffice authorities have joined police in the search for the extortionists.

Strengs has been unreachable since news of the plot became known and since the "trial adoption" of Peter failed. Peter is now back in Father Flanagan's orphanage at Omaha, Neb., whence he emerged for a few brief weeks to attempt to fill the role of Streng's son, Henry, who drowned last year.

But Peter, although bearing a resemblance to Henry, was unlike him in other respects, the Strengs decided. They found him "haughty and arrogant" and unappreciative of the possibilities his removal from an orphanage to the affluent home of his would-be foster-parents offered. So Peter, puzzled and a bit hurt, was returned.

$1.10 FARM SALE RIOT HOLDS 6 FOR COURT

Deputy Sheriff Tells Story of Hanging Threat by Mob

After a deputy sheriff testified his life had been threatened when he attempted to conduct a sale on a Patton Township farm, six men, accused of being active at the sale, were held for court on charges of inciting to riot by Alderman Thomas M. Geary today.

In addition, all thed efendants waived a hearing on charges of obstructing a legal process. Bail was set at $500 each on the riot charges, and B. V. Coffey, chief deputy sheriff, said he was satisfied to release the men on their own recognizance on the latter charge.

THREAT CHARGE

In describing the attitude of the crowd at the sale, B. L. Schugar, deputy sheriff, said:

"A belt with a noose was exhibited, and someone in the crowd pointed to the limbs of a tree and asked me to pick out the one I wanted."

The men were arrested when they came to the Sheriff's office to get a bill of sale for the property which had been sold by Schugar for $1.10.

They are Samuel Jessop, Cyrus Ecker and Norman Brown, of Turtle Creek; William Druska and B. H. McDonald, of Homestead, and Robert E. McAllister, of Wilkins Township.

All denied making any threats or hearing any at the sale. Under cross-examination by Attorney B. Robert Averbach of the Sheriff's office, they said they were members of the Unemployed Council.

FORCED SALE

Schugar said he went to the farm of Annie McGregor, 70, in Patton Township to sell stock, farm implements and other goods of a tenant, Abraham Omar, who owed her a bill of $1,327.

When he arrived at the farm, he said a crowd of 1,500 to 2,000 people suddenly appeared from the house, barn and from behind other buildings. He said:

"It was just like a ball game leaving out—a doubleheader."

The crowd shouted, according to Schugar, and insisted that he proceed with the sale. Ecker started the bidding with a dollar, and the bidding stopped when $1.10 was bid by McAllister, Schugar said.

SIX ARRESTED

Schugar declared he was compelled to give a receipt, and that he told McAllister he must come to the Sheriff's office to get a bill of sale. The six came in and were arrested.

Ecker said he heard about the sale and decided to go buy the property for $1 and "give it back." The stock included a herd of 23 cows.

County detectives are searching for another man who, according to Schugar, made a speech in which he declared the crowd were "modern minute men" who would do things like they have been done out West.

HOMESTEAD HIT BY NEW BLAST

An early morning explosion rocked the Homestead district, routing residents from their beds and resulting in numerous calls to newspapers.

The blast was said to have been caused by an exploding cinder at the plant of the Homestead Steel Works. No one was injured.

Although members of the steel company's police force characterized it as a minor explosion caused by an "exploding cinder," the force of the explosion was heard within a radius of several miles.

An explosion which shook the Homestead district yesterday was caused when a red hot "skull" touched water in the skull cracking department, according to officials of the Homestead Works, Carnegie Steel Co. Steam blew pieces of the "skull"—the discarded clay and brick shell lining an open hearth steel ladle—70 feet in the air, but no one was injured.

VETS DECLARE WAR ON VOTE THIEVERY

Night-riding of election thieves must end or war veterans will "ride" also and if they catch the night-riders will "handle them."

Election thieves if caught red-handed will not be left to the attention of "laggard public officials," but will be dealt with summarily by veterans.

These two threats, sharp and direct, were rapped out last night in North Side Carnegie Hall by L. W. Rittenhouse, county chairman of the United American Veterans' Association, who at the same time denounced "Boss Coyne."

Rittenhouse's ultimatum was greeted by shouts of approval from the veterans, 1,500 of whom crowded the auditorium, with other hundreds forming an overflow meeting.

Primarily the meeting was in the interest of the mayoralty candidacy of Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, who has been indorsed by the veterans, and who spoke in denunciation of the rule of Republican bosses whom he said until now had succeeded in preventing the soldiers getting what was due them.

Mackrell was roundly applauded when he urged old age pensions which he said had been defeated in the last Legislature with the assistance of Senator James J. Coyne. Mackrell said:

"He's against me, and I'm against him. That shows where we stand."

ECONOMISTS BOOED

Verbal shots at the National Economy League brought boos for that organization, especially when County Controller Robert G. Woodside named A. Rex Flinn, leader of the Economy League, as head of the Booth & Flinn Construction Company, which he charged had attempted to impose on the taxpayers by endeavoring to skimp work on the Ohio River boulevard and pick up $25,000.

Woodside declared he had compelled Flinn to meet specifications under the contract..

TEST FOR VETS

Mackrell, Woodside, Rittenhouse, Max Henley, chairman of the citizens' committee of the veterans, and practically every speaker declared that political solidarity of the veterans was meeting its first test in this municipal campaign. They asserted this campaign is being watched throughout the country by political leaders anxious to know whether the soldiers on public issues can be counted as a unit.

Nearly every speaker indorsed the state soldiers' bonus to be voted on in November, and attacked the cuts being made in federal veteran allocations.

There were loud boos when Mackrell said:

"Nor do I have any sympathy with another city official who resigned from the American Legion because the ideals and principles of that organization were not to his liking."

RAP AT DENNY

The mayoralty candidate was referring to Safety Director Harmar D. Denny, who is a member of the National Economy League, and whose appointment was resented by the veterans' association.

Candidate after candidate urged the veterans to go actively into politics as an organization, and Woodside said:

"The National Economy League claims 23,000 members. It got them because employers coerced their employes, some of them your buddies, but they are members who are in sympathy with you rather than with the effort of the league to prevent you getting your just rewards."

Edward Townsend, candidate for City Council, declared Councilman W. Y. English was boasting of reducing taxes, though he was away while it was done, and was paid, Townsend said, "for the seven months he was gone."

OTHER ENTRANTS TALK

James F. Malone, who Henley said would lead the councilmanic ticket; Joseph Stack and William Wright were indorsed councilmanic candidates who also spoke.

Robert Cochrane for sheriff, Raymond D. Evans for Common Pleas Court, Coroner W. J. McGregor, Judge Benjamin Lencher and John J. McGrath for County Court, Charles G. Lane, Jr., for Juvenile Court and Donald D. Mangone for jury commissioner were other candidates indorsed by the veterans, who made short speeches.

A parade preceded the meeting and a veterans' band roused enthusiasm prior to the speaking.

A threatened attempt by some veterans to heckel candidates evaporated without a murmur.

Two Voting Places Shifted From Club

Polling places have been moved out of two clubs on orders by Judges Sylvester J. Snee and Elder W. Marshall. That of the the Second District, Nineteenth Ward, was changed from the Snookum Club to a garage at 1731 Rutledge street.

The Thirteenth District poll of the Eighteenth Ward was changed from the Montooth Republican Club to Hudson Hall, rear of 143 Freeland street.

DUGGAN LAUDS RIVER PROJECT

Frank L. Duggan, Council candidate, at a headquarters meeting today of regular Republicans, contended the proposed riverfront improvement plan is the product of planning by the city government and private citizens interested in the betterment of the city. Opponents, he said, claim the project is a federal affair, and that administration Council candidates are trying to claim credit. Duggan said:

"The riverfront improvement plan is the result of years of activity by public spirited citizens, all having the co-operation of the present members of the city government. Since the enactment of the National Recovery Act, and by reason of the fact that it is not the desire of your city officials to unduly burden city taxpayers, it has been proposed to the National Recovery Board that this work is a federal project in that it affects not only Pittsburgh but the entire Ohio River basin.

"We were able to submit complete plans and work can begin immediately if the project is approved."

WASTE CHARGED BY CANDIDATE

Present members of Council were denounced as "incompetent" in a statement issued today by William H. McClafferty, councilmanic candidate.

He charged Council with spending money fast and furiously and piling up an ever-growing load of unnecessary taxes. He said:

"The iniquity of such a gross carnival of wanton waste has reached a point where confiscation seems to be the only penalty."

He also blamed Council for driving industries from the city.

Candidate Cites Army, Labor Record

J. W. Collins cited his life as laborer and soldier as qualifications for his candidacy for sheriff in a statement today. He said he had worked in Pennsylvania mines and mills and as a railroad fireman, and had served in the Army in the United States and in Cuba, China and the Philippines.

He promised a non-partisan, sympathetic and honest administration.

WADDELL HITS 'MEEK' COUNCIL

A plea for the inauguration of constructive measures in Council was made by Robert N. Waddell, Independent Republican candidate for Council, in an address at Knoxville Junior High School last night.

Waddell charged the present group of councilmanic candidates seeking re-election with "yes man" tactics, saying measures were handed down from the top of the organization for Council's "rubber stamp." He said:

"These men cannot serve the people when they must wait for orders and when they cannot act independently. The records show that on their own they have initiated little or no measures for the good of the people."

HENRY ATTACKS POLICE ABUSE

The only goal an honest Pittsburgh fireman or policeman can have is the day when he can retire to the country and meditate on the lack of meaning of democracy, John M. Henry, candidate for Democratic mayoralty nomination, said in an address last night.

Tracing the career of the average fireman or policeman before an audience in Prospect School, Mt. Washington, Henry said the only qualification for promotion was getting votes.

Henry, C. G. Lewellyn, former collector of internal revenue, and Leo Guthrie, candidate for Jury Commissioner, will speak at Brookline School, Woodbourne avenue, tonight at 8:30.

Henry will also address a meeting of the Disabled American Veterans at 839 Ridge avenue at 10 p. m.

LEAGUE QUERIES CANDIDATES ON 'STAND'

Quesionnaires have been sent to candidates for Mayor, City Council and Poor Director by the Western Pennsylvania branch of the National Economy League, asking views on a number of problems whic hthe league thinks important. The questions follow:

To candidates for Mayor and Council:

Will you do all within your power to reduce the municipal budget for the next fiscal year? By approximately how much? Principally in what departments?

Will you recommend to Council (Council candidates are asked "Will you vote for") a scientific, independent, outside audit of all departments of city government for the purpose of making possible a standardization of salaries on the basis of comparable positions in other organizations and the elimination of all unnecessary jobs, as well as disclosing other opportunities for economy?

Will you recommend to Council (Council candidates are asked "Will you vote for") the abolition of the office of City Sealer of Weights and Measures, in view of the fact that a duplicate service is now performed by state and county departments?

Will you support legislation to bring about a single assessment for city, county and school taxes, by one body?

Will you support legislation to provide a centralized collection of all city, county and school taxes, by one office?

Will you support legislation to bring about a consolidation of the Poor Board of Allegheny County and the Welfare Department of the City of Pittsburgh, so that all public distribution of relief may be through one channel, with consequent economies of administration, record keeping and purchasing?

To candidates for Director of the Poor:

Will you favor placing the employes of the Board of Poor Directors under the control—as to compensation—of the salary board of Allegheny County, in the belief that this will result in economy and in standardization of compensation as between departments?

Will you support legislation to bring about a consolidation of the Poor Board of Allegheny County and the Welfare Department of the City of Pittsburgh, so that all public distribution of relief may be through one channel, with consequent economies of administration, record keeping and purchasing?

Fireman Watches Gong, Weds In Station

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—Fireman Frank L. Esperance kept his eye on the alarm gong—but not in the hope it would send him racing to a fire.

On the contrary, he was deathly afraid it would ring, for he was being married in the fire house to Miss Catharine Wallace. Wedding bells were the order, however, and the fire gong kept silent.

PROFITS SAVE RACKETS, SAYS M'ARDLE

Official connivance with vice and attempts to confuse the election by injection of outside issues were attacked by P. J. McArdle, Independent Republican candidate for mayor, in two addresses last night.

In a radio speech, McArdle said:

"The present conditions of wholesale law violation could not continue without the co-operation of one or many public officials whose sworn duty it is to suppress such activities.

"Although a huge amount is required to run the Department of Public Safety, it has failed to curb the rackets that operate throughout Pittsburgh. They are tolerated because of rich profits."

McArdle promised unrelenting war on the racketeer if elected.

In an address at Overbrook Junior High School he urged voters to keep in mind that the election involved grave issues for the city in which state and outside considerations had no direct bearing.

"Decent government," he said, was the principle at stake.

Lewin Quits League, Supports Herron

Asserting a few members of the Citizens' League took it upon themselves to select candidates not up to his standard, Dr. A. L. Lewin, Board of Education member, announced his resignation from the league in an address last night.

Dr. Lewin urged the election of Mayor John S. Herron and candidates on his ticket. He said:

"We frequently isolate a candidate because he has or has not certain backing. I think the candidate I have decided to support stands on his own feet, and will meet every requirement."

Dr. Lewin praised Mayor Herron as the leading spirit in tax reduction, saying his past record inspired implicit confidence.

South Side Man Hurls 'Traitor' Charge at Kane

Representative John J. Kane, councilmanic candidate on the Democratic ticket headed by William N. McNair, was labeled "turncoat and trator" in an address by John O'Neil, South Side political leader, last night.

Speaking at Prospect School, Mt. Washington, O'Neil said:

"When Dave Lawrence was working with the Coyne gang last election to defeat him, Kane was only too glad to get the help of the very men he is now vilifying.

"Why the sudden change of friendship? It looks as if Kane has been taken over by the Coyne gang.

"They hammer Coyne at their meetings, but it is only a smoke screen to pull through a second choice candidate for the Coyne machine to win if Jack Herron loses.

"Kane has developed into a traitor and turncoat to the people who helped elect him."

Attacking Kane as chief mudslinger for the Guffey-Lawrence candidate, O'Neil ridiculed his charges against John M. Henry, candidate for Democratic mayoralty nomination.

Henry's job as special counsel investigating election thievery under the County Commissioners did not make him a "Republican payroller," O'Neil said, as it was service to all the people.

The charge that Henry stole McNair's speeches was silly, O'Neil said, commenting that McNair had never had any thunder to spare.

He added that Kane should be the last man to challenge anyone's party loyalty as he had previously stated he was "Socialist, Republican, or any old party that came along."

M'NAIR OFFERS DEMOCRATS AID TO REGISTER

An offer of every legal assistance to Democrats hampered in their rights to register today and September 12 and 16, was made last night by William N. McNair, candidate for Democratic mayoralty nomination.

A committee of attorneys will be on hand at Democratic headquarters, Magee Building, Fourth avenue, in anticipation of possible efforts to block changes from Republican to Democratic columns, of refusal to honor tax receipts, or other illegal restraints of voters' prerogatives, McNair said.

The attorneys, McNair said, will carry complaints without charge to the proper authorities.

Available until the registration booths close, the attorneys will be prepared Friday, McNair explained, to take appeals of protested decisions to the registration commissioners.

If the commissioners refuse to act, he said, complaints will be taken to Common Pleas Court. In event of forcible restraint of registration or of refusal to permit proper transfers to the Democratic books, petitions will be taken to Common Pleas Court at once, he declared, and an effort will be made to obtain decision on all petitions immediately.

In announcing the committee, McNair said:

"The history of the Republican party in Pennsylvania and Pittsburgh has been punctuated for years by election fraud, by violence and restraint.

"We are not going to allow the rights of any citizen to be abrogated if we can prevent it. It is the sacred and constitutional right of every voter to cast his ballot for candidates of whatever party he chooses."

NON-PARTISAN BENCH URGED

Judge Benjamin Lencher, candidate for County Court, last night asked war veterans to use their influence for passage of the old non-partisan judiciary law, repealed some years ago by the Legislature.

Speaking at the meeting of the United American War Veterans in North Side Carnegie Hall, Judge Lencher said:

"Justice cannot brook partisanship.

"The war veterans of our county, composed of members of all parties, can render no greater peace-time service than to help in the elimination of narrow, blind, unthinking partisanship as a recommendation for any public office in general, and for the bench in particular."

ERIE, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Harvey M. Willis is making a bedside political campaign for reelection as county controller.

Confined to a hospital room with two broken ribs and a leg injury, resulting from an automobile accident, Willis ordered a telephone installed. He intends making a personal appeal for votes from now until the primaries.

FACTIONAL RIFT HIT BY MALONE

James F. Malone, candidate for Council, in an address last night said he had withdrawn as a Republican mayoralty candidate to avert a factional division of anti-administration strength, and regretted his example was not followed to an extent which would have permitted a clear-cut issue "between the political organization in power and the people who do not agree with them."

Malone spoke of the desirability of public improvements, which he said he favored when money was available. However, he said, the people of Pittsburgh for some time will not be in a positin to spend large sums of public money. He stressed his past experience in City Council as a reason for his election.

As an economy measure Malone advocated consolidation of the city and county treasuries, with the abolition of delinquent tax offices in both. He also favored a single board of assessors and the consolidation of the city and county departments of welfare.

GREY DIES, LED BRITAIN INTO WORLD WAR

LONDON, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Viscount Grey of Fallodon who, as Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign secretary, gave Germany the ultimatium plunging Great Britain into the World War, died today at the age of 71.

He virtually retired from public life in 1916 because of failing eyesight and had been seriously ill for more than a week. Death came to him at 6:05 a. m. at Fallodon, his beautiful home on the Northumbrian coast.

David Lloyd George, whose memoirs, published by coincidence on the eve of Viscount Grey's death, contained a sharp attack on the former foreign secretary in connection with the outbreak of the World War, was obviously distressed today when informed of the passing of his one-time colleague.

LLOYD GEORGE SAD

With a voice full of emotion the former Prime Minister and Secretary of War from his home in Wales, said:

"It is sad to be told of the death of an old colleague. We were members of the same government and sat at the same council table for more than 11 years.

"We had our disagreements in opinion and he and I gave free expression of them. But I have nothing now but grief at the death of one with whom I worked so many years in complete personal harmony."

Lloyd George in the first volume of his war memoirs said millions killed in the great war need not have met death, for the conflict should have ended in 1916 and the Allied strategy in France in the earlier stages was a "sanguinary mistake."

He criticized the British War Office repeatedly for "mental obtuseness" and a "pitiable lack of initiative."

As foreign secretary for the 11 years from 1905 to 1916, Viscount Grey was fated to play a leading role in the destinies of Europe. He never wavered in his stand on behalf of Belgium after exhausting every effort to avert the war.

ENVOY TO U. S.

The United States became acquainted with him during a five-month period in 1919-1920 when he was the temporary British ambassador to Washington, but President Wilson's battle with the Senate and his own poor health conspired to place him in the background.

He had been unconscious for nearly 70 hours. He could take no food.

A sister, Mrs. Coetlogon, and her daughter maintained a constant watch during his last hours.

The exact nature of his illness was not announced, but is believed to have resulted from high blood pressure.

A little less remarkable than his fame as a statesman was his prominence as a friend of birds and animals. It was said he won the trust of the most timid creatures. Squirrels, robins, ducks and wild fowl would perch on his shoulders or near him as he walked through the garden to the favorite spot where he fed them.

GIRLS PICKETING CAN PLANT

Picketing of the Enterprise Can Company plant, McKees Rocks, by 300 striking employes, 200 of them girls, began this morning. The workers walked out yesterday noon, demanding higher wages.

It is expected an employes' committee, headed by Peter Darkoch and Gabriel Jedinak, strike leaders, will attempt to meet with officials today. They will report the result of their conference at a general meeting of the striking workers late today.

The male minimum wage is 25 cents for 10 hours work, and the girls receive only 23 cents, according to the workers. The superintendent of the company, Walter McGhee refused to discuss the strike yesterday. He said:

"I don't know why the men are striking; we are paying the 1929 scale."

FOUR MACKRELL RALLIES SET

Joseph N. Mackrell, anti-Coyne candidate for mayor, and other Progressive Republican candidates are scheduled to speak tonight at a mass meeting in John Morrow School, Davis avenue. Chairman Samuel J. Grenet will be in charge.

Later they will speak at Brashear School, Eleanor street; Lee School, Los Angeles avenue, and Carrick High School, Parkfield street.

The Twenty-seventh Ward Italian American Club at a special meeting last night unanimously indorsed Mackrell's candidacy.

Polish-American citizens of the Seventeenth Ward, South Side, last night formed the Polish-American Mackrell for Mayor Club.

Farley Jr. Leans Toward G. O. P., Dad Fears

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 7—(AP.)—James A. Farley, Jr., 6-year-old son of the Postmaster General, is already causing his father some concern as to his fidelity to the Democratic party.

Mayor Harry Bacharach had obtained three dolls for three Farley children on visit here with their parents, thinking all of them to be girls.

Young James, of course, would not have a doll, so he was permitted to choose something else from a toy shop. He selected an elephant.

His father said:

"You're a fine Democrat!"

WARSHIPS SENT TO RED SEA

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—The destroyers Duncan, Diamond and Delight left here suddenly today supposedly for the Red Sea.

It was believed that a tense situation has arisen in the neighborhood of the Red Sea, where King Ibn Saud was said to be making preparations for a possible outbreak of hostilities with Imam Yahya of the Yemen, a state in Southwest Arabia.

Difficulties apparently have arisen over frontier lines between the two countries.

Bears Separated After Polars Kill Blacks

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Three young black bears, which in the last 10 months have seen three of their fellows drowned by powerful polar bears occupying the same cage at the Washington Park zoo, today occupied quarters of their own, thus bringing to an end one part of a mixed animal experiment.

Meanwhile, the Milwaukee Park Board delayed a hearing upon demands for the ouster of the zoo director, Edmund C. Heller.

Heller has not entirely abandoned his mixed animal experiment, for a couple of wolves were caged with the black bears. Three wolves were permitted to remain with the polar bears.

TRAFFIC MEN TO MEET

Traffic representatives of Pittsburgh railroads, air lines, trucking lines, waterways, and industrial transportation units will meet for the first fall meeting of the Traffic and Transportation Association in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium tomorrow at 8:15 p. m.

The association plans to hold study class meetings monthly when traffic problems peculiar to Pittsburgh will be discussed. Officers of the association include: President, W. B. Sheppard, assistant general traffic manager, Aluminum Company of America; vice president, Frank J. Ryan, general agent of the D. T. and I. R. R., and social chairman, S. E. Francy, traffic representative of the L. and N. Railway.

Rag Picker's Visit Bares $65 Cache In Old Coat

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Sept. 7.—T. L. Torpey, 37, Centerville, was $65 richer today—thanks to the visit of a rag dealer at his home.

Approached by the collector, Torpey went to the attic and got an old coat which had hung there for 1½ years. As he carried the coat downstairs, a wallet dropped from the inside pocket. Torpey let it lay and went out to deal with the rag man.

He refused an offer of 10 cents for the coat and carried it back into the house. Then he thought of the wallet. In it he found three $20 bills and a $5 gold piece.

45,000 ATTEND MASS BY POPE

International News Service.

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 7.—Pope Pius XI descended to St. Peter's Cathedral today for a mass before 45,000 persons, including many thousands from abroad.

The event was celebrated with unusual enthusiasm and was climaxed when the Pope, at the end of the mass, rose on the gestatoria chair and blessed the crowd.

The pontiff was so moved at the cheering of the worshipers as they waved their handkerchiefs that he did something he never had done before under such circumstances. He waved his own handkerchief in return.

STRIKE KEEPS SCHOOL CLOSED

SCRANTON, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—State officials striving to end the strike of Old Forge School teachers, who refused to start the school year until a part of their overdue salaries is paid, are confronted with a threatened spread of the movement.

Dr. James N. Rule, state superintendent of public instruction, planned to visit Old Forge today in an effort to open the schools from which 4,000 youngsters had to be sent home yesterday for lack of teachers.

In advance, he sent L. B. Stayer, of the Bureau of School Administration and Finance, to the borough to study the district's budget. The 115 teachers involved have not been paid for six months.

Fine "White" Badger Trims Women's Smart Black Coats

Badger with a clear, white undertone, with an intriguing depth, and with long guard hairs that give the imaginative effect of a waving grain field—that is superior badger that comes from Northwest Canada, noted for its beauty and long-wearing quality. And that is the kind we have chosen for these handsome coats, using it in lavish manner.

We have followed all the way through with superiority, by having the coats made of a fabric from the famous house of Forstmann—a new semi-rough crepe weave, which harmonizes perfectly with the character of the fur. Note the youthfully slender lines of the coat, and the new sleeves with fullness low-placed to eliminate exaggerated shoulder width. Sizes 34 to 42.

'BUTTONS' GIVES SURPRISES TO ELEVEN

"Buttons," the Sun-Telegraph pageboy, had a great day yesterday. His trip through Pittsburgh was one thrill after another. Every home he "paged" was given the surprise of a lifetime. Just as if he was dropping out of a clear sky, he smilingly stepped up to the front door of 11 residences or apartments and "paged" one person in each house.

"Buttons"

For instance, Fred J. Grater, 3323 Delaware place, North Side, didn't dream that anybody was going to call at his home and hand him $5 in cash. But that's just what happened. "Buttons," in the complete uniform of a page boy, simply asked, "Are you Frederick J. Grater?" With the affirmative reply "Buttons" handed Mr. Grater a $5 bill. Of course, Mr. Grater hopes he will be "paged" every day—but they say that lightning seldom strikes twice in the same place. Yet Mr. Grater will be watching for him.

Then "Buttons" went on his way—paging, paging, and paging! He "paged" 10 other residents of Pittsburgh and presented each of them with a $1 bill. You will find this list in the Classified Ad page in the Sun-Telegraph today.

In the meantime "Buttons," the Sun-Telegraph pageboy, was out again today on the same mission—giving away money. And he is going out for the same purpose every day.

As he goes out in his natty uniform every morning he doesn't know where he is going—he just goes out and "pages" Pittsburghers at random. He may call at your home today. He may call tomorrow. You can't tell when "Buttons" will ring your door bell—he doesn't know himself. Watch for him!

P. O. EMPLOYES PROMISED AID

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 7.—(A.P.)—Representative Clyde Kelly, of Pittsburgh, in a speech here deplored the practice of allowing Post Office employes to work long hours at reduced pay while America is endeavoring to perfect an industrial recovery program under wholly opposite conditions. He addressed the twenty-ninth annual convention of the National Letter Carriers' Association.

Kelly, a member of the Postoffice Affairs Committee of the House, assured delegates of his intention to do what he could to better the conditions of letter carriers.

He took exception to the theory that the postoffice must be operated for profit. Service, not money-making, he said, is the principal purpose. The deficit, he declared, is the result of a decrease in business.

ROOSEVELT TO INTERPRET 'OPEN SHOP' CLAUSE IN COAL CODE

Mine Workers, was understood to be satisfied in view of his contention that the region was practically 100 per cent unionized.

Johnson said yesterday that any "closed shop" contract would be drawn in violation of the Recovery Act—the operators' contention—and that Lewis did not ask for a closed shop contract anyway. On the other hand the miners firmly opposed any open shop wording in the contracts.

Both miners and operators met this morning and were to continue their joint conferences on details of the contracts later today.

Recovery officials worked at full speed on the industry's code which they expected to have ready to hand the operators later in the day. Johnson said the operators would be given until 6 o'clock tomorrow night to file objections. After those were considered, he said, he probably would send the code to the President for approval Saturday.

'CAPTIVE' MINES IN

Companies owned by steel interests—the so-called "captive" companies—have taken no part in either the code or contract negotiations. The code will apply to them as well as to the commercial producers. Lewis said he expects to write contracts with the "captive" companies as soon as the commercial contracts are completed.

The operators, whose differences both among themselves and with their labor, led to submission of 30 different codes, will be given until 6 p. m. tomorrow to file objections to Johnson's draft. Those will be considered carefully. Amendments will be made if Johnson deems such necessary. Then the code will go to the White House for President Roosevelt's signature.

CODE BY SATURDAY

Johnson said that his "best guess" was that the code would be ready for the President on Saturday.

That forecast followed an agreement between a committee of Appalachian operators with representatives of the United Mine Workers of America on disputed points in their labor contracts. The agreement was reached last night at a conference with President Roosevelt at the White House. It was subject to ratification today by the operators the committee represented.

While neither side would disclose the exact terms of the agreement, it was understood the union had given up its previous demand for deduction of union dues from miners' pay and that both sides had approved a clause which would permit nonunion as well as union miners to be employed.

Johnson considered the differences between the union and the Appalachian operators, who long have opposed unionization of their mines, the "nubbin" of all the controversies which have surrounded drafting the code.

PRICE-FIXING

Most of the remaining operators already work with union contracts. Those have been filed as minimum wage scales. Their differences with other groups largely have concerned administrative provisions and methods of price-fixing.

Alabama and Western Kentucky operators, on the other hand, have opposed inroads of the union as bitterly as the Appalachian group. They have sought some means of keeping the union from embracing their labor. They also have asked for wage differentials considerably larger than the 5 cents an hour awarded the Southern Appalachian producers. That differential was based on a $4.60 a day scale for the North.

Johnson has given no intimation of the terms of the code he will propose.

It has been said, however, that the administration would suggest establishment of a code authority for administrative purposes and of a national labor arbitration system. Among "unfair practices" understood to be banned was selling coal below cost of production.

40-HOUR WEEK

Appalachian operators won their fight for a 40-hour week. During the next six months, a federal agency will investigate working hours with a view to determining whether they could be reduced in the interest of increasing employment.

Miners and operators were summoned to the White House when they were unable to break the deadlock which brought their contract conferences practically to a halt last Friday.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers; Philip Murray, vice president; Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer, and Van A. Bittner, West Virginia district president, represented the miners. J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company; R. E. Taggart, of the General Coal Company; Charles O'Neill, vice president of Peale, Peacock & Kerr, and James D. Francis, president of Appalachian Coals, Inc., represented the operators.

Coal men started conferences on codes even before the recovery act was passed. The first code of consequence to be submitted was offered by a group of northern union operators and the United Mine Workers. It called for a $5 day and a 36-hour week. While Northern and Southern Appalachian operators, thrown together in the common interest of holding the union to minimum strength, dickered on wages for their code, numerous outlying regions submitted agreements. The Appalachian code, when finally completed, called for a $3.84 day.

OPEN SHOP FIGHT

The Appalachian agreement also contained an open shop clause which immediately drew fire from the union, union operators, the Recovery Administration and President Roosevelt.

Last hour negotiations only apparently remained today after President Roosevelt's personal participation in the conference between operators and mine workers. Johnson said, as the parley broke up:

"We really got somewhere last night."

Johnson immediately began polishing up the code for presentation to the operators who will have until tomorrow evening to file objections. Bituminous coal was the last of the basic industries Johnson sought particularly for Blue Eagle membership.

Johnson said the "old open and closed shop problem" was one of the chief points of controversy in the prolonged coal discussions. He declined to elaborate further, but special significance was attached to a statement made by him regarding the automobile code provision that employers might hire, fire and promote on merit regardless of union affiliations. This had drawn organized labor's vigorous opposition. Johnson said:

"I am not going to allow this provision to go into any more codes. It is just a source of confusion, and while it is specific in stating that there was no intent to modify or qualify the statute, what has been done is to lift that language out and publicize it all over the country as though it did modify the act and that absolutely can't be done."

NRA officials said this automobile clause had been inserted in over a score of other recommended codes.

FRICK MINER'S HOME BOMBED

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 7.—The home of Louie Demacio, member of the United Mine Workers' committee at Grindstone, was wrecked by a bomb last night while Demacio was attending a union meeting in a nearby hall.

Witnesses said a shot from the direction of the town baseball diamond preceded the explosion. Afterward shots were fired from a nearby hill.

FORD-NRA PACT FORECAST

DETROIT, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—The absence of any outward indications of concern among Ford Motor Company executives over the NRA controversy is adding strength to a growing belief that some kind of an agreement is expected, to bring Henry Ford under the Blue Eagle's banner.

There was, however, no hint of a formal announcement of policy, and no certainty that one would be forthcoming when Ford returns, probably the last of the week, from his Huron Mountain camp, where he has remained in seclusion for three weeks.

Edsel Ford, president of the company, already was back from his vacation spent at Seal Harbor, Me., but his return developed nothing to clarify the situation.

A Ledge Can't Hold That Deer Or Henry Ford

—By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER—

Looks like the NRA short line will go ahead if we can keep the passengers from yanking on the bell rope.

Henry Ford raised wages eighty cents a day with 10,000 men on base.

That ain't seaweed. It's eight thousand of the very best dollars.

Mr. Ford and that deer both got off the ledge this week. And each in its own way. After the forest rangers built a bridge for the deer it slid down the cliff with its brakes locked.

This is a good week for changing your mind. Look what Vermont did after eighty years. Went bone dry in 1852, voted local option in 1902 and stepped off the wharf just this Tuesday.

No Vermont dry can claim he didn't get a fair trial. Eighty years is a fair shake and a long roll. From now on we wouldn't be surprised if Vermont dumped its maple syrup out at sea.

Railroads Study Increasing Jobs

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Immediate steps will be taken by operating officials of the eastern railroads to determine if more men can be employed by the carriers, or the work distributed more evenly, it was learned in transportation circles today.

The move comes as a result of the recent letter which Joseph B. Eastman, federal railroad co-ordinator, wrote to the heads of the eastern roads urging such action.

ALIEN STRIKERS PROTEST TO U.S.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—A protest against continuance of an alleged drive to round up and report foreign-born workers "because of their union and political affiliations and activities" was made to the Labor Department today by a committee for the protection of foreign-born of Detroit, Pittsburgh and New York.

D. C. Morgan, secretary of the New York committee, read a long complaint to Edward J. Shaughnessy, Assistant Immigration Commissioner, and Turner Battle, assistant to Secretary Perkins, charging immigration inspectors and Department of Justice agents were on hand at every strike to break them and were "terrorizing, persecuting and deporting foreign-born workers."

FIRM HERE GETS $1,350,000 IRON ORDER

An order for 13,350 tons of galvanized sheet iron for the erection of a locust barrier in the Argentine has been placed with the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company here, it was announced today.

The order represents approximately $1,350,000. About a third of the metal will be produced in the Vandergrift works of the company, and it was reported the mills there would be working full capacity for many weeks to come.

Other American sheet mills in Cambridge and Guernsey, O., will produce the remainder. The Guernsey works have been practically idle for months, it was said.

MILLIONS IN FIGHT

The order represents about a third of the millions being spent by Argentina for steel to combat the locust plague.

A similar order was placed with the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company in 1924. The order calls for 4,666,667 sheets, the majority of which must be shipped within 30 days.

When the locust is in the hopper stage (without wings) they are effectively destroyed by a line of galvanized breastworks across the direction of their advance. The locusts pile up at the barrier and are raked into traps where they are destroyed by fire or chemicals.

BARRIER IS PORTABLE

The barrier, 20 inches high, is portable, easily erected and rapidly transported.

The Argentine Republic "locust orders" are among the largest in the history of the galvanized sheet industry, according to officials of the local concern.

Girls Should Not Set Low Value on Themselves

He bawls her out, 'n' stands her up on dates.

He promises to phone her . . . and "forgets" to do it.

Yet he insists that he'll always love her, no matter how many times he lets her down!

Shall "Broken-Hearted Girl" believe him and continue to give him all her time?

Would you?

Dear Miss Robinson:

I read your column every day and I would like to put my problem before you.

For almost a year I have been keeping company with a young fellow. He is 22 and I am 19. He always tells me that he loves me. But by his actions I sometimes think he is only going with me for the sake of being able to say that he has a steady girl friend. I would like to have your opinion.

He argues with me often, over petty little things like telling me that I didn't speak to his mother when I saw her—which I am positive I did . . . but maybe she didn't hear me, because the day after I met her he called me on the phone and gave me a terrible bawling out. I felt terrible about it, but he wouldn't listen to anything I said. And several times he has promised to phone me at a certain time, but didn't do it. When I reproached him for not doing it he always said, "Oh, I fell asleep." Or "We had company at home, so I forgot it." Or "I was too busy," or some such excuse.

DISAPPOINTS HER

Several times he had to take his family somewhere out of town, and on Saturday night he told me he would be over Sunday night as soon as he got back. I stayed in all day Sunday and at about 8:30 Sunday night he phoned and said he had been home since 6, but had been "too tired to come over." I went to bed crying and feeling like a fool, because I knew it was a poor excuse. But when he saw me and I said something about it, he told me that he would always love me, no matter how much he teases me or disappoints me.

Please advise me, and tell me whether you really think he loves me, and whether I should continue to go with him or not. I know he is really the one I love, because I've gone out with all types of fellows and can tell the difference.

BROKEN-HEARTED GIRL.

So you think you're in love . . . and you want to know whether you should keep on going with him?

DEMAND CONSIDERATION

Well, of course, that's up to you, Sissy . . . but I'll say right now that you certainly are a glutton for punishment. And you're not only setting a mighty low value on yourself but you are encouraging him to do the same, when you let him get by with his present act. We establish our own rating in this world, little girl. If we mark ourselves down to thirty-three cents, people will treat us accordingly.

But maybe he loves you? Yes, maybe he does—next to himself. And it's a cinch you'll continue to take second place unless you give his selfishness and conceit a little competition.

So I'd advise you to tell him, straight from the shoulder, that if he wants you to believe he cares for you he'll have to prove it by treating you with some respect and consideration, and not by just empty talk.

And if you're really smart you'll stop sitting at home, waiting for him to choose to notice you. You'll get busy and find some regular friends and let him do the worrying.

But perhaps you'll lose him, that way? Perhaps you will . . . but believe me, youngster, losing him won't be half as tough as keeping him, with his present act!

THE PLAYERS WERE REAL FOLKS AND WON MANY FRIENDS

By FAY KING

Stock companies were once the joy of every city.

A stock company was a permanent cast of actors who appeared in a different play each week at the local theater. Admission was reasonable, and many engaged the same seats for the same performance of each week.

How popular these players were. Living among us as they did, we saw them shopping, dining or drinking about town. They were invited to homes and became friends as well as favorites.

Later some became famous stars, and what pride we took in their success.

The stock players spent their salaries in the cities where they played and lived. They became as fond of the city as the citizens became fond of them.

Stock companies were splendid!

Given in Marriage

A Sequel to Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Veritzen, Angry, Starts Search for Missing Letter

With a feeling that the success or failure of the wedding celebration depended upon my efforts of the next few minutes, I spoke hastily into the telephone, and I did not need artifice to make my tones excited and anxious.

"I don't understand you," I said. "I wrote you nearly a week ago, telling you of the day for the marriage and claiming the promise you made to attend. I have heard nothing in reply. You will perhaps understand that I did not wish to annoy you by appearing to be insistent, but—the wedding is only two days away, and I could not understand. I felt that I must call you. I hope you will forgive me."

"There is no question of forgiveness," he said. "You are perfectly justified in calling me. I wish you had done so before. Let me get to the bottom of this, Miss Brown, will you take some notes, please?"

He waited only an instant. I could visualize Miriam Brown in instant attendance, note book in hand. Then his crisp, incisive voice went on.

"When did you mail this letter?"

Fortunately, I was able to remember, day and hour.

"Mrs. Underwood put the letter into the post box outside the hotel with her own hands," I said. "We did not wish to entrust anything so important even to the extremely trustworthy boys at the hotel."

ORDERS INVESTIGATION

He repeated what I had said to Miss Brown, and then put another query.

"How was it addressed? Did you put 'personal' on it?"

"Yes, also the words 'urgent' and 'important.' It had my return address upon it, and before I gave it to Mrs. Underwood, I checked your address and my return address. When I received no answer, I spoke to her about it, and she told me that she also had checked address and stamps before she put it in the post box."

"H-m!" The monosyllable was significant, and then I waited again while he repeated my words to Miss Brown, and I heard a final injunction.

"Please take this up at once, and see what you can find out about it. If necessary, search every desk to see if it inadvertantly has been put upon the wrong desk and slipped down behind it. It is the only explanation that occurs to me, and it is inexcusable. The culprit must be found."

REPEATS INFORMATION

There was something in his voice that sent a little shiver down my spine, and I suddenly felt a pang of sympathy for Avis Arlen. I did not doubt in the least that she had abstracted the letter, and that no carelessness was involved. But if she had told the truth about her mother's loss of income, the discovery of her trick might well mean her dismissal. Even old friends did not interfere with Philip Veritzen's affairs without paying dearly for their folly.

Mr. Veritzen's voice came back to me, and now he appeared to be speaking with an effort.

"As the time is so short, I am afraid you will have to give me now the information you put into your letter," he said.

"Gladly," I returned. "The wedding is to be Saturday, at high noon at the farm. We are all counting on your presence."

"Are there to be many guests?"

"No, very few," I returned. "Dr. and Mrs. Braithwaite, Mary's uncle and aunt, are coming from the mountains, where he has been recovering from a serious breakdown; her two brothers are coming from school. Marion Morton and Carolyn Brixton are coming from their school, and Ronald Brixton, with Bob, will run down from Yale. Mr. and Mrs. Brixton will be here, and Maj. Grantland and Lee Chow. Oh! yes, and I think Miss Fairfax will be out. I think that completes the roster of those who will be present, except yourself and the people now living at the farm house."

"Too many," he said, more cavalierly than I ever had heard him speak. "But I suppose it cannot be helped. Tell them I'll be there Saturday morning. By the way, will it be convenient for me to bring Mrs. Arlen and her daughter with me? They would appreciate an invitation very much, I am sure."

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Bidding Against a Part-Score

When both sides are vulnerable and one side has a part-score of 70, an extremely critical situation faces the side with no part-score, particularly when the opponents have opened the auction. Exactly how to meet the situations which develop in the bidding requires the most careful thought, and there is no assurance that any step decided upon will prove effective.

Unusual defense against an adverse contract in such a situation has full justification, but the player, of course, must take into consideration that he is quite likely playing with fire and may be burned. That happens frequently. On the other hand, it occasionally occurs that a most extraordinary result comes from the application of unusual bidding to unusual situations, as for instance, in the hand below, which was played in Rochester, N. Y., where Mr. N. A. Gallagher held the South hand:

West, Dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

Part-score, East-West: 70.

	♠ 2 ♡ A 7 6 ◇ Q 9 8 2 ♣ Q J 6 3 2
♠ — ♡ 5 4 3 ◇ 7 6 4 3 ♣ 10 9 8 7 5 4	North West East South	♠ K J 10 8 4 3 ♡ Q J 9 ◇ A J ♣ A K
	♠ A Q 9 7 6 5 ♡ K 10 8 2 ◇ K 10 5 ♣ —

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
	Pass	Pass	1 ♠ (1)
2 ♠ (2)	Pass (3)	2 N T (4)	3 ♠ (5)
Double (6)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1.—A very fine hand which fully justifies the expectation that, granted normal distribution, the game and rubber are in the bag.

2.—South reasons that as North has failed to make an Opening bid, he is unlikely to get a satisfactory reply to a Takeout Double. He reasons further that East will be likely to read his Overcall in his bid suit as indicating either a void in spades or the singleton Ace, and will be encouraged to go on to his destruction. If this fails to work, South thinks that he has a reasonably safe escape into three spades, and he is willing to pay a small price to save an adverse game and rubber.

3—As the cards lie, the bid of three clubs would prove profitable as North and South could not reach a satisfactory contract.

4—North's bid of two notrump is not his best; he, too, should bid three clubs. But in the play it probably results very fortunately in encouraging East to continue his bidding, confirming East in his suspicion that South has a void in spades, in which case, if he has an entry or two in dummy, East reasons that he can lead through the adverse spade strength.

5—East fears that his opponents may reach a game somewhere and decides that South does not have strength in spades but exactly the reverse, so feels that his hand is worth another bid.

6—South feels that either one or both of his Kings is good for a trick, and that he should make four of his six trumps. He does not fear that his adversaries will reach a better contract, as the bidding is now, no doubt, too high.

The result was a penalty of 1,400 points for East on a hand which ordinarily would suggest the strong probability that the contract would be made.

TODAY'S QUESTION

What is the correct bidding on the following hands? North, Dealer (both vulnerable):

	♠ A Q 8 4 ♡ Q J 8 5 ◇ — ♣ A K J 6 3
♠ 7 6 ♡ A K 10 7 4 ◇ K J 8 5 ♣ 10 4	North West East South

North	South
1 ♣	1 ♡
2 ♠	3 ♡
7 ♡	Pass

North's raise to seven hearts is justified by the fact that South may hold the club Queen or spade King and, failing in this, the success of the contract will not depend upon more than one finesse.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Carelessness a Cause of Painful Foot Ills

It is not uncommon to see an individual walking on the street with a large part of his shoe cut out. Usually this is a sign that somebody is suffering from a common affliction of the big toe, known as "ingrown toenail."

Dr. Copeland

It is an extremely painful condition. Yet most persons continue to suffer and fail to get expert advice. They resort to home remedies, and the hole in the shoe is made in the hope that this will cure the disorder.

It is true that the pain is temporarily relieved, but the condition cannot be cured in this simple manner. Ingrown toenail, as its name implies, is the growth of the nail into the skin and soft tissues of the toe. Usually it can be traced to carelessness in cutting the toenail.

Once pus gathers underneath the nail, there is produced marked pain, as well as great discomfort in walking. This pain is more intense when walking or standing. At times it may be so severe as to prevent the sufferer from sleeping at night.

Before pus forms, the discomfort can often be relieved by a simple procedure. Press the flesh away from the edge of the nail and insert a small piece of absorbent cotton under the nail. It is best to moisten the cotton with a mild antiseptic.

A moist dressing, preferably of boric solution, should be applied every day. Cotton should be kept in place until the nail grows to the end of the toe. Then remove the cotton and trim the toenail smoothly and evenly.

When pus is present permanent cure can only be obtained by complete removal of the nail. This is a simple operation and can be performed in the doctor's office. It is done under local anesthesia and there is little pain and discomfort. In this operation the matrix, as well as the nail, is removed. The wound heals within 10 days and soon a new nail grows in place.

Answers to Health Queries

Miss B. Q.—Would an excessive dryness of the skin on the body indicate some fault in the diet? Would cod liver oil prove a corrective in this case? Bathing seems to aggravate the condition. I am under weight and have been all my life.

A.—Yes, it is possible that the diet may be a contributing factor, although this condition may be due to other causes as well. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Reduce

As Much as 1 Lb. a Day

OR NO COST!

No pills or tablets, no starvation diets, no strenuous exercising, no salts, no sweat baths.

All you need do is drink a cup of delightful Dain Tea, made from ten especially selected herbs, with your meals instead of the tea or coffee you are now drinking.

In taste, Dain Tea is like a fine Orange Pekoe. You can drink it hot or cold with sugar, cream, lemon or orange. Yet the simple drinking of this remarkable tea with satisfying eating should cause you to lose from 3 to 6 pounds of ugly, unhealthy fat a week.

Dain Tea not only enables you to lose weight but also makes you look and feel years younger. It is the safe, sane, sensible economical way to delightful slenderness.

Mrs. Frisch lost 30 pounds from one package. Mrs. Strain reduced four pounds the first week. Mrs. Marks, who was so dumpy that Size 42 dresses were tight on her, can now get into a Size 34 model.

Correct Manners

By CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Early Morning Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I am to be married soon and the wedding is to take place at 6 o'clock in the morning. I have never had the opportunity of attending an early morning wedding breakfast, so I don't know what is served. Will you please help me with a few suggestions?

2—I am not going to carry a bouquet and have been wondering if a shoulder corsage would be all right? The same for my bridesmaid? PEGGY.

1—For the wedding breakfast after such an early morning wedding, the breakfast should be really a breakfast, and not of the variety that we associate with a "wedding breakfast" which is more in the nature of a luncheon, after a wedding very much later in the morning.

That is, for the first course, you might have melon, a half or melon balls, or a half of grapefruit or orange, or grapefruit or orange juice, or tomato juice. Then for the main course, a creamed dish might interest you: creamed chicken, or creamed chicken and mushrooms, or creamed sweetbreads, alone or combination with chicken or mushrooms. Or broiled chicken, if you prefer, or patties, chicken, oyster, crab, mushrooms, or chicken and mushrooms. Hot rolls or hot biscuit or toast or toasted brioche. And with this course, hot coffee.

2—A shoulder corsage, both for you and for your bridesmaid, would be appropriate.

Husband's Orphan Sister

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband's only sister is to be married, and neither of her parents is living. How should her announcements of her wedding be worded? He is her only brother.

SISTER-IN-LAW.

The very finest form—and one that indicates a fine relationship between brother and sister-in-law and sister—is for the brother and his wife to make the announcement in their names. The term "their sister" is far better form than "Mr. Lawrence's sister." This is the form:

Mr. and Mrs. Robert
Noel Lawrence
have the honour of announcing the marriage of their sister
Gertrude Louise Lawrence to
Mr. Graham Noble
on Saturday, the first of October
Nineteen hundred and thirty-three

JEWISH HOME DEDICATION SUNDAY

The new $200,000 Jewish Home for the Aged, one of the largest institutions of its kind in this section, will be dedicated Sunday afternoon.

The building, which replaces the old home in Brackenridge avenue, is situated on Brown's Hill, on a 17-acre tract.

Among the leaders of Pittsburgh Jewry who will participate in the services Sunday are Rabbi Benjamin A. Lichter, Rabbi Wolf Leiter, Rabbi Aaron M. Ashinsky, Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson, Leonard S. Levine, I. A. Simon, Alfred M. Marks, J. H. Frank and Mrs. I. S. Harris.

INSPECTION MONDAY

Monday afternoon has been set for a public inspection of the home, and a committee headed by Mark Nolan has been named to conduct visitors.

Services will be held in the chapel Monday night for persons whose memorials have been established in the home. Edward S. Scheinberg will be chairman, the speakers including Dr. L. B. Bernstein, David Goldman, Rabbi Herbert Hailperin, Rabbi N. A. Sivitz and Rabbi Goodman.

AUXILIARY PROGRAM

A special program will be held in the home Tuesday afternoon by the Ladies' Auxiliary Society. Among the speakers will be Mrs. A. E. Rosenfield, Mrs. A. B. Weinberger, Mrs. Fannie Weinhause, Mrs. Harris, Mrs. Charles Mandleblatt, Mrs. Emanuel Friedberg, Mrs. Sol Sampson and Mrs. Max Shapiro.

The home was established 26 years ago. Among the active founders were Rabbi Ashinsky and the late Henry Jackson.

The new building is four stories, and contains facilities for the infirm. It has 156 beds, two in each room. It will serve Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio, and is affiliated with the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies.

MIDLAND SEEKS ERIE KILLER

ERIE, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—The district attorney's office is looking to Midland, Pa., authorities in an effort to solve the slayings of Albert and Hannah Biegert, aged brother and sister reclues, on their farm west of here, August 4.

Ernest Anderson, 23, who District Attorney Mortimer E. Graham said was to be examined soon by a sanity commission, was questioned yesterday.

J. O. Badders, special assistant county detective, who arrested Anderson Saturday after neighbors of the Biegerts reported he was peering in windows and acting queerly, said Anderson had been seen in Midland at the time two brutal slayings, similar to the Biegert case, occurred there three months ago.

FARM SLAYING HUNT WIDENS

The search for Steve Bauer, 36, indicted on a charge of murdering Robert Stilley, 24, on the latter's Upper St. Clair Township farm, spread throughout the United States and Canada today.

The grand jury returned an indictment after hearing evidence gathered by county detectives. Stilley was followed from the farmers' market on the Monongahela wharf, where he sold his farm products, and robbed of $30 after being shot down near his home.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Low-Brow!

If I were only hot or cold
Anent the present price of gold,
Or over, say, the silly tricks
And turns of party politics:
And if I only understood
The market, or assayed the good
And evil of our sorry times,
And puzzled over lurid crimes
Or raised a merry bit of hell
About a code, it would be swell!
I really wish I cared a lot
And yet I honestly do not . . . .

I worry over things like this . . .
A torrid blonde . . . a torchy kiss!
—Wilfred J. Funk.

By Way of Report

The scene was in one of the Broadway rendezvous the other after midnight. In the group of four were two women, both of whom asked us how it felt to be the target of an incessant bombardment.

"You get used to it," we remarked. "After all, that's what I've been handing out for years, you know."

"Oh, but it would make me very unhappy," said the first woman, sympathetically, "one right after the other that way."

"My, yes!" said the other woman. "I couldn't bear all that roasting."

Both women are merciless movie critics.

Merciless Fact

Henrietta Hacker saw these movie signs on the same Brooklyn theater:

"The Best of Enemies"
"Made On Broadway"

Heheheh

Kathryn Dougherty, one of the shrewder editors of the cinema mags, relays this eavesdropped chatter in a Hollywood soda-saloon. Two couples, all dressed up and on their way, were trying to decide on a movie.

"Well," said frau No. 1, "how about 'King Kong' or George Arliss?"

"Oh," said the other bride, "let's see Arliss, by all means. There's no comparison!"

Form of Criticism

Izzy Elinson and others were discussing a big-time radio comedian the other night. "He developed into quite a wit," said one, "I knew him when he was just a small-time comic, who used to cut jokes out of Judge."

"Yeah," said Izzy, "he's certainly advanced. Now he just marks the gags and his secretary cuts them out."

Gosh, Yes

Take it Life—the heading of an advertisement asks: "Are you interested in whipping the depression?"

"No," is the retort between quick gasps, "we're willing to call it a draw!"

Character

Until a famous show producer died a British butler served him faithfully for many years. Whether he was paid or not he was loyal. He stuck to the showman until the very end. Now he is working for an actor in Hollywood at the same terms. If the actor gets paid so does the lackey.

The other night at a party the flunkey sassed the guests, refused service except when he felt like giving it and even told them what he thought of them.

"Why do you think Charlie keeps him with such conduct?" someone asked.

"He knows too much about him," was the reply, "and if he is fired he will write about him for a fan magazine."

Observation

Pierre de Rohan says now that trains from Philadelphia are completely electrified, perhaps someone will invent a way to electrify the commuters.

Imagine

The trouble is that too many of the managers of the movie cathedrals take their jobs to heart. Take Harry Marks, frinstance, who until recently managed the Palace Theater, where the ushers get stiff wrists saluting their superiors. One of the lads ankled up to Marks and forgot to salute.

"Is that the way to approach me?" scolded Marks. "Now go back and do it properly." The usher went downstairs and returned and saluted.

"Now what is it you want, anyway?" said the irritated manager.

As If You Didn't Know

The honeymoon is over, asserts a wag, when he says: "Don't turn out the lights; I wanna read!"

Aptly Christened

"Whatever became of that grand crack: 'Always be nice to the people you meet on the way going up — because they're the very same people you meet on the way coming down?'"

"It's now in the movie 'Broadway to Hollywood.'"

He Must Have!

During the showing of a new movie at a Broadway temple recently—a movie reminiscent of several others from start to end—a wisey said: "Who wrote this—Raffles?"

Novelette

Less than a year ago, he was the groom of a renowned movie star. Before their divorce they dwelled in style at a smart hotel in the Central Park South sector. Since that time both of them have been the victims of sour breaks—and he is homeless and hungry.

His shelter nowanights is the park opposite the swanky hotel where he only recently dwelled. And because when he was in the money he was generous to the bellboys—all of them take turns each morning to purchase his breakfast.

Tragic Flight On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Dramatic pictures of an airplane crash, that in which Gen. Francesco de Pinedo, of Italy, died, are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. First are heard the last words ever to be uttered by the former chief of staff of the Italian Royal Air Force, in which he tells how he hopes to fly from the spot upon which he stood at Floyd Bennett Airport, Brooklyn, to Bagdad. With a cheery "adios" he gets into the plane, and in the gray of early morning starts off. The plane is seen to skid, crash into a fence, and then crumble up. In an instant the whole machine is ablaze. The Globe Trotter describes the tragedy.

President Roosevelt's vacation at Hyde Park ends as he boards Vincent Astor's yacht, the Nourmahal, at Poughkeepsie, for a week's cruise and fishing prior to his return to Washington.

Primo Carnera is shown arriving at Los Angeles to become a movie star. He is rescued from a bevy of bathing beauties by Jack Dempsey.

In San Francisco 10,000 children put on an impressive tableau by forming a perfect reproduction of the NRA banner.

The season at Saratoga closes in a blaze of glory as Bazar, a 10-to-1 shot, captures the Hopeful Stake before a big crowd.

Film Stylist Says Hips Are Out

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 7.—Girls, don't let the current craze for Mae West lull you into putting on weight. Adrian, noted M-G-M designer, blasts any idea that hips are coming back.

The slender style mentor for Greta Garbo, Marion Davies, Norma Shearer and Joan Crawford waxes emphatic.

"Keep the hips under control," he warns. "Regardless of fashion and the interest in curves, there will never come that day when women lose their sense of proportion as it pertains to their own figures. They will never grow so enthusiastic that hips will become wider than shoulders."

Having forecast the return of pre-war fashions nine months ago, Adrian predicts that they will take added momentum in the coming spring, with concentration on skirts.

Mr. Adrian

"Although the broad shoulder will be of importance," he explains, "it will be insinuated rather than exaggerated. From every fashion comes a lasting mark on the silhouette, if it has been a help to the figure of women—as the vogue for bobbed hair, which will survive because it adds to a youthful appearance. So it will be with the broad shoulder if done with less enthusiasm and more knowledge."

Adrian says that the fashions of the prewar era were slightly overcome by their own fussiness. The spring silhouette, he declares, will overcome this tendency with modern restraint.

Credit Sidney Sutherland with one of the better stories of the week. The other night a Hollywood scenarist showed up at a party slightly intoxicated and with his right hand covered with grease and soot. Everybody wanted to know what was the idea.

"I've been down to the station seeing my mother-in-law off," announced the scenarist triumphantly.

"But how about your hand?"

"Oh," he said, "I went up and patted the engine."

Are you a Sigma Chi? The Los Angeles alumni chapter of the fraternity has filed a protest with its national officers against Monogram Pictures calling a college film, "The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi." No legal recourse is planned, but the local alumni want the public to be told that the picture is not sponsored by the fraternity.

Texas Guinan night at the Cocoanut Grove lured the biggest crowd the popular dancing spot has had since 1929. Best wisecrack made by La Guinan was during the introduction of Joe Smoot, the racing man. Flipped Tex:

"He's brought me so many orchids that I look like a well kept grave."

Am I the last one to discover that Frances Fuller, the sweet-faced heroine of "One Sunday Afternoon," is married to Worthington Minor, the RKO director? . . . Ida Lupino, the English lass, was so airsick when she arrived in Hollywood that she didn't care whether she ever played Alice or not. Since then, the blonde actress has been a wide-eyed visitor at Hollywood late spots under the chaperonage of Al Kaufman and Adolph Zukor . . . Adrienne Ames and Bruce Cabot don't seem to mind the undercurrent of reproof. They dance in a dreamy isolation from the crowd.

Did you know: That Lilian Harvey happened to be in Germany when the war broke out and was interned there for four years?

Retaliation

WANT to hear the true story of a Broadway guy?

Several years ago George met a girl. George was a good-natured chap—handsome and easy-going. During the day he worked for a Wall street concern as a bond salesman. This was shortly before the crash, and the money was rolling in very nicely. Remember?

But George, I regret to say, was never a very thrifty gent. He enjoyed the night clubs in the early mornings. So you may take my word for the fact that, as easily as the money rolled in, just so easily did it slip out.

We come now to the girl. You would call her, I imagine, a social celebrity. What I would call her is another story. She is just one of those young women who can always be seen around the popular night clubs. Her father has a great deal of money.

She's a modern girl, whatever that might mean. She thinks it's fun to talk about sex at every possible moment, and she imagines she's being very shocking. She doesn't know she's merely boring.

In spite of these facts, George fell in love with her.

The girl rather liked the idea, too. Better, in fact, than she liked George. The thought of marrying a next-to-penniless bond salesman struck her as something rather thrilling. She visioned headlines in the tabloids, and all her girl friends shaking with envy.

George had no knowledge of the girl's true nature. She had one pet phrase that annoyed him, but he didn't realize the phrase was a habit until he heard her use it three or four times.

"I don't wish to do it," she would cry. "I never do things unless I wish to do them."

A sweet girl, this was. Yes, sir. Like the juice of 18 lemons.

For a better part of a year George courted the girl of his dreams. He begged her to marry him, but she kept putting it off. Another big barrier in the way of their marriage was the girl's father. Papa couldn't see George with a giant telescope.

Papa had visions of his daughter marrying one of America's biggest financial names.

"Joan," he said, "I love you very much. But I am not going to have you ruin your life. I will not permit you to marry this worthless man.

"If you marry him, I will never recognize you again. This young fellow may be able to give you everything you want, but I doubt it. And when you become his wife, I will never give you another penny so long as you live."

The mention of money sealed George's fate right then and there. The girl, you see, was her father's daughter. Headlines and money make a nice combination, but headlines without money didn't sound so hot. So she decided to tell George the verdict that very night . . .

And tell him she did. Very coldly, and with no display of her customary emotion, she told George that everything was over between them. And the boy who loved her almost fell through the floor.

"But, darling," he cried, "how can you do a thing like this to me? What is your reason? Don't you understand that you mean everything in life to me? What is it all about? Why don't you marry me?"

The girl shrugged her shoulders.

"I don't wish to do it," she murmured. "I never do things unless I wish to do them."

About three months later the girl sailed for Europe with her father. She was going over there "to forget." Her friends said she looked badly and whispered about her broken romance. She knew what they were saying, affected a pale makeup, hired a nurse and looked very sad, indeed.

And George? Well, you can imagine. The kid was completely beaten. He couldn't work. He couldn't do anything. Along came the crash, and he lost his job.

Suddenly, from out of a clear sky, came a call from Paris. It was from the girl. From Joan, his own sweet darling. She had evidently had four or five cocktails, and was very emotional.

She told George that she still loved him. That she had always loved him. That she would always love him. She was tired of all the other people in the world: If he would come to France she would marry him at once. Would he?

Will a columnist swipe a good gag? George hocked everything he could possibly spare, and borrowed the rest of the money. In three days he was on his way. His heart was singing a wonderful song.

How was he to know that Joan was talking through her cocktails? How was he to know what was going to happen when he hit France? . . .

He wasn't in doubt very long. When he reached Paris he found that she had gone to a watering resort. When he reached the watering resort she had gone somewhere else. But he couldn't go somewhere else. He was lucky to get back to Paris. Because he was as broke as a man can be.

We'll skip about eight months at this point of the story and find ourselves on an ocean liner bound for New York. Among the dining room stewards—working his way back to New York by a lucky break—was George. And among the passengers was Joan, the girl. Joan was not alone. She was with her husband, a very wealthy American gentleman with low morals and high blood pressure. She had married him in Paris some 10 days before. And her father heartily approved.

If this was a motion picture, the dramatic possibilities would be unlimited. Picture, if you will, the recognition between the pair. And think of George as he watches Joan getting rid of her husband after the first meal so that she can talk to George. She becomes violently emotional at this time.

"George," she breathes, "I must see you tonight. I must. I want to explain."

George clenches his fists. He says he will not see her. And he means it.

"But why?" she whispers. "Why will you not see me?"

George laughed. It was the strangest laugh you ever heard in all your life. Then he stopped suddenly. And he leaned closer.

"Because," he replied evenly, "I don't wish to. I never do things I don't wish to do."

BYRD WILL SAIL TO ANTARCTIC SEPT. 25

By FRANCIS H. MURPHY
Associated Press Staff Writer.

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Rear Admiral Richard Byrd and his crew of scientific adventurers will sail from Boston September 25, seeking to wrest remaining secrets from the last great home of mystery—the enormous waste lands of the Antarctic.

The noted explorer disclosed his departure date today in an interview telling the aims of the hazardous expedition, which was interrupted a year ago when he was drafted to serve as chairman of the National Economy League.

The year's delay, Byrd disclosed, has resulted in a larger and finer equipped expedition with two ships instead of one and an augmented personnel.

Byrd will sail with 35 men each on the Pacific Fir and the Bear, the latter to be used to crush its way to the edge of the ice at Little America, and the former to serve as a base ship north of the ice pack.

The addition of the Pacific Fir was made in the interest of economy, Byrd said, as it permitted the expedition to carry all of its supplies from the United States. Practically everything used, he disclosed, was bought or donated in America.

The expedition will be Byrd's second to the "bottom of the world." The first started from New York in 1928, and his famous flight over the South Pole was made in 1929, the year he spent on the ice in Little America. The return was in 1930.

Previous to this he had flown over the North Pole and explored the Arctic and had hopped the Atlantic Ocean with three companions.

GUEST FALLS DEAD IN ROOM

Joseph R. McGaw, 58, retired sand and gravel dealer, fell dead last night while visiting at the apartment of Edward B. Lee, an architect, in the Variety Club Building, William Penn and Strawberry ways.

Mr. McGaw, who lived at 1520 Valmont street, Squirrel Hill, collapsed after entering the living room with a friend. Lee was attending a business conference at the time. Dr. B. H. Sisler was summoned and attributed death to a heart attack.

Mr. McGaw leaves his widow, Mrs. Ella McGaw, and a son, Joseph R. Jr., a student.

MUSIC

Carnegie Music Hall

Carnegie Music Hall was crowded last night by admirers of Hon. Ralph H. Smith and Hon. Frank A. Piekarski to hear a testimonial concert given in honor of these two distinguished judges of Allegheny County. The Central Council of the Slavic and Allied Civic Leagues of Allegheny County united their talents and made music which we have often had opportunity to admire and encourage.

Mr. Lissfelt

Among the participants were the Slovak Civic League Choir, the Karafiat Quartet, the Carpathian-Russian Symphonic Choir, the Lithuanian Radio Club Choir, Beleg's Croatian Tamburica Orchestra, Shelleby's Tamburica Orchestra, and the Ukrainian National Choir. The soloists were Frank Pechak and Louis Diugosz, violinists; Edward Dunbar, tenor, and Miss Barbara Basha-Barsh, Croatian soprano. The music throughout was nationalistic folk and church music.

As often as I have heard these various groups sing I am more and more impressed by the gentle manners of the Slavic race during any performance and marvelous simplicity and sincerity of their music-making.

Unaffectedly they sing from the heart, and would to heaven, when they become full-fledged American citizens of this Allegheny County, a hope so finely expressed by the spokesman of the evening, Gregory Zatkovich, that we do not turn the blue laws of this commonwealth upon them and drive from their souls this love of the grandest of the arts and plant into their minds any shame for the gay music and costumes which still add a fading color to our life.

At the close of the concert Judge Piekarski and Judge Smith each made a brief address of appreciation and the audience joined in singing "America."

J. FRED LISSFELT.

DIVORCE ENDS SCHOOL TROTH

Russell W. Garvin, 418 Leslie street, East McKeesport, asking Judge James H. Gray for a decree from Myrtle E. Garvin, Fifth avenue extension, McKeesport, testified:

"We were to go to housekeeping when she finished school, but she said she preferred to live with her parents and would not permit me to provide a home for her."

'Radio Queen' Crowning Near

By AIRCASTER

In my long and hectic association with radio, I have sought with disconcerting futility to discover why, every year, or nearly every year, a Miss Radio is crowned queen—and then promptly forgotten. I have suspected, of course, that maybe it is a stunt to publicize the annual radio show.

It seems that another radio queen is to be selected by some mysterious means on September 24, in Madison Square Garden, from entrants registered by various broadcasting stations and systems. On this year's schedule, there is really an opportunity for the lucky girl. I hope the publicity lads and the show realize that the queen, chosen for looks and talent as well, can be of assistance in those NRA events.

Hall Comes Back

Without fanfare or benefit of advance notices, Wendell Hall, the red-headed music maker, has re-appeared on the NBC network in a five-a-week show, just when the radio commentators were getting ready to write his epitaph by inquiring "What has become of him?" He's audible at 1:20 in the afternoon.

* * *

Bands Moving

Guy Lombardo goes into a Chicago spot, and will have Frank Hazzard on the schedule as featured vocalist.

Don Bestor will follow Harold Stern into the New York place, where, later in the season, Guy Lombardo will turn up.

Huston Ray and his orchestra, for the past month a KDKA feature, broadcasting from a local hotel, leave Pittsburgh Saturday. Happy Felton and his orchestra will replace them.

Coming Events

The Institute of Public Affairs, in which national leaders discuss current topics, is preparing for its third year on the CBS waves. The first speaker in the revised series will be Secretary of State Cordell Hull, whose subject is announced as "America and the World Outlook." The 30-minute program starts a week from Saturday.

FORD SALES MOUNT AS PENNSYLVANIANS SWING TO NEW V-8

COSTS LESS TO BUY...COSTS LESS TO RUN!

In 142,000 miles of test driving the V-8 averaged 18½ to 22½ miles per gallon of gasoline . . .

TODAY the automobile industry is seeing the biggest buying spurt of several years. Pennsylvanians are returning to the market and the swing is to V-8 Fords as indicated by a sales increase of over 57 percent for August in the Pittsburgh Branch Territory.

Pennsylvanians now demand greater value in automobiles; that is why they turn to the big Ford V-8. It offers power, speed and performance such as only an eight-cylinder car can give. Yet, thanks to Ford Engineering it is a car capable of giving 18½ to 22½ miles per gallon of gasoline. Many owners report even greater mileage.

Back of that strong statement is strong proof. Official tests have been conducted in eleven states; 142,000 miles have been run off. Sixteen different drivers in different stock models, using different kinds of gasoline, all got the same convincing proof that the Ford V-8 is economical to operate. Ford alone in the low priced field gives V-8 performance at a minimum cost.

Make Your Own Test..

Ford dealers throughout Pennsylvania are ready to supply one of the new Ford V-8's for your personal test. Compare the general satisfaction of driving this car, its performance, its ability to give long mileage with your past motoring experience. On such a trial, we rest our case.

Whatever you want in a car . . . beauty, speed, comfort, performance or economy . . . you will find it in the big, new Ford V-8.

News Flashes on WCAE—WJAS

Louis L. Kaufman, Globe Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, broadcasts the day's news, direct from the editorial rooms of the Sun-Telegraph, over WCAE and WJAS at 9:05 a. m. and 12:15, 2:15 and 6:30 p. m.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Mary E. Madden, of South Fairmount avenue, tells me not to forget East Liberty when speaking of the women who are campaigning for the NRA. In East Liberty, according to her letter, almost all the women called upon by workers have signed up. Those who haven't were away when the NRA worker called.

Some of the success of the East Liberty drive is credited to Charles Madden, of South Negley avenue, a nephew of the correspondent. He is only 5 years old, but went from door to door with his aunt, ringing bells. For his able door bell ringing he was awarded a worker's button by Mrs. Col. Gerst, of the East Liberty women.

From Jennie Musgrave comes suggestions for songs for radio programs. She includes on her list "Listen to the Mocking Bird," "The Lost Chord," "The Lord Is My Light" and "Loves Old Sweet Song" and a host of other listeners would enjoy more of the same kind of music.

Babette's News of Accessories!

Of course you're excited about the new fashions. About the fact that you're going to look pictorial and feminine and dramatic this fall. But don't forget, mesdames, that the test of your knowingness will lie in the accessories you choose. Here are a few notes I jotted down as I made a Babette Tour of my favorite first floor!

The neckwear department is all a-chortle over some new jackets made of a fine wale fabric known as Victorov. Since they are shorter-than-hip-length, and fitted, they look to me like the very thing to convert an evening gown into that new type of costume called, by the Powers That Be, a dinner suit. One style buttons over, close under the chin. The other is open, with tiny revers. Both fasten with glass buttons, cut like gems. The color range leaves little to be desired: green, pansy, orange, blue, black, brown, eel grey. 3.00, in sizes 14 to 20.

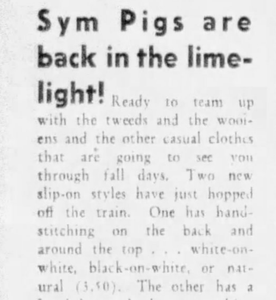
This is to be a season of brilliance, and the new way to take your brilliants is combined with slim bands of silver metal. You'll find this strikingly new combination in long pins (for anchoring the ascot on one of your more glamorous gowns), in earrings, in clips and in necklaces. 1.00 apiece—not much to pay for such sparkle!

Sym Pigs are back in the limelight! Ready to team up with the tweeds and the woolens and the other casual clothes that are going to see you through fall days. Two new slip-on styles have just hopped off the train. One has hand-stitching on the back and around the top . . . white-on-white, black-on-white, or natural (3.50). The other has a hand-drawn back . . . white, natural, black, brown (2.50).

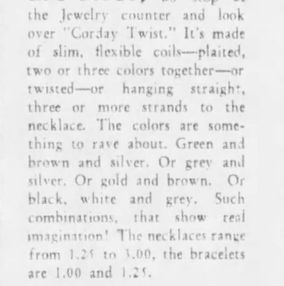
If it's daytime decoration you are after, do stop at the Jewelry counter and look over "Corday Twist." It's made of slim, flexible coils—plaited, two or three colors together—or twisted—or hanging straight, three or more strands to the necklace. The colors are something to rave about. Green and brown and silver. Or grey and silver. Or gold and brown. Or black, white and grey. Such combinations, that show real imagination! The necklaces range from 1.25 to 3.00, the bracelets are 1.00 and 1.25.

Then—because you must always have one pair of fine glace gloves for afternoons when you are dressing up—I picked out these. They are almost classical in their tailored simplicity. Made of a soft, pliable skin, and stitched and bound in a contrasting shade. Black with white, beige with brown, brown with beige, and grey. They're 2.50—and I've an idea we may not be able to buy gloves like these for so little very much longer.

Even a handkerchief feels that it should look new when it peers over the edge of a pocket in a new fall suit. Here are three kinds that qualify. Black-and-white prints, with part of the print outlined with fine embroidery. White, with two colored bands hemstitched around the edge to make a novel border. Or white, with the Appenzell type of embroidery augmented by dainty bits done in color. All three are of linen, and entirely handmade, even to the hand-rolled hems. 50c apiece.



Want to know how to acquire a MaeWest figure, if you weren't born with one? Wear a wide belt! Besides, your latest Vogue will tell you, "Look for . . . wide belts, as good sports accessories." The "Mirror-mat" is the newest I've seen. Full three inches wide, it is, and looks like gunmetal patent leather. Just what you need for your grey wool dress, or to go with your gunmetal shoes? That's what I was thinking! 1.50 is the price.



I've even investigated the color situation in hosiery! "I'm a busy gal," I told them, "and like to have one color that will go with 'most everything, as a backbone for my hosiery wardrobe. What shall it be this fall?" Biscayne is the color they advised, and I'm dutifully passing the tip on to you. It's a natural brownish beige that plays no favorites with black or brown or high colors. You can buy it in that Uno Garter Guard hose (that with the heel-within-a-heel, and the garter guard beyond which a runner cannot run), at 1.00

POLITICS

Politicians Keep Eye on Vets in Campaign

By MARK SHIELDS

Maybe the United Veterans' Association amounts to something as a political organization. Maybe not. The answer should be found in the election returns for the Republican primary, because the association has made indorsements for every office to be decided.

Mr. Shields.

Officers of the association claim it has a membership of 15,000 in Pittsburgh. That sounds like a lot, and the figure is challenged by some of the veterans themselves who are miffed, for the moment at least, at some things which have gone on within the organization.

However, cut the figure in half, and the 7,500 remaining members can exert not only a powerful but determining influence in an election if they stand together. Whether they will is the question, and a subject which is being eagerly watched by the politicians.

Some day the veterans of the World War will coalesce politically, just as the veterans of the Civil War did through the G. A. R. It is significant that veterans' organizations are lifting the ban on political action by groups, and show every intention of endeavoring to find a common basis of attitude on public questions.

Association Formed For Political Action

In Allegheny County the United American Veterans' Association has been formed. It is made up of members of all soldier organizations, and is designed frankly and solely for political action. The fraternal side of veterans' affairs will be taken care of by the American Legion, the V. F. W., the Disabled Veterans, Spanish War Veterans and similar organizations.

Heretofore the soldiers have acted as a unit on neither local, state or national questions. They have split into varied camps and factions, and it is true that in this campaign there is not anything approaching a certain unity.

For example, the United American Veterans' Association has indorsed Joseph N. Mackrell for the Republican mayoralty nomination. Yet such an active veteran as Charles G. Lane, Jr., is in the camp of Mayor John S. Herron, and Charlie McGinnis is treasurer of the campaign of Councilman P. J. McArdle.

But so far as the veterans have spoken through an association they have indorsed Mackrell. Further, they have indorsed candidates for City Council, for all the courts, sheriff and jury commissioner.

Some Are Skeptical of Veteran Solidarity

The vote of the candidates so indorsed will be eagerly scanned to determine whether the veterans' association is to become a real factor in politics, or just another organization whose approval is worth little more than what newspaper attention it can secure.

Republican organization politicians are plainly skeptical of the solidarity of the soldiers. They are saying openly that there is no such thing as a "soldier vote," so far as it can be counted on in great numbers by a single candidate, just as the "labor vote" has become something of a myth except in the case of the United Mine Workers.

Whether it will be a good thing for politics that there shall become a dominant "soldier vote" is something which need not be argued here. The essential thing, and the important thing in the eyes of politicians, is that the question will be determined in this primary election, so far as local affairs are affected at this time.

Indorsements Made in Both of the Old Parties

The veterans have made indorsements among Democrats as well as Republicans, on the theory that they have members in both parties.

In this connection the interesting development will be in the general election. If the veterans' Republican favorites, or a number of them, are beaten, and their Democratic choices win, there will be a direct conflict of party opinion. Then will come the decision by the veterans as to whether they are partisan in politics, or actuated first of all by what they conceive as their own interest.

It is safe to venture that it will be more difficult for the veterans to secure something approaching cohesion in a fight between parties than a fight between factions.

From any standpoint, this plunge of the veterans into forthright political action holds great potentialities with respect to this and future elections.

CHAPTER I.

DURANT adjusted another pillow behind him; he permitted his man, Layton, to place a breakfast tray upon his knees. Fixedly he stared at the face of his butler-valet. Apparently by accident, but really deliberately—Layton avoided meeting his master's eyes. Durant's thin, sensitive lips curved faintly.

"I trust that all goes well with you, Layton," he said.

"Everything is quite all right, sir," replied the valet.

Durant lifted the coffee cup to his mouth. "Mrs. Layton well?"

"Quite, sir," said the valet.

"And the sometime-President, young Jackson Durant Layton? His health, manners and morals all that they should be?"

"His condition is most satisfactory, sir," said Layton.

"And how is the weather? It seems like a bright and cheery day."

"Last night's storm has cleared away." And now the valet met his master's eyes. "You remember about it, sir?"

Durant deliberately drank his coffee. He looked with distaste at the poached eggs and toast. "Take the tray away, if you don't mind, Layton," he said. From the table beside his bed he took a cigaret and lighted it. "I sense a certain something, Layton. You might as well break it to me all at once. So there was a storm last night, eh?"

"A very violent one, sir," replied the man. He placed the breakfast tray upon a chair and fussily arranged the articles upon the table by the bed. He moved a briquet two inches nearer Durant; he changed the position of the ash tray.

Durant hid a grin. He recognized the symptoms that preceded rebuke. "You don't tell me" he said "A violent storm? Was I—er—out in the storm?"

"The dinner suit you wore is rather hopeless, sir," said Layton.

Directed Dancers

Durant nodded. "I take it that I was in the storm. It seems strange, but I wouldn't doubt your word. What happened? Did I walk home from wherever I happened to be?"

"You went out on the porch, sir. Apparently there wasn't room enough to rehearse the dance in the living room."

"Ah, there was a dance, eh? Too bad that I have no recollection of that pleasantness. Or was I, by any chance, practicing by myself?"

"You were directing the ladies, sir," replied Layton.

Durant lighted another cigaret. In the depth of his gray eyes, usually so solemn, appeared a gleam of merriment. Mirth, even the faintest hint of it, did extraordinary things to his grave face. Thin-lipped, aquiline nose, high of forehead, it was the face of a sad philosopher. He was 30, looked 35 most of the time, but when he was amused, he looked barely 25. Everything about him seemed to become definitely alive when he smiled.

"So there were ladies, were there? Well, Layton, cigarets and coffee have awakened me; I feel strong enough to bear anything. True, I had an idea that I behaved with great dignity last night. Something of solemnity seems to hang about me like a pall, and I had an idea it was the aftermath of precise behavior last night. Evidently I was wrong. You say the ladies danced? Were there many of them?"

"The sextet from 'Ladies Must Love,' sir."

Interrupted by Rain

"The sextet, eh? Funny, I don't seem to remember them at all. The two comedians are excellent. Brown and McNulty. Have you seen them, Layton?"

"I have not, sir," answered the valet.

"You must do so. You must take Mrs. Layton. Remind me to get tickets for you. So I brought the sextet home, did I?"

"You did, sir. Apparently you felt that one of their number should be improved. So, after supper, you took them out on the porch and were directing their dance when the thunderstorm broke. They ran into the house, but you were obviously unaware of their departure, and you kept on directing for some time, sir. It was with great difficulty that I persuaded you finally to come inside."

"The child in us all, Layton. I suppose my subconscious self craves to be Cecil DeMille. And after that, Layton?"

"There was some slight merriment because you were soaking wet, but that was all, sir. I must say the ladies conducted themselves very well. There were only six broken tumblers, two cracked plates, and five holes burned in the rugs."

"Sunday-schoolish, in short."

"I wouldn't call it exactly that, sir, but they all left quietly when you—er—passed out."

"I trust you didn't fail in the courtesies due departing guests," said Durant. "When I—er—pass out, the duties of a host devolve upon you, Layton."

"I understand, sir. I persuaded two young ladies to whom you gave the grand piano that it would be difficult to get movers so late at night. I also persuaded the other young lady that she might ruin the Whistler etching if she took it out in the rain."

"Goodness, was I as bad as all that?" asked Durant.

Rebuked by Valet

"Is there anything surprising in what I'm telling you, sir?" The valet made a gesture of despair. "Mr. Durant, can't you stop it? Don't you know what it'll do to you? It breaks my heart to see you throwing away your life."

"Life isn't as valuable to me as it is to you, Layton," said his master. "You have a wife and a child—"

"You could have the same," interrupted the valet.

"I suppose I could, Layton," admitted the young man. "I imagine that somewhere in the world exists a not-too-unpresentable young woman who would do me the honor to become my wife and the mother of my child. But you see, Layton, I happen to want only one certain young woman."

"And she'd want you if you'd stick to the sort of thing you were meant for," said the valet.

"There's the difficulty: what was I meant for? To be junior partner in the law firm which my grandfather founded, to spend my life fussing about estates in which I'm not interested?"

"It's more respectable than defending notorious criminals; getting yourself mixed up with all sorts of questionable people."

"But I'm not respectable, Layton. Respectability bores me. And questionable people are infinitely more entertaining than unquestionable folk. And justice is a better thing than smugness."

"Is justice, is being involved in all sorts of scandals, better than Miss Leonard?" the valet daringly asked.

Notoriety and Fame

"One can't solve mysteries without mixing up in scandal, unfortunately," said Durant. "Miss Leonard disapproves. I understand and always have understood her point of view. The world is full of policemen and detectives; why should a member of the firm of Durant, Clayborne and Durant try to equal a private investigator? But you can't defend criminals without being able to look into the cases against them. To do that, one must frequently associate with the underworld; one must be prepared for a certain notoriety.

"Now the difference between notoriety and fame is hard for me to understand. As a member of the law firm that won the Slater will case, I achieved a little fame. As the attorney, practicing by himself, who cleared Tony Gazotti of a murder charge, I acquired notoriety. Criminal law is not respectable, not for Jackson Durant of Durant, Clayborne and Durant. But a man must make that choice which brings him happiness."

"Happiness!" The butler's voice was almost a jeer. "You haven't been happy a single moment since Miss Leonard broke her engagement. You've been drunk—you may give me notice right now, sir—every night for six months. Your heart is breaking, and yet you try to pretend that you're happier as a criminal lawyer, defending gangsters, big shots, than you were as a member of the highly respected firm which your grandfather founded and which your father carried on."

Difference in Cases

"I'll not give you your notice, Layton," sighed Durant. "And I think that everyone in the world would agree that yours are the words of sanity. Gangsters and criminals are not choice clients. But they're interesting. Corporation cases aren't—not to me. I tell you, mystery, intrigue — they're the only things that interest me. And there's drama fighting for a man's life, whereas there's only a fee in winning a contract case. I know. I moved from Park avenue to Broadway, and Miss Leonard wouldn't make the move with me. I don't blame her. Yet, knowing that if I stayed where she thought I belonged, I could have her—I had to make the move.

"A man, Layton, must do the

PALMER SAYS BUY NOW AND KEEP BUYING

Federal Aide Asserts Future of Small Stores at Stake

Organization of a permanent "Community Prosperity Council" to "get Pittsburgh people to buy now and keep on buying," is advocated by Eric Palmer, associate director of the National Recovery Crusade. He was in Pittsburgh yesterday in the interest of this movement.

After studying conditions in 50 cities, Palmer stated:

"The future of small merchants particularly is now at stake. The next three months will be vital ones. The trend is obviously optimistic, but throughout September, October and November millions of people must meet their long delayed needs, spend for luxuries as well as necessities, if the corner is to be reached definitely.

"The truth is that right now factories of several kinds are on the point of closing again. The campaign for buy now might properly be extended to "buy steadily and normally, and there are 52,000,000 persons with bank accounts in a position to respond."

PERMANENT COUNCIL

Palmer said a permanent council for recovery is necessary in order to insure contined prosperity and should maintain its activity for at least two years. He pointed out that the present NRA leaders could form the nucleus for such an organization.

The "Spend a dollar and make a job" campaign is being furthered by the women's division of the local NRA in conjunction with the house-to-house consumers' drive, under the leadership of Mrs. Oliver J. Haller.

First official report of the Women's Auxiliary consumers' pledge campaign shows the Manchester district, North Side, is 98⅔ per cent behind the movement, according to William Shaw, of the American Red Cross. Thirty-two churches in the district participated in the drive.

19,961 EMPLOYERS SIGN

Charles F. Horner, chief of the organization division of NRA in Washington, was notified yesterday by Frank C. Harper, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce that 19,961 employers have signed the President's re-employment agreement.

Housewives will be urged to "buy now" by the following "four-minute women" of the women's division in radio addresses this week:

Mrs. George Bray, KDKA, 12:25 p. m. today; Mrs. John McDermitt, KDKA, 6:06 p. m., Friday, and Mrs. R. W. Johnston, WCAE, 6:40 p. m. Saturday.

"SPEND NOW, WISELY"

Persons having money should spend for things they need now, in the opinion of E. R. Crawford, president of the McKeesport Tin Plate Company. He said:

"I think the 'Buy in September' drive and the NRA are great movements. We want to spend not only now but later on. We do not want to over-reach and overdo it at this time. I think those persons who have the money should spend it wisely on anything that they might need right now. Let us get money back in circulation."

Wyn B. Morris, president of the Reick-McJunkin Dairy Company, commented:

"We are back of the NRA 100 per cent and will back the 'Buy in September' movement to the same extent. Every loyal citizen should help it along."

FAITH IN NRA

A. C. Knickerbocker, president of the Pittsburgh Engineering, Foundry and Construction Company, said:

"I have a lot of faith in the NRA. I think it is a good idea to encourage buying with those persons who have money and can afford it. Those just beginning to earn money, however, should be careful how they spend it."

J. P. Schmitt, vice president of the Wolverine Supply and Manufacturing Company, makers of toys, stated:

"We are all backing the President in the NRA drive because we have confidence in him. Why not back him in the 'Buy in September' movement. If September is a good business month it will hearten the jobbers and distributors as to what is going to happen the later part of the year."

JEWS HERE PUT OFF NAZI BAN

The charen ordering Orthodox Jews in the United States and Canada to boycott German goods, approved yesterday at the annual convention of the Hebrew Orthodox Rabbis in New York, will not apply to the Pittsburgh district, it was learned today.

Rabbi Elihu W. Kochin, of the Tifereth Isreal Congregation, Fullerton and Clark streets, said today that while eventually the Nazi boycott would reach Pittsburgh, it would not be until it was so decreed at the coming convention of the Union Orthodox Rabbis of America and Canada, with which practically all Pittsburgh's Orthodox Rabbis are affiliated.

Rabbin Kochin explained that the convention in New York, which yesterday cautioned against the handling by Jewish merchants of anything German, was held by the Keanesus Isreal of the Rabbis, a division of the Orthodox jewry.

Democrats Make Gains in Suburbs

Registration totals for the first two registration days in McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton show a slight gain in the number of Democratic voters. The figures follow:

McKeesport, Republican, 9,240; Democrat, 1,273. Duquesne, Republican, 1,439; Democrat, 565. Clairton, Republican, 1,287; Democrat, 531.

The last registration day for the three third class cities is September 16.

Sign Contractors To Discuss NRA

The NRA, as it affects the industry, will be discussed at a dinner-meeting of the Sign Contractors Association of Pittsburgh in Roosevelt Hotel, tomorrow night. In addition, a report on the convention of Sign Contractors of North America, in Buffalo, will be given.

SECOND VICTIM OF BLAST DIES

Joseph Banesky, 19, of 1306 Maple street, McKeesport, injured in a gasoline explosion at the municipal airport which claimed the life of a fellow employe last Sunday, died early today in the McKeesport Hospital.

Banesky and Albert K. Hutchison, 22, of 1101 Locust street, McKeesport, had entered the valve pit of the airport's gasoline tanks in an attempt to "valve off" a leaking gasoline line when sparks from a switch operating system are believed to have set fire to the gasoline, causing it to explode, airport authorities said. Hutchison died shortly after arrival at McKeesport Hospital.

'3 TOMS TRIAL' POSTPONED

The "Three Toms Case," involving Tom Dolan, Tom Goslin and Tom Coyne, alleged proprietors of the raided Monaca Club, will not be listed for trial until the October term of court, District Attorney Andrew T. Park announced today.

Park said the delay in renewing the trial, interrupted by charges of jury fixing last June, was due to the presence on the calendar of many jail cases. These are cases of defendants held in jail because of inability to get bail.

The three defendants are free on bond. The Monaca Club, which ran unmolested for months, was shorn of its expensive furnishings at an auction sale.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Sept. 7.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph.

Even experts don't know what the weather will do, even millionaires don't know what Wall street will do. There is millions of things that nobody knows anything about in advance, but the dumbest guy in the world knows that the minute a Latin-American country has a revolution, that it is just the opening game of a series of 'em.

Will Rogers

You know we got the wrong impression of a revolution. They was raised on 'em down there; they love 'em. It's their only relaxation. Sure, people get killed sometimes, if it's a first-class Grade A revolution. They may lose about as many as we lose over our week-ends by trying to pass somebody on a turn.

There is one thing about a Latin-American country, no matter who is running it, they always run the same. Your...

THIEF DROPS LOOT, TAKES DOG

Now Friendly Family Pet May Become Oliver Twist

Chico would be a fine watchdog, but he's too friendly. He was so much so that a burglar took him and some kitchen ware from the home of Mrs. Walter Prack, 4283 Andover Terrace, Schenley Heights, it was revealed today.

The 5-year-old Pekingese, thinking no doubt, that the burglar was a friend of the family, made no disturbance. And the burglar, with some similar mutual feeling, just took Chico with him, although he threw his other loot on the lawn when he found it wasn't silver, but just kitchen ware.

Mrs. Prack explained that the screen window of the kitchen was jimmied, but a bolted door prevented the intruder from exploring the rest of the second floor duplex.

Missing the pet after his companionship of five years, Mrs. Prack is willing to give a liberal reward. She bought him in Belgium.

'Women Hoboes' Latest Travel Aid Problem

Homeless women and boys "on the bum" became a major problem this summer in Pittsburgh, according to a report submitted today by the Pittsburgh Travelers' Aid to the Welfare Fund.

Women riding freight trains with men are a new phase of the welfare problem homeless wanderers have brought here in the last month, according to Miss Fredericka F. Hays, executive secretary. She says:

"Women do not leave home until things have reached the last pass, and we have had eight women off freights under our care in the last month. And the boys have told us of many more."

Homeless boys cared for here numbered 1,189—three times as many as came last summer. Many of them were only 12 years of age. So far this year, according to the report, Travelers Aid has booked 3,675 homeless persons. There were only 2,326 last summer.

Pittsburgh Opera Concern Chartered

Organized to "encourage and cultivate a taste for music, literature and arts," the Pittsburgh Metropolitan Grand Opera Company has been granted a charter, according to word today from Harrisburg. The company is capitalized at $5,000 and the incorporators are Antonio Certo, Josephine Certo and Dorothy C. Bandi, all of Pittsburgh.

CRIME SWAY HIT BY JUDICIAL CANDIDATE

Assistant District Attorney John F. Haggerty, candidate for Common Pleas Court, pointed to the present crime situation as proof of the necessity of having judges in Criminal Court trained in the court's administration.

Haggerty has expressed his willingness to be assigned to Criminal Court for the full 10 years of his term, if elected.

McKeesport Societies Back Musmanno

The Federated Societies of McKeesport, including the American, Russian, Slovak, Polish and Croation Civic Clubs, have indorsed the candidacy of Judge M. A. Musmanno for Court of Common Pleas.

A mass meeting will be held in Turner Hall, Homestead, this evening in behalf of Judge Musmanno's candidacy. A parade through Homestead and surrounding boroughs and townships will precede the meeting.

Judge Musmanno will also speak at the Baxter Junior High School, Homewood, in the Eleventh and Sixth wards of McKeesport, and in Beechview.

Indorsement for Smith, Lencher and Piekarski

Judge Ralph H. Smith, candidate for Common Pleas Court, speaks today at Coal Valley School, an outing of the Pittsburgh Safety Engineers at Eddie Ray's picnic grounds, St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Sewickley; Hustler's Hall, Carnegie; Lee School, Beechview; Carrick High School, Brashear School, Sixteenth Ward, and at a testimonial dinner at the K. J. Piekarski home, Bellevue.

Judge Smith and Judges Frank A. Piekarski and Benjamin Lencher, candidates for County Court, last night were indorsed by Merrill W. Allen Camp, United Spanish War Veterans, and by Woodside Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The Polish Citizens Club of West End, has indorsed the candidacies of Judges Smith, for Common Pleas Court, and Judge Piekarski, for County Court.

The club will hold a meeting in Pulaski Hall, Linhart and Steuben streets, at 8 p. m. Sunday, to make further indorsements. Organized last Sunday, its president is H. Wilinski.

Lindsay Indorsed At Miners' Rally

Miners of North and South Fayette Townships indorsed the candidacy of Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay for Common Pleas Court at a United Mine Workers of America organization meeting on Connors Farm, North Fayette Township.

Lindsay will speak tonight at Croatian Hall, McKeesport, and a lawn supper of the Lemington avenue Methodist Episcopal Church.

Nixon Supported By Mine Workers

Attorney Clarence B. Nixon, candidate for County Court, has been indorsed by Local No. 5556, United Mine Workers of America, Ocean Mine No. 5, at Smithfield.

Mr. Nixon will attend the Wilkinsburg Elks' testimonial banquet for Burness William Turner tonight, will speak at an open air meeting at 1208 Fifth avenue, McKeesport, at Baxter Junior High School and at Verona Italian Hall.

ARMY PLANES SCOUT 'ENEMY'

Nine Army observation planes, the 1st Observation Squadron from Mitchel Field, New York, continued their three-day visit here today, prepared to defend the city against an imaginary attack. The squadron will base at the County Airport.

Maj. [illegible] Bazley, manager of the County Airport and commandant of the 355th Observation Squadron Reserves here, invited the Army planes to come to Pittsburgh. This will be the first time in many years Pittsburgh has been the center of Army air training maneuvers. The commandant of the fleet, Capt. E. W. Roley, is a brother-in-law of H. V. McNamara, branch manager of Krogers.

The Army fliers, according to Bazley, will attempt to keep tab on a mythical force of 20,000 cavalry "somewhere east of Greensburg" who are advancing on this great industrial center. Radio will enable them to keep in touch.

Maj. Bazley's squadron of reserve fliers and the 324th Reserve unit, all Pittsburgh pilots, will join with the regular Army fliers in the sham battle. The group is expected to make several flights in formation over Pittsburgh.

SCHRAMM CITES CHILD MENACE

The new Juvenile Court will have to take immediate action to prevent the detention of dependent children in institutions maintained for children who have committed offenses, Gustav L. Schramm, candidate for the court, said in addresses last night. He said:

"Seventy-five per cent of the cases that come before the Juvenile Court here are those of children who have committed no offense at all, but have either lost their parents or have parents too poor to keep them.

"If these children are kept in places supposed to be reserved for delinquent youngsters, the effect is as bad as putting them in jail. They not only may develop vicious habits by such association. They also come to feel inferior, because they are treated as having committed some offense."

Schramm spoke before the Knoxville Voters' League, Knoxville Junior High School; at Italian Hall, Baldwin road, and before the Keystone Civic League in Baxter Junior High School, Brushton avenue.

Rehearsals of Mendelssohn Choir will be resumed Monday at 7:30 p. m. at Carnegie Music Hall rehearsal room. Rhearsals will be conducted by Ernest Lunt, director.

The choir's first concert of the season, to feature Pierne's "Children's Crusade," will be given at Carnegie Music Hall, November 21.

PARTY APPEAL BY LAWRENCE

Scoring the Republican party, County Democratic Chairman David L. Lawrence urged Democratic registration on city and county voters in an address last night.

Republican policies are a road to ruin, Lawrence said, declaring:

"As a national institution, the record reveals the Republican party as the party that spawned a regiment of millionaires and a nation of economic slaves.

"As a state institution, the Republican party fought for continuation of child labor, for poor house against old age pensions, for the sweatshop operator and utility racketeer.

"In city and county the record reveals scandal after scandal, skyrocketing taxes, unpunished election frauds, and home owners penalized for failure to pay taxes while millions of dollars worth of utility-owned property goes untaxed."

COUNTY DROPS EXPO BUILDERS

Between 75 and 100 South Park employes were notified yesterday that they had been dropped from the county payroll.

These employes are among those engaged some weeks ago for temporary work during construction of the fair grounds and buildings.

Most of the men dropped had been hired as laborers and utility men for a 60-day term.

Wrecks His House Gunning for Mouse

ALBEMARLE, N. C., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—The next time J. W. Ivey seeks to kill a mouse he'll use a more simple method.

A rodent had been annoying Ivey, so he got a gun and went after it.

He shot the leg off a table in his living room; shot a hole in the floor; wrecked a floor lamp and did $18 damage to his radio.

In the end, a two-cent trap dispatched the mouse.

If you long for a better skin pause and reason

A CLEAR, healthy skin is an evidence of good health. Ample red-blood-cells, filled with hemo-glo-bin (skin and tissue purifier), are necessary for good health and a clear skin.

When the hemo-glo-bin is right you feel it . . . your looks show it. But when sickness, colds or the "flu," tear down this vital substance, or you neglect your diet, you get weak, tire easily, lose your appetite. Your resistance is lowered—and your complexion usually shows it.

And here is the reason: When the hemo-glo-bin is reduced, the billions of tiny cells in the body are not getting sufficient oxygen, because it is the hemo-glo-bin that takes the oxygen, breathed into the lungs, to all parts of the body—even to the skin. Also, it throws off the poisonous carbon dioxide.

To clear your skin of pimples and get back that old-time vigor with color in your cheeks, take S.S.S. Tonic just before meals. No need to change your diet . . . S.S.S. will not interfere with any other medicine you may be taking. You will be happy with the beneficial results obtained.

S.S.S. is a proven Tonic . . . by experience for over 100 years . . . and by modern medical research. Start taking it today. At all drug stores in two convenient sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Veteran Describes Tasks Of Deep Sea Divers

By LIEUT. JIM HAYS

Recovering Live Torpedo Risky Job

By LIEUT. JIM HAYS
PART FOUR.

When a torpedo dives to the bottom, and burrows deep into the mud, a long time is required to find it, and a lot of work to get at it. You may search several acres of the bottom before you locate it.

Finally you will come across some lumps of mud that have been scattered about by the torpedo's propellers, and somewhere in that neighborhood you'll find a slight hump in the mud. That's right over your torpedo. And you'll tell the diving boat to send you a hose.

If you aren't careful in washing the torpedo out of its grave, you're apt to find yourself buried with it. Crilley nearly lost his life that way.

He went after a torpedo that had nose-dived in a hundred feet of water and burrowed 22 feet into the mud. Instead of washing the mud away from a wide area around the torpedo, he tried to save time taking a short-cut, and started washing out a small hole straight downward.

He had worked himself well down toward his goal when the deep hole he was in collapsed like the walls of a well. He already had about all the pressure he could stand, before the mud caved in on him, and the added weight nearly finished him off.

He was in a bad way. If they had tried to pull him out of his submarine grave by his life-line, it would undoubtedly have parted, or pulled his suit apart.

He got himself out of the jam by using his head. He managed to get the hose pointed upward, and slowly washed and worked his way out of the grave. As soon as he was clear, he went after the torpedo again, but you can bet he finished that job the slow and safe way.

A Twist in Time

My only troubles seem to have been with propellers. I have already mentioned one of them...the time the torpedo's propellers nearly stripped my gears. I had another and somewhat similar scare.

The torpedoboat Morris fouled a steel cable in her propeller outside of Newport. They towed her in to the torpedo station and I was sent down to take a look at the jammed propeller and see what the tangle amounted to.

I worked some loose cable out of her propeller blades without much trouble, but there were several turns of it jammed between the hub and the stuffing box.

So, I came up to get some tools to work with. Upon descending again, I was just about to wedge myself in between two of the propeller blades, to get at the tight turns of cable and chisel the strands away, when, without any warning, the propeller began to turn.

At that moment I happened to have my hands on two of the blades, and gave myself a quick thrust backwards. Luckily, the propeller turned the right way.

The Morris had been steaming ahead when she picked up the cable, and her engine was set to go ahead. So I was washed away from her instead of being sucked in. If she had been in reverse when the cable jammed the propeller, I'd have been . . . hamburger.

What I told them on deck when I came up isn't fit to print. The whole engineering force of the Morris was questioned, and everyone swore he hadn't touched the throttle.

We found out what had caused the propeller to turn, though. A leaking valve had built up steam pressure in the triple-expansion engine, without anyone realizing it, and I had weakened the wire jam around the propeller just enough to allow the accumulated steam to turn the engine over.

You know what happens when you stick an inquisitive finger into a humming electric fan!

Try sticking your head and shoulders into the propeller of a torpedoboat some time. You'll never regret it.

A Torpedo in Earnest

I've told you several stories about recovering torpedoes that had sunk in firing practice on the torpedo range. They were harmless enough, except that their compressed air tanks weren't always empty when they went down to the bottom. There was always the danger that their propellers might start spinning while you were working on them, making a line fast to haul them to the surface.

Their war heads, the pointed noses containing TNT, had been removed for practice purposes, and carbide substituted for the explosive.

Only once did I have to recover a "live" torpedo . . . one with the explosive in it, and all set to go off. But once in a lifetime is enough.

The torpedo boat Vesuvius had been out in Long Island Sound, outside Newport, on patrol duty. Cruising back and forth between Point Judith and Nantucket, she was in a pretty heavy seaway, and rolling badly.

Through negligence on the part of one of her torpedomen, one of the torpedoes in her deck tubes was not properly secured, and on one of her heavy rolls she spilled the loose torpedo into the sea.

Not a practise torpedo, you understand, but one with enough TNT in its nose to sink a battleship.

Its air flask was fully charged, and the starting lever, automatically tripped when the torpedo slid out of its tube, started its propellers spinning.

It hit the water with a splash, and was off like a seagoing rocket. I should say "boomerang," for its rudder was set at a right angle, and the crazy thing ran circles around the Vesuvius, missing her by inches.

A Wild Chase

There was a wild scramble aboard the Vesuvius, trying to dodge her own circling torpedo, but with lively backing and filling and dodging, she managed to keep out of its way until its air power was spent and it stopped.

Then the Vesuvius got a line on the torpedo and towed it into Newport, where it was allowed to sink gently to the bottom of the harbor. And I was sent down to take the stinger out of it.

Now even a war-head torpedo is harmless enough until the firing pin in its nose is set. It must be cocked, like a gun. Until the pin is set, you can hit the pointed nose with a hammer, and it won't go off. (Do you care to try it?)

There's a small fan-shaped propeller in the war head. As the torpedo speeds through the sea, a stream of water plays on the fan, causing it to revolve . . . just as there's a fan on the nose of an aerial bomb that spins and sets the firing pin, after the bomb has left the airplane and starts down toward its target.

So, a torpedo is harmless as a baby on board ship. But when it has traveled a hundred yards through the sea . . . look out!

This torpedo that had chased the Vesuvius all over Long Island Sound, and had been towed into Newport and lowered to the bottom of the bay, was all set.

Before I went down to get it, I was taken aboard the Vesuvius and shown a similar torpedo, and was made to spin the cocking propeller by hand, to set the firing pin, and then spin it backward and uncock it again, a number of times, so that I could do it expertly under water.

It was simple enough, in broad daylight . . . as simple as cocking and uncocking a loaded pistol . . . but I remembered that a good many fatal accidents had happened in that very simple operation.

So it seemed to me a right ticklish undertaking, to uncock a torpedo with enough TNT in it to blow a ship out of the sea, and to do it in the dim light and mud of the bottom of the bay.

The slightest slip . . . the slightest pressure on the firing pin, and an earthquake would have shaken the town of Newport, and a geyser that would have put Old Faithful to shame would have sprung up out of the harbor. It seems unnecessary to add that . . . it didn't go off.

WHISKY PRICE SOARS TO $8

The price of whisky for "medicinal" purposes has advanced nearly 50 per cent in the past few months, and the two most popular brands bring $8 a quart in drug stores, it was announced today in New York. These brands are owned by the National Distillers Corporation.

Pittsburgh wholesale druggists declare the prices have jumped from $49.50 a case two months ago to $72.50—the current price.

In New York, it was predicted that higher prices would follow, as the distillers are not anxious to sell their limited supply of old whiskies, preferring to save them to blend after prohibition repeal.

Good Canadian rye is selling at $38 to $40 a case—a $5 gain since the last two states voted repeal. It was pointed out that high prices would perpetuate the bootlegger of Canadian liquor.

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES TO RACE 132 MILES ...AT RECORD SPEED!

● RIGHT—SHE TAKES NO CHANCES with her nerves. "I've tried most of the cigarette brands," says Mrs. Burnham, "but for a long time I have been an enthusiastic Camel fan. Camels, being so much milder, never ruffle or disturb my nerves, so I smoke them all I want."

● "I'LL NEVER BE a racing champion, but I love the water. When I'm out on a boat I have a keen zest for smoking. To avoid getting my nerves upset and fidgety I smoke Camels. They keep right on tasting good even when I go in for smoking in a big way."

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand. Isn't this the most important statement ever made by a cigarette manufacturer? Consider what it means. Change to Camels and learn that it's the tobacco that counts!

How are Your Nerves?

STEADY SMOKERS TURN TO CAMELS

Garden Wedding

In a grotto of pine and spruce in the gardens of the Manchester summer home of the Robert Hoffstetters, of Erie, yesterday afternoon, Marion Louise Claus, daughter of A. A. Claus, of Erie, became Mrs. Charles Chalfant Shenk. Mr. Shenk is a son of Mrs. Wilbur Shenk, of Pittsburgh.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, William Claus, wore white satin in the princess mode having leg o' mutton sleeves and a train. Her veil of rose point lace cascaded from a cap of the lace.

A family heirloom, a brooch of pearls, was her only ornament. She carried gardenias and lilies of the valley, bordered with mignon roses.

Mrs. Alan Shenk, of Pittsburgh, matron of honor, and Virginia Claus, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, wore gowns of velvet net with Mrs. Shenk in apple green and Virginia in blue.

Velvet Gowns

They wore turbans of net trimmed with nose veils and velvet bows, and they carried talisman rose and bronze snapdragons.

Alan Shenk was his brother's best man, and Wilbur Shenk, Charles J. Palmer and William Forster were ushers.

After a Canadian honeymoon, the Shenks will be at home in Erie.

HAND-CROCHETED ACCESSORIES REFLECT THE ENSEMBLE IDEA

YOUR FIRST street dress, which you'll wear without benefit of a coat, and later on under its protecting warmth, will be of fine woolen, sporty-looking tweed, or the infinitely practical knit. But, whichever your choice may be, every dress needs carefully chosen accessories to complete the ensemble.

WOMEN ARE unanimous in their praise. No two dresses need ever look alike. Not even the same dress in the hands of different women! What one will do with accessories will change its appearance completely. In other words, uniformity is on its way out.

AT OUR American coutoure openings the great numbers of hand-made accessories shown were impressive. If you browse about accessory departments in fine shops you'll discover hat-glove-and-bag, and scarf-and-bag ensembles that are perfectly fascinating. But the largest number will prove to be scarf-and-hat sets.

ONE FAMOUS designer shows four very successful hand-crocheted versions, which are sketched. One, a soldier's fatigue cap at the top extreme right, comes in an unusual open-work stitch. The scarf matches in color as well as design. Another, top left, has a distinctly African feeling, notably in the way the crown is draped and in its height. The scarf has one predominating barbaric splash of color. The center model, knitted to fit the head closely and worn quite a bit to one side, has a soft front drape in the crown. A matching collar goes with this. Here's a suggestion for rejuvenating your last year's low-necked woolen, for this collar buttons high on the throat in this season's accepted manner. Necklines are up, you know!

THE LAST hat, in the lower right-hand corner, has the most intricate treatment of all. The crown is raised a bit in the back by a fold that narrows down in front, with the fashionable front movement. The fold is then rolled over carelessly. The designer repeated the hat stitch in the section of the scarf that goes about the throat. Each tie end has a bright color contrast and different stitch.

* * *

BESIDES THEIR fashion importance, these smart accessories express our increasing appreciation of fine hand work—an instinct which seemed temporarily "shelved" during the past depression days. It's an encouraging sign to see it brought to life again.

NEW SOAP DISCOVERY...

cuts dishwashing time in half!

Dissolves instantly. Dishes rinse sparkling clean. No wiping necessary.

NO more precious time lost waiting for suds with slow dissolving chips and flakes. No more soapy specks to stick to silverware and glasses. No more tiresome dishwiping.

An utterly different kind of soap has been discovered—Super Suds. Not chips, flakes nor powder, but soap in the form of tiny, hollow beads much thinner than the thinnest flake. The first soap ever made to dissolve instantly, completely.

Now Super Suds ends dishwiping forever

See how this instant dissolving soap cuts your dishwashing time in half. No stirring, coaxing, heating water extra hot to get soap to dissolve. Instead you get a flood of active, cleansing suds instantly. Grease melts away like magic. Dishes rinse absolutely clear. No soapy film. You don't even need to wipe them. Just leave them to drain dry—brilliant, sparkling.

And what an aid to lovely, soft, white hands! It's hot water that reddens and roughens hands—but Super Suds gives loads of foaming suds instantly without steaming hot water. Within a week you'll see the difference in your hands.

Hours saved. Dollars saved

Cut dishwashing time in half. Spend a longer evening with your family.

Notice too how Super Suds cuts down your soap bills. The big red package (kitchen size) costs but ten cents. And every soap bead dissolves completely—no waste. Get a package of Super Suds today.

SPIRIT AND PITCHING KEEP GIANTS AHEAD IN RACE

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Giants' Fighting Spirit.
Pitcher Starts at 37.
Smartness Hurts Gomez.
Sisler May Aid Rajah.
Mat Vet Pans Moderns.
Demand Moody Ranking.

TERRYS AT THEIR BEST UNDER PRESSURE

GREAT PITCHING AND catching and an unsurpassed infield defense are voted generally to be the factors that have kept the Giants in first place since June 10, but a huge item not to be overlooked is fighting and hustling spirit, the will to win. That quality has been in evidence all season, but never more strongly than in the second game yesterday. Beaten twice in succession by the Pirates, and facing the possibility of a double defeat in one afternoon that might have had a serious effect on their pennant prospects, the New Yorkers, far from losing heart, came out for the closing half of the twin bill with a show of fight and determination that probably would have conquered any opposition.

Bill Terry

And in spite of a score that was heavily in their favor from the first inning they continued to fight as hard all the way to the finish as if they had been protecting a one-run lead. Bill Terry evidently had given them a real pep talk between games. The outstanding feature of Terry's brilliant success as a manager is the way he keeps all of his players on their toes and fighting like tigers. The Giants may be beaten at times, but they won't fold up.

BREAKS INTO BIG LEAGUES AT AGE OF 37

As far as major league service is concerned, most pitchers are done long before they are 37 years old, but here we find a hurler just breaking into the big show at that age. Alexander Boyd McColl, recently brought up from Chattanooga by Washington, and who held the White Sox to four hits and one run in his first start yesterday and won his own game with his bat, was 37 on his last birthday.

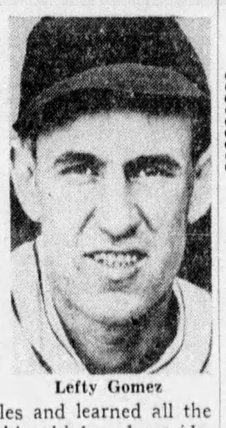
McColl started pitching professionaly in 1915 and the passing years have carried him to Portsmouth, Cleveland Spiders, South Bend, Memphis, Toledo, St. Joseph, Minneapolis, Dallas, Akron, Mobile, Nashville, Knoxville, Chattanooga and now Washington. His arm went wrong in 1926 but an operation removed a small section of bone and the following season he was right back on the job.

DI MAGGIO TO REPRESENT CLEAR PROFIT

If Joe Di Maggio, hero of that hitting streak of 61 consecutive games on the coast this summer, is sold to a major league club eventually at the expected fancy price, it will be another case of clear gain for the San Francisco club. Like Tony Lazzeri and Frank Crosetti, Joe is a product of the San Francisco sand lots and didn't cost the Seal owners a dime.

LEFTY GOMEZ REGRETS GETTING SMART

The most bitterly disappointed member of the Yankees is Lefty Gomez. And it's not because of his club's pennant failure, but because of his own pitching record. Gomez won 21 games in 1931 and 24 last year. He wanted to equal Wes Ferrell's record of winning 20 or more victories in each of his first four seasons. But Lefty has only 13 to his credit for 1933 and admits he will be lucky to finish with more than 15.



Lefty Gomez

As to the reason for his slump, Gomez confided to Frank Graham that it was all because he got too smart. Somewhat like the natural fighter who tries to be clever in the ring and gets a licking. Lefty says he was a better pitcher when he was just a dumb cluck. He was burning up the league with his fast ball, but he didn't want to be merely a thrower. He wanted to be a smart pitcher. So he developed a curve, studied the batters, figured all the angles and learned all the answers about working the corners, pitching high and outside, and low and inside. And now he can't get anybody out.

SISLER MAY COACH BROWNS FOR HORNSBY

The men who led the two major leagues in batting while both were playing for St. Louis clubs in 1920 and again in 1922 may be working together in that city next year. Friends of George Sisler are urging that he be brought back to the big show as coach of the Browns under Rogers Hornsby, and both Hornsby and Owner Phil Ball are said to favor the proposal.

A lot of young timber is being rounded up for the 1934 Browns in the hope of finding some live ones. A recruit coming in for much publicity is Charles Childress, an all-around athlete from Teachers College at Warrensburg, Mo. He is a basketball and football star and is pronounced almost a second Jim Thorpe as a track and field performer. It sounds great, but St. Louis fans are wondering if he can play baseball.

MODERN WRESTLING PAINS BULL MONTANA

The hippodrome rough stuff that is pulled on the mat these days under the name of wrestling brings a complaint from even Bull Montana, California's distinguished world traveler, movie figure, philosopher and ex-husband. Bull admits that he has committed plenty of it himself, but says that when he is a mere spectator the exhibitions offend his cultured taste.

Montana pronounced it "a dirty shame to call that stuff rasslin'," and when reminded that the fans appeared to enjoy it he remarked, "Aw, they don't want real rasslin'." Like all the other old-timers who were brought up to respect a man who knows a good hold and how to apply it, Bull admires the present-day grappler's ability to rough-house, but despises his lack of technique.

FANS SPECULATE ON MRS. MOODY'S RANKING

Of course there is no doubt that Helen Jacobs, as is due a champion, will be given No. 1 position when the women tennis players of the country are ranked for 1933. But many fans are wondering if the U. S. L. T. A. will have nerve enough to rank Mrs. Helen Wills Moody at No. 2. It never has been done. Since 1923, her first year in the East, Mrs. Moody has been No. 1 or "not ranked, insufficient data." On the latter score the powers had to take a lot of razzing from both sides. It was in 1926, when the first Helen underwent an operation but played in this country afterward.

Helen Jacobs

One crowd charged that they were afraid to rank Mrs. Moody below No. 1, and the other criticized the ranking committee for not putting her at No. 1 because she was obviously the best woman player in the country whether she competed or not. This year the Jacobs adherents will not be satisfied with any verdict of "not ranked, insufficient data," for Mrs. Moody, but will demand that the latter be ranked definitely behind the champion.

By JESS CARVER

If Howard Harpster can draw two cards, the right cards, he'll be setting right pretty in this, his first year in the big league of college football and Carnegie Tech will be setting pretty along with him, despite as rigorous a schedule as any Tech eleven ever has been called upon to face.

Harp needs a center and a backfield. Pretty tough needs, too. The center situation is going to be the softest to clear up, and in a way, the filling of the pivot position will depend a great deal on the way in which the backfield problem is solved.

The young mentor, returning to his alma mater after a successful engagement at Geneva, to succeed the Wally Steffen-Bob Waddell coaching regime, found himself possessed of two aces at the go in a set of crackerjack ends, Capt. Colin Stewart and Libbus Lewis. There isn't a college eleven in the district with a better pair of terminals than these lads. They are especially formidable defensive pieces.

LINE PROSPECTS BRIGHT

He has a quartet of strong guards in the veterans Heinzer, Burzio and Dreshar and in young Johnny Anderson. He'll be well off for the tackles, with Croft, Doloway, Forsman and Nutter battling for the starting jobs, with any two of the four likely to come crashing through in the final test.

A year ago the Tech freshmen

CUBS DEFEAT BRAVES, GAIN ON LEADERS

Associated Press.

While the Pirates and Giants were splitting their double bill yesterday, the Chicago Cubs crept half a game closer by knocking off the Boston Braves 4 to 3, behind young Bud Tinning, who pitched a three-hit shutout up to the final inning.

The St. Louis Cardinals did even better, beating the Phillies twice, 3-1 and 8-7. After taking the opener on Bill Hallahan's three-hit flinging.

Brooklyn and Cincinnati divided a meaningless doubleheader, the Dodgers taking the first 7-3, and the Reds pounding out 21 hits to reach their high scoring mark of the season with an 18-to-8 victory in the second.

The American League situation remained unchanged with Washington 9½ games ahead of the New York Yankees. Alex McColl, 37-year-old Senator rookie, pitched four-hit ball in his first major league start and batted in two runs in a 3-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox. Lou Gehrig did all the Yankee scoring in the Yanks' 3-2 triumph over the St. Louis Browns, hitting his twenty-fourth homer among other blows.

Jimmy Foxx came through with his forty-first homer and Lefty Grove hurled effectively in the clinches for his twentieth victory of the season as the Philadelphia Athletes downed Cleveland 5 to 4.

BASEBALL COMEDY

—By NICK ALTROCK—

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—You can tell from Cornelius McGillicuddy's name he wasn't born in Greece, so he can't be called a Spartan. But when it comes to running a ball team, Connie is just as hard-boiled as running a Greek restaurant.

Nick Altrock

Back in 1914, he held a real estate auction and sold a $100,000 infield under the hammer. And then it took him a dozen years to file his way out of the second division.

About a year ago, Connie went pack-peddling again and sold three of his crown jewels to the White Sox. They shined pretty bright at first, but the Chisox are now looking for flaws in these gems.

And now Connie has laid off George Earnshaw for the rest of the year. It's just an old story for Mack. When he don't like the way things are going he just waves his scorecard to the executioner to drop the guillotine. No monkey business for Cornelius. When he's through with you, you're canned on the spot and your label is dated. And you won't see Philadelphia again except as a tourist.

BOOKS LEAD IN SERIES

The Book and Dormont nines are booked to clash in the second game of the City League championship series at Olympia Park this evening. Heinie Boll and his aggregation took the Dormonters into camp by an 8-to-2 score last evening at Dormont and a victory for Books this evening will wind up the series and give them the title. Cochet to Oppose Tilden as Amateur

PARIS, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Henri Cochet, France's leading tennis star, today announced that he would play against Big Bill Tilden, American professional, in a Franco-American series in Paris starting September 22, but that he would not accept money for his play. Cochet said:

"I'll play against Tilden, but as an amateur. My share of the gate receipts will be split between the Sports Writers' Pension Fund and the Lyons Football Club. I'm a businessman, and I'll remain a businessman."

Cochet's decision will raise a nice question within the French Tennis Federation, which bans matches between amateurs and professionals at which gate receipts are charged. As the rule now stands, Cochet, if he goes through with his plans, automatically will be disqualified as an amateur.

BARNEY, TONY PASS TEST

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Barney Ross, Chicago's lightweight champion, and Tony Canzoneri, the veteran he whipped for the title, appeared at the New York State Athletic Commission offices today for the customary pre-battle examination, and were declared in "perfect condition" for their 15-round return match at the Polo Grounds next Tuesday night.

Ross weighed 138 pounds and Canzoneri 137, and Dr. Joseph Sheridan pronounced them "two of the finest physical specimens I have ever examined." They responded normally to all medical tests.

The fighters returned to their camps after chatting peaceably together. Both have several days' work ahead to get under the class weight limit of 135 pounds by Tuesday.

Tim Mara, promoting the show that seems certain to draw a gate in excess of $100,000, announced today that the bouts would not be broadcast.

St. Vincent Faces Eight-Game Card

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 7.—The St. Vincent College football squad has begun training for the 1933 season with 16 veterans in camp.

A total of 48 candidates is working out at the college field under direction of Head Coach Gene Edwards. Harry Johnson, star back of the 1932 season, injured an ankle in baseball and has not yet reported. The schedule:

October 1, St. Bonaventure, at Olean, N. Y.; October 7, Clarion Teachers, at Clarion; October 14, St. Mary's College, at home; October 21, Canisius, at home; October 27, Geneva, at Beaver Falls; November 1, New River State, at Montgomery, W. Va.; November 18, La Salle, at home; November 27, Davis-Elkins, at home.

MONONGAHELA WINS

MONESSEN, Pa., Sept. 7.—The Monongahela polo team defeated the Charleroi Veterans in a night game here last night, 4 to 2. The game was part of the dedication ceremonies of the new local athletic field.

BUCS, LEADERS DIVIDE IN DUAL BILL

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The Giants were not altogether out of the woods today, but it won't be long now before they see the pennant clearing, provided they continue to show the fighting spirit which has characterized their play since the bell rang last April. Many a ball club after dropping a contest similar to the first battle of yesterday at Forbes Field would have folded up like an opera hat in the nightcap, but the league leaders came back fighting and as a result they are still six and one-half games ahead of the Pirates, and one day nearer the curtain.

ENEMY PITCHERS STRONG

Gibson's tossers today were hopeful that they would still cop the flag. They will throw everything at the Giants in the two remaining games and will not let up in their driving tactics until the curtain falls. Gibby points out that the Giants are on a perilous journey, what with the Reds, the Cards and the Cubs to be met in succession. The Reds may not be so tough, but the Giants certainly will get little quarter at the home of the Bruins and Redbirds.

The majority opinion, nonetheless, opines the New Yorkers are just about "in." Terry's pitchers are a bit too formidable to allow for any serious slumps on the part of the Polo Grounders; at least that is the story for five months of the season and it isn't likely to change in the last three weeks of the race.

SWIFT'S HIT WINS

The Pirates won the first clash of yesterday in 10 torrid innings, Bill Swift brought the game to a close in the tenth with two out when he singled to center to score Vaughan. The score was 6 to 5. Ralph Birkhofer made his home debut in the second game, but the southpaw was shelled off the hill in a hurry in the first round. The Giants amassed a big lead and carried on to 9 to 1 success.

The early scrap was a slugging duel with the Pirates making 16 and the Giants 15 hits. Steve Swetonic and Fred Fitzsimmons, starting pitchers, were both hammered off the hill. Chagnon and Swift followed Swetonic to the mound, the latter being credited with the victory. Bell did the relief trick for the Giants.

The Giants rushed over four runs in the sixth to take a three-run lead, but the Pirates pecked away and tied up the game in the eighth, largely on trick triples by Traynor and Vaughan. Arky opened the tenth with a single and was on second with two out when Swift singled to score him.

GIBSON EJECTED

The Giants had scored two runs off Birkofer in the first inning and the bases were loaded with one out when Chagnon came to the rubber again. Mancuso greeted the righthander with a double to left that cleaned the bases. This hit really put the game on the ice and the remaining eight rounds were quite drab.

Manager Gibson was banished from the opening clash by Umpire Magerkurth. The Pirate boss and the big official have had several bad tilts this season. Gibby was peeved because the umpire in question reversed Umpire Pfirman on a decision at first base. The reversal gave the Giants a run in the sixth. Later Gibson broke out on a decision on a bunted ball and he was ejected.

GALIDO, LALLY LEAD IN GOLF SEMI-FINALS

KAUFFMANN, BOSCHERT 3 DOWN

By TOM BIRKS

Mike Galido, the defending champion, held a lead of 3 up over Marty Boschert, and Francis Lally led Carl Kauffmann, six times winner of the title, by the same margin as they teed off this afternoon for the last half of their 36-hole semi-final round matches in the annual city golf championships at Schenley Park.

Galido shot the best golf of the morning round. He matched par on the out nine with a 33 and shaded perfect figures by a stroke with a 32 in, but Boschert, too, was on his game, and the champion had a lead of only 1 up after 16 holes. Unable to win with pars, Galido fired birdie 3's at Boschert on the seventeenth and eighteenth holes, and won both to go to lunch 3 up.

Kauffmann led Lally, 1 up, after nine holes, but Francis had his fine short game working to perfection on the in nine and romped out in front by reeling off five successive 3's, of which four were winners. Lally's medal score was 68, despite a 6 on the par-4 eighteenth hole, and Kauffmann had a 71.

The 36-hole final will be played tomorrow. The morning round cards:

LALLY-KAUFFMANN

Lally	454	433	441	—35
Kauffmann	443	534	342	—34
In—
Lally	433	333	446	—33—68
Kauffmann	444	443	545	—37—71

Galido	343	423	444	—33
Boschert	445	553	334	—34
In—
Galido	443	533	433	—32—65
Boschert	344	343	444	—33—67

SECOND DIVISION

N. Palley defeated A. Feador, 2 and 1.
J. Tierney defeated J. Patrisco, 4 and 3.

THIRD DIVISION

R. Barr defeated J. Wissenbaugh, 3 and 2.
K. Maier defeated H. Lesnick, 5 and 4.

FOURTH DIVISION

L. Schwartz defeated A. Fineman, 2 and 1.
Ed Miller defeated A. G. Josephson, 1 up.

R. C. and J. C. King, with a score of 69, won low net honors yesterday in the annual father-and-son tournament at the Field Club. S. A. and S. C. Johnston won low gross honors with an 85.

eleven exhibited a pip of a center in Ken Spencer, who stamped himself as the most promising of all Carnegie snapper-backs. Spencer, however, caught Harpster's eye as a backfield man, and was tried at the outside back position during spring training. He went along well enough, but experienced, and still is experiencing some difficulty in adjusting his stride. He is fast enough, but so far hasn't learned how to run as a backfield man. And it's an important lesson he must learn.

If Spencer remains in the backfield, the center job likely will go to Steve Trbovich, Midland husky with Jerry O'Toole, who has played both fullback and center in the past, or Boyd, a reformed guard in the running. Trbovich has the call at present, mainly because he figures to be a more formidable gent backing up the Tech six-men defensive line.

CARLSON SHIFTED

If chunky Bill Carlson were a better passer, the task of constructing a backfield would not be causing Howdy so much worry. At Geneva, where he had a great left-handed heaver in Art Grahame and an even greater receiver in Cliff Aultman, stars of the first water, Harpster built his offensive setup for southpaw heaving. Carlson is a left-hander, all right, but his mitts are too small. Hence, it will be necessary to turn the job over to the capable but diminutive Angelo (Jack Gurin) Bevivino, who has seen considerable service at the position in the past, or experiment with Chuck Spisak and Steve Terbus.

Bill Spisak, a lulu of a ball toter last year until he suffered an arm injury, looks like the money for the ball-carrying halfback job. Carlson, Spencer, Bowser, Sanford and Graham are battling it out for the other.

MIHM AT FULLBACK

With a year of varsity experience behind him, big Joe Mihn, who kicks the scales around at considerably better than 220, looms as the best bet at fullback, although he's being pressed close for the honor by Johnny Sayles and husky Elmer Vorderburg, in playing trim for the first time during his four years at Tech.

The 1932 co-captains George Kavel and Hooks Sample, Tony Kebe, Red Jones, Jerry Seigal, Harry McCurdy and Stu Deuger, Tom Coulter, Jack Croissant and Tony Ostrosky, all of whom have completed their varsity days, are being, and will continue to be, sadly and badly missed.

The schedule, calling for an opening test with Pop Warner's Temple eleven, and follows with games against Xavier, Notre Dame, Wash.-Jeff, Purdue, Michigan State, Georgetown, New York University and Pitt, is a heartbreaker.

Don Lovewell, former Tech guard stars, and Harp's assistant at Geneva, is aiding the Howitzer as first assistant and line coach. He built a pip of a forward wall at Geneva with less material than he has at Tech, and the first line of defense he is erecting for the Plaid will be something at which to point, but hardly to go running into.

GRAYS TRY MUSHBALL

The Homestead Grays go in for mushball tonight, when they meet the McKees Rocks Hunting and Fishing Club team in an echibition game at the Homestead Athletic Field in conjunction with a game between the Homestead Millers and the Manhattan Club for the Homestead District League title. The doubleheader will get under way at 6.15 o'clock.

SPORT VIGNETTES

The switch from Camp Hamilton, near Windber, to the regular home practice field for the Pitt gridders will mark the first time in 20 years that the Panthers have not put in a couple of weeks of pre-season conditioning in their mountain retreat . . . The camp was given to Pitt by the late A. R. Hamilton, who sponsored the sports boom of the locals, and improvements have been made from time to time until now it is the most modern training plant of its kind in the land . . . An attempt to improve the practice field by laying a new surface of sod proved disastrous, for the recent rains raised havoc with it and left it unfit for training purposes.

Phil Goldstein, the former fighter, now manager, is throwing a chili supper for his sports scribes friends in his eating establishment Saturday night . . . Says it will be hot stuff—the chili . . . Incidentally, Phil is plenty smart in keeping his middleweight champion, Al Quail, in the amateur ranks until times get better in the money field . . . Al at least fights often as an amateur and is gaining in experience, while his less fortunate professional brothers are going stale from lack of competition.

Have to hand it to the Pirates for fighting right down to the last ditch . . . With even their best friends ready to concede the pennant to the Giants when Bill Terry's club hit town on Tuesday, our home defenders went right out and beat them in the first two of the five-game series, and it took a five-run handicap in the first inning of the third game to stop them . . . And they'll take a lot of beating in the remaining two games . . . If they're going to be beaten out for the flag, they're not taking it lying down, at any rate . . . They're showing the old life we used to show at dear old Catawba—or was it Sewanee?

Catawba, by the way, is coming in for a lot of notoriety these days . . . The Pittsburgh pro footballers started it by going into camp with two dozen players and a guy from Catawba . . . Now everybody wants to know where Catawba is.—HARRY KECK.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE NICKEL AND THE PENNY—The nickel, weighing 77.16 grains, consists of 75 per cent copper, while the cent, weighing 48 grains, is composed of 95 per cent copper. Thus the nickel with 57.87 grains of copper, contains more of this metal than the cent (45.6 grains.) COMMANDER OF THE REX—When the liner Rex steamed past Ambrose Light in the early morning of August 16 and hoisted the blue ribbon for the fastest crossing ever made, her proud commander, Francesco Tarabotto, musingly recalled his first crossing, 36 years ago. On that occasion, the old "Monte Moro" crossed from Genoa to Sabine Pass, Tex., in a tedious voyage of 54 days. The Rex established a new record for the Atlantic crossing in four days, 13 hours, 58 minutes.

TOMORROW: OLD FUNNY FACE

OUIMET'S GOLF

By FRANCIS OUIMET

Former National Amateur and Open Golf Champion

The country's leading amateur golfers already are gathering at the Kenwood Country Club, Cincinnati, to tune up for next week's National amateur championship.

It is one of the finest fields ever assembled and the youngsters and veterans alike are keen to get their muscles loosened up and to sharpen their eyes for a crack at the trophy now in the possession of C. Ross Somerville, sturdy Canadian defender.

Francis Ouimet

Scanning the qualifying lists of more than 150, one comes upon the best group of young golfers the game has produced, sprinkled with a score or so of veterans, hardened under tournament fire, any one of whom might come through to win. There can be no outstanding favorite in this particular tournament, although Johnny Goodman, 23-year-old star, may be the one to wade through. Fresh from his victory in the National Open, where he conquered the game's best professionals, and apparently sufficiently rested, Johnny seems to be back in tip-top form. His 139 back on August 8 in the sectional qualifying play was far and away the best in the Omaha district and compared very favorably with scores throughout the country.

COLLEGE STARS IN FIELD

More noticeably this year than ever before, is the group of young college stars who are serious threats.

Charley Seaver, of Stanford, in particular, is one to be reckoned with. A former football player, this barrel-chested husky is fit to cope with the strenucus trial of a week of championship golf over the long and hilly Kenwood course. The course measures something like 6,800 yards.

Then there is Johnny Fischer, Michigan alumnus, intercollegiate champion in 1932, when he defeated Billy Howell, Washington and Lee youngster, who, unfortunately, failed in his sectional trial. The lanky Fischer is a cool, deliberate shotmaker and as daring as they come, and his chances are abetted by the fact that his home is just across the Ohio River from the Kenwood course.

The southpaw, Sidney Noyes, of Yale; Lawson Little, Stanford ace, and Johnny Parker, also of Yale, all are fresh off the campus and know their golf. Another threat is young Tommy Goodwin, 1932 Metropolitan junior champ, now at the University of Miami. However, a real dark horse is a virtually unknown freshman down at the University of New Mexico. Still in his teens, this bespectacled youth, Vernon Stewart, has taken the Southwestern amateur title three successive years.

MORE COLLEGIANS YEARLY

That comparatively short list gives only an idea of the young stars who are coming up and who have to hurry back to their classrooms when the tournament is over. The output of college golfers seems to grow larger each year, and it may not be long before we shall see them take over the golfing domain.

Then there is the set of youngsters, college men and former caddies, who have been qualifying for the past few years, only to buckle up when the going gets too strenuous. It wouldn't be a bit surprising to see George Dunlap, Gene Homans, Maurice McCarthy, Jr., Gus Moreland, Charley Kocsis or Frank Dolp come through the field to victory. Stout-hearted and finished players, all of them, and with a little luck it looks as if one of them might start a new cycle of champions that promises to dominate the links in the future.

With all of these youngsters, the list here and there reveals the names of a few steady veterans, H. Chandler Egan, winner in 1904 and 1905; Chick Evans, 1916 champion; Jess Sweetser, the young veteran; Max Marston, 1923 winner, and Jesse Guilford all will try to stop the horde of youngsters who so seriously threaten the supremacy of the more well-known standbys.

Between Rounds

Another amateur boxing show will be held at St. Colman's School, Turtle Creek, next Tuesday evening.

The Willow Club, of Lawrenceville, has entered a full team of boxers in the Golden Gloves tournament to be held at Hickey Park, Millvale, the last three nights of next week.

An amateur boxing show will be held for the benefit of the St. John's football team two weeks from tonight. Nine bouts are planned, with four A. M. A. champions on the card.

Jacquette Elverillo, the boxer, who fought several times around here, meets Harry Dublinsky in a 10-round bout in Cicero, Ill., tomorrow night.

The card will be completed today for the Moose Butch-Antol Korsis and Alabama Kid-Anson Green double windup show at Hickey Park, Millvale, Monday night.

COAST MARK BROKEN

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 7.—(INS.)—The Pacific Coast Baseball League today had a new attendance record. A total of 24,695 persons saw Los Angeles derest Hollywood, 2 to 0, to tie for the leadership in the race. The Angels were leading, 5 to 4, at the end of the fourth inning when the second game was called off because of fog.

Titans Sign Martin As Assistant Coach

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Sept. 7.—Coach John Lawther's Westminster College football team, which opened its training camp here on Labor Day, has only two and one-half weeks in which to prepare for the opening of the 1933 season.

The Titan card includes eight games, as follows:

September 23, Slippery Rock, at home; October 7, St. Bonaventure, at Olean, N. Y.; October 13, Geneva, at Beaver Falls (night); October 21, Thiel, at Greenville; October 27, Duquesne, at Pittsburgh (night); November 4, Grove City, at New Castle; November 11, Muskigum, at home; November 18, Case, at home.

AUSSIE NETTER IN TOURNEY SPOTLIGHT

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Vivian McGrath, the smiling young man from Australia, and his double-barreled backhand are playing to standing room in the national men's tennis championships.

Billed strictly as a novelty, the only living player who hits a tennis ball from the port side with both hands grasping the racquet, the lad from "down under" has proved far more than that. He is an exceptionally fine tennis player, and that two-fisted shot of his now has the experts doing mental and literary cartwheels.

Mercer Beasley, veteran tennis coach, and his star pupil, Frankie Parker, who was defeated by Keith Gledhill yesterday, have been experimenting with the stroke, and it would not be surprising to see Parker using it next summer.

Clifford Sutter, of New Orleans, was scheduled to play the sensational young Australian today.

The "big four" of the tournament, Ellsworth Vines, Jr., and Frank Shields of this country; Fred Perry, of England, and Jack Crawford, of Australia, all had come through rather easily up to this point, but each was promised pretty stiff opposition today.

LOCAL DOUBLES PLAY OPENS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The third annual Allegheny Country Club turf court invitation men's doubles tennis tourney gets under way this afternoon on the rectangles of the Sewickley Heights organization. Seven first-round fracases comprise today's bill.

The pairings and schedule:

TODAY

4:30 p. m.—John D. Beatty and William R. Spindler vs. Martin Moore and John K. Deasy; Ralph Bald and Robert Grier vs. George D. Henderson and V. K. Glidden; William L. O'Loughlin and Walter Arensberg vs. William Doolittle and Pearce Wright.

FRIDAY

Byes—Dr. David L. O'Loughlin and Dr. John L. O'Loughlin; Stanley Brown and Thomas A. Robinson; W. McCook Reed and Joseph H. Holmes, Jr.; Herbert M. Rinehart and Don Mattern; James C. Morehead and W. G. Costin, Jr.; Robert C. Schmertz and King G. Moore; E. A. Knoche and Carlton E. Hughes.

One-Armed Golfers Play in Tourney

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Forty-four golfers who had left an arm on one of Britain's far-flung battle fronts came from all parts of the United Kingdom today to participate in the first championship for one-armed golfers.

N. R. Thomson, of Glasgow, led the field at the halfway mark with an 82, a score beyond the normal achievement of many a player with two arms. In second place, with an 85, was J. P. A. Renwick, of Hawick, who left his right arm on Menin road before Ypres in 1918.

Pop Warner Optimistic Over Grid Outlook

By GLENN S. WARNER

Member All-American Board of Football.

Has the American game of football passed its peak? This is the question which a great many people have been asking as the gridiron season is about to open. A good answer to that question was the attendance at the recent football game at Soldier Field, Chicago, between all-star teams representing the Pacific Coast, coached by Howard Jones, and the Middle West, coached by Dick Hanley.

With no alumni or student support, such as colleges and schools have, and although the game was staged out of season when there is little talk of football going on, the contest filled the great Chicago Stadium and thousands of would-be spectators were unable to get into the field.

Pop Warner

This indicates conclusively, the interest and drawing power which this great American fall sport should demonstrate in the oncoming weeks. Gate receipts have fallen off during the depression due to the fact that fewer people could afford to attend the games, just as receipts from professional baseball games and theaters have decreased, but I believe that the decrease in gate receipts from football games has been less than from most other athletic attractions. One reason for the immense crowd at the Chicago all-star game was the low admission price charged, and the business managements of colleges and universities have all announced a considerable reduction in ticket prices for this fall. This is a step in the right direction and will make it possible for a much greater number of fans to attend the games.

CROWDS TO ATTEND

There are some skeptics who have been saying that many of the big college stadiums never will be filled again. Such talk is silly. We read of crowds of 100,000 attending soccer and rugby football games in England and very few Americans will admit that either of those forms of football are as interesting and spectacular as our own college game. Low admission charges partly account for the large crowds which attend the game abroad. No, our stadiums are not too large and this will be proved when we have normal conditions because football interest is increasing every year.

This depression has been the means of again bringing together many old rivals who had ceased to play each other because of some petty differences which date back, in some cases, many years. The reason is that the overhead expenses of some of the larger universities are such that with the decreases in revenue during the past two years they are forced to play a greater number of hard games and with opponents such as will attract the crowds. This need for more revenue has caused old differences to be forgotten and we will see such old traditional competitors as Cornell and Syracuse and Pennsylvania and Princeton getting together. Much harder schedules have been arranged for the coming season throughout the country.

STRONG TEAMS CERTAIN

Regarding the outlook for the season, I do not know of any section of the country which does not expect to have stronger teams than ever before. Out on the Pacific Coast the University of Southern California looks to be even stronger than last year, and again seems to have the best chance to capture the honors in that section. Bill Ingram, at California, has a wealth of fine material and expects to do great things. Stanford has better material than in recent years, and the coaches there claim it is just as good as at U. S. C. and California. Washington and Washington State look to be stronger than heretofore, and St. Marys and Santa Clara, two non-Conference teams, have just as good chances as any of the teams mentioned.

It should be a great season out on the coast, and from my talks with coaches from other sections of the country, there seems to be just as much optimism, especially in the Middle West and in the South.

I have been so much out of touch with eastern football, and at this early stage of my new work in the East, I know less about conditions here than in other parts of the country. From what I have heard, I believe that a better brand of football will be played in this section, where the grand old game originated, than has been the case in many seasons.

Tomorrow, Howard Jones, Southern California coach.

One for Ripley— Home Run Caught

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(INS.)—Yes, Mr. Ripley, a ball was caught, but still it counted as a home run.

Names in the Sports News

TUFFY GRIFFITHS, veteran heavyweight of Chicago, was floored for nine and five and was helpless when his seconds threw in the towel in the fourth round of a bout with TONY SHUCCO in Boston last night.

TRADING DULL, LIST FAIRLY STEADY

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Financial markets drifted lazily over placid waters today, with trading interest at the lowest ebb in the past several months.

Stocks, while dull and unusually inert, held to a fairly steady course most of the day, and only occasional flurries broke the monotony of generally silent tickers. There was little news which might have influenced the trend. The Cuban situation seemingly was not an important market factor. Both bearish and bullish operators were inclined to remain on the sidelines while waiting for developments in the economic field. Grains and cotton moved narrowly. Bonds did little. The dollar was mildly irregular in foreign exchange transactions.

Union Pacific shares got back some 2 points of their yesterday's loss. Southern Pacific dropped 2, but Santa Fe, New York Central and Baltimore and Ohio were slightly higher. Small gains were recorded by American Telephone, Woolworth, United States Smelting, Allied Chemical, Sears Roebuck and Chrysler. Standard Oil of New Jersey and Seaboard Oil were up ¼ and 2 points, respectively. United States Steel, Western Union, American Can, Deere, Montgomery Ward, General Motors and a number of others were a bit lower. Most of the alcohols were easy.

Financial observers were frankly puzzled over the recent actions of the securities markets. Proponents of currency inflation as a means of further aiding the recovery program believe that something will be done on this matter soon. At the same time, some analysts point out that any immediate inflationary move is not likely because of the administration's refunding plans which are understood to contemplate the conversion of a sizeable portion of the huge short-term debt as well as part of the outstanding liberty loans.

Some students of commodities and securities movements claim that the rise of the price level since April 19, the day on which the United States left the gold standard, has not been excessive, but has merely followed the rise in world gold prices. In April, for instance, bar gold was selling in London at the American equivalent to $21.26 an ounce. This rate has advanced slowly to the present price of nearly $30. In the same period, it is pointed out, the December delivery of wheat in Chicago has risen from 65 cents to around 88 cents a bushel. The dollar, it is added, is now valued at slightly more than 69 cents in terms of the French gold franc.

GRAINS GIVEN SETBACKS

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Setbacks in grain values took place early today after an irregular start. New buying lacked volume, and traders gave attention to estimates that feeding of wheat to livestock this season would amount to only 65,000,000 bushels, compared with 138,000,000 in 1932. Opening at ½ cent decline to ⅜ cent advance, wheat later underwent a general sag. Corn started unchanged to ¼ off, and subsequently showed losses all around.

Rallies at times lifted wheat to about even with yesterday's finish, but for the most part the trade appeared to be maintaining a waiting attitude.

CODE TANGLE RETARDING STEEL

New business in finished steel is being held back pending a final adjustment of market practices to the conditions imposed the iron and steel code, Iron Age, in its weekly review of the industry, reports.

While base prices for the remainder of the current quarter have all been announced, there have been numerous changes in extras and other terms which are temporarily a source of confusion to both sellers and buyers.

PIG IRON GAINS

Meanwhile, pig iron producers have reaffirmed their current prices for the fourth quarter and are booking more new business relatively than steel makers. Pig iron shipments continue to move to foundries at a good rate, only moderately lower than that of August and July, but pig iron output is commencing to reflect decreased requirements for steelmaking. On September 1 only 98 blast furnaces were active, compared with 106 on August 1.

Production of pig iron last month was 1,833,394 tons, or 59,142 tons a day, compared with 1,792,452 tons, or 57,821 tons daily, in July.

RATE HERE SLOWS

Steel works operations continue to decline, although at a slower rate than recently. The national average of 45 per cent of capacity compares with 47 per cent last week, 50 per cent a fortnight ago and 53 per cent three weeks ago. The Pittsburgh rate during the past week has declined from 38 to 34 per cent. The Chicago average has receded from 46 to 43 per cent. The Eastern Pennsylvania figure from 40 to 38 per cent. The valley rate from 50 to 46 per cent, and the Southern average from 54 to 46 per cent. The Wheeling district continues to operate at the high rate of 80 per cent, while production in the Cleveland-Lorain area has increased from 50 to 54 per cent.

Scrap prices are weaker with heavy melting grade off 50 cents at Pittsburgh and 25 cents at Chicago. The Iron Age composite price for scrap has declined from $12 to $11.75 a ton. The pig iron and finished steel composites are unchanged at $16.71 a ton, and 1.979 cents a pound, respectively.

BUSINESS
Investment Counsel—
Racket or Boon
To Thrifty?
—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

This is the second of a series of articles discussing the rise of investment counselors, their value to investors, and the weaknesses and abuses threatening this form of investment service.

SOUND INVESTMENT is based on certain principles plus a thorough knowledge of finance and of the types of business in which money is placed. The average investor is not acquainted with these principles. If he does know them he is likely to forget about them at times when they are of the greatest importance. Necessity usually has compelled him to devote his entire thought to a single business. This has made it impossible for him to secure a wide background in general finance and in types of business not related to the one in which he is directly engaged.

This state of affairs justifies the existence of the capable and honest investment counselor. The events of recent years further emphasize his importance. They also indicate that the requisite knowledge, experience and integrity are not to be found in any great percentage of men.

Many Security Houses Offer Counsel Service

DURING THE PAST few years many of the houses actively engaged in the sale of securities have started to offer investment counsel service to their clients. The new securities act has placed such a heavy responsibility on investment bankers that a large share of them have discontinued this practice. But some firms and individuals still attempt to advise clients and also to sell them securities.

Such a combination of activities obviously is ridiculous. If I wanted to sell a house to you, you would not take my statement that it is the most desirable property in Pittsburgh at its face value. You would make allowances for the fact that I have a personal interest in the matter, that I am, quite naturally, putting my personal interest ahead of yours.

In spite of this, investors for years have been accepting advice on investments from the same men who are making a living selling them stocks and bonds. The conflict of interest and attitude makes it practically impossible for advice from such a source to be unbiased.

Advice and Sales Must Be Separate

A FUNDAMENTAL consideration must be that an investment counselor must not be engaged in the sale of stocks and bonds. He must not have any interest in any securities being offered to the public. He must not be connected with any stock market operations.

Advice and distribution are two phases of investment activity which must be distinct. When they are combined there is a constant temptation for the counselor to modify his recommendations to favor his own sales and speculative activities. The worthwhile investment counselor must have nothing to sell except service.

ICKES REJECTS TEXAS OIL PLEA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Prompt steps to cope with a threatened delay in turning off the free-flowing oil fawcet were taken today by Secretary Ickes in denying an appeal from Texas, the largest producing state, to hold up federal control.

To back up his telegraphic action, Ickes, the oil administrator, sent as his personal representative, J. Howard Marshall, assistant to the Attorney General, to Austin to talk conditions over with the Texas Railroad Commission and seek co-operation.

The commission, in a telegram to Ickes, asked in substance that Texas be temporarily exempted from the limitation of 975,200 barrels daily production assigned the state last week by the government in allocating national output under the petroleum industry's NRA trade code to meet market demands.

South Penn Oil Company announces a 10 cent advance in Corning grade crude oil in Buckeye Pipe Lines making the new price $1.05 per barrel.

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 7.—Magnolia Petroleum Company, subsidiary of Socony-Vacuum Corporation, has met the crude oil price advances posted by Humble Oil and Refining Company in Texas on the Gulf Coast and Southern Louisiana. In Northern Louisiana the company increased its quotations 15 cents a barrel, meeting the Standard Oil Company of Louisiana advance. In Oklahoma, the company has increased its quotations to those posted by Continental Oil Company.

Gulf Pipe Line Company and Shell Petroleum Corporation have met the price increases of Humble Oil in Texas and on the Gulf Coast. Gulf Refining Company advanced Northern Louisiana prices 15 cents a barrel and Arkansas 10 cents a barrel.

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—After two days of readjustment upward virtually all midcontinent crude oil purchasing companies today had settled on new price schedules.

A top of 94 cents a barrel was offered for the best petroleum of the Conroe Field, in Texas. The East Texas rate was 75 cents flat. The high for Oklahoma and Kansas was 87 cents.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Gasoline prices at all stations of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana were increased half a cent a gallon today. The increase will also take effect in tank wagon prices.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and its subsidiary, Standard Oil of Louisiana, will advance the tank wagon and service station price of gasoline 1 cent per gallon tomorrow.

Marts Resume Saturday Trading

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The New York Stock Exchange, the Pittsburgh Exchange, as well as all the other principal security and commodity exchanges of the country will be open for business as usual on Saturday.

Following the boom markets of late July the "Big Board" voted to eliminate the short Saturday sessions during the remainder of summer.

Grain Exchange Code Nears Completion

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7. — Efforts of the Farm Adjustment Administration to write important safeguards into a code of fair competition for the grain exchanges neared a climax today, with Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Farm Administrator George N. Peek optimistic over the outlook.

Negotiations with officials of the Chicago Board of Trade and other exchanges have been conducted almost continuously since the spectacular collapse of wheat prices several weeks ago.

A final draft, which grain men declared represents their "utmost concession," is being formulated. It embodies a number of restrictions intended to reduce speculative excesses.

Forbes
Bankers and Washington
Get Together!
—By B. C. FORBES—

TO GET things pushing ahead, business needs money.

BUSINESS MEN themselves declare they need credit.

Bankers declare that what business men need is not credit, but capital.

Since it is not in the function of bankers to provide capital, that lets them out, they reason and proclaim.

Mr. Forbes

THE NEW federal securities act bristles with so many penalties for issuers of capital, directors, underwriters, distributors, that needed funds are not being supplied by investors, for the reason that new offerings are not being made.

Thus, the door has been shut to the investment larder.

And bankers vehemently assert that, while they are eager to find strictly safe commercial loans for their super-abundant funds, they have neither the disposition nor the legal right to accede to the kind of demands being made upon them by borrowers.

THUS SOMETHING approaching a deadlock has arisen. This is a serious, a critical, a difficult situation.

BANKERS — RIGHTLY — claim that they owe their first duty to their depositors, that they have no right to jeopardize the soundness of their institutions, that they must scrupulously avoid undue risks.

That attitude is punctiliously correct.

But when one refuses to follow a certain line of action, one must always consider the consequences. If banks and bankers cannot furnish industry and commerce with credit facilities urgently demanded, what is the likely alternative?

PENTHOUSE

A New and Thrilling Story of Mystery and Romance

By ARTHUR SOMERS ROCHE

things his heart orders him to do, even if fulfilling those orders breaks the heart that gives them. I'm Jackson Durant, attorney for the underworld when I might still have been the highly respected corporation lawyer. But I like it. I like the troubles of bootleggers and chorus girls and head waiters. To me they're human. To me they mean life. And now, Layton, the defense rests and would like a spot of Scotch. What's in the morning papers?"

"Nothing much, sir." The valet sighed hopelessly. "Do you really need a drink, sir?"

Reluctantly Layton prepared the drink. Durant swallowed deeply. The fog that had shrouded his brain seemed magically to lift, and the fingers that deposited the glass on the table no longer trembled. He glanced over the morning papers, shrugged indifferently, put them down and opened his mail. He smiled as he tossed the letters aside. Gwennie Curtis' engagement had been announced in yesterday's papers, yet no engraved announcement had yet been sent to him. Jimmy Montague was being married today, and yet no invitation to the wedding had belatedly been delivered here. A year ago, Jimmy and he had been pals. Today, he wouldn't be an usher when Jimmy walked up the aisle.

A Costly Victory

He climbed from bed and strolled to the French windows that opened upon the porch. The sun shone brightly and he could see the shipping in the East River; he marveled at the tracery of the Queensborough Bridge. The city hadn't changed in the past year, and the people hadn't changed, but he apparently had. He wasn't respectable. When all the papers, and the people in the streets cried for the blood of Tony Gazotti, Jackson Durant had volunteered to defend the alleged murderer.

Men cut him at his clubs; women were not at home when he called. The spirit of lynch-law ruled the city. Gazotti was a gangster and per se ought to be executed. But Jackson Durant had noticed a flaw in the newspaper evidence against the gangster. Out of purely intellectual curiosity he had called upon Gazotti and offered to defend him. He had won the most brilliant victory in the annals of the criminal courts of New York. The jury had freed Gazotti. But all of Durant's friends thought it heinous that a member of "The Mallet and The Course" should become an underworld lawyer.

For Gazotti had been Public Enemy Number One, and it was an affront of decency that a man of Jackson Durant's standing should defend him when he didn't have to. That was the point: Gazotti had money enough to engage his own lawyers, but after a talk with Durant he had dismissed his former attorneys. And the whole world knew that Durant had defended the criminal because he wanted to. That seemed to class him with the underworld.

Those people of whom he thought highly enough to explain the intellectual delight he got from riddling the case against Gazotti merely shrugged their shoulders and turned away.. There were other ways of stimulating the mind, weren't there? Why didn't Durant go in for one of those other ways? Why had he found it necessary to defy the opinion of his friends?

Engagement Broken

And Sue Leonard, lovely little Sue, had weakened before the gale of opinion. She had told Durant that their engagement would end unless he dropped his new career. She was unreasonable and he became angry; they parted and only last week he had read of her engagement to Tom Siddall. He had been drinking heavily since Sue broke the engagement, but his mind had been almost blank since he read of her impending marriage to Siddall. But—a man must go and a woman must follow, and if she doesn't follow—there is always Scotch.

He turned back from the penthouse porch to face the excited Layton.

"The afternoon paper just came in, sir," he gasped.

"Did I sleep that late?" chuckled Durant.

"Mr. Siddall's been arrested," said the valet. "Murder!"

As though an eraser had been drawn across his face, lassitude and dullness disappeared from Durant's features. He snatched the paper from the valet's hand. He read the screaming headlines that announced that Mimi Montagne had been murdered, and that Thomas H. Siddall, of Siddall and Company, had been arrested and charged with the crime.

He sat down on his bed; his hand automatically reached for the half-empty glass of Scotch. Then he set the glass down untouched and read the newspaper story.

Mimi Montagne, night-club singer and well-known character on Broadway, was murdered early this morning during a party in the penthouse apartment of James Crelliman, Broadway big shot. Thomas Siddall, wealthy broker, whose engagement to Miss Sue Leonard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Leonard, of Park avenue, was announced only last week, was accused of the crime.

According to the tale told by Crelliman and guests at the party, Miss Montagne and Siddall left the others in the living room and went out on the porch. A shot was heard and the guests rushed out to find Miss Montague shot through the heart and Siddall standing over her with a gun in his hand. All of the party were taken to police headquarters, where they are still detained for questioning.

There followed an account of the spectacular career of Mimi Montagne and an enumeration of the clubs to which young Siddall belonged.

Visited by Girl

Durant put the paper down slowly. It was absurd. Tommy Siddall wasn't the kind to kill anyone. Of course, he might have been drinking, but even then it was ridiculous to think that the mild-mannered youth could be guilty of such a crime.

His brows furrowed. Recollection of gossip came back to him. Last year young Siddall had been giving the Montagne girl a play. Since them, so his Broadway friends told him, she had become intimate with Jim Crelliman. Now what the devil was Siddall doing at a party given by Crelliman? When a man became engaged to a girl like Sue Leonard, the time had come for him to drop the gayeties of bachelorhood. Granting that Siddall's presence at Crelliman's party had been innocent enough—up to the moment of the killing—it was rotten bad taste.

Durant read the account again. It certainly was a skeleton, no details, nothing on which a man's imagination could work. It looked bad. To be found there, standing over the murdered girl—not pretty. He whistled softly, walked into the bathroom and stepped under a shower.

He had almost finished shaving when Layton knocked on the door.

"Miss Leonard is calling on you, sir," said the valet.

"She's been crying; she's in a terrible state. I told her you'd be out at once. It's about Mr. Siddall, sir."

"I gathered as much," said Durant. "I'll finish shaving."

But for a few minutes he stared at himself while the lather dried on his face. Suc! Coming to him! For help. It was a bit ironical. He lifted the razor to his face.

Asks His Aid

Servants always exaggerate, Durant had long ago decided. A lesser mentality can rarely see things clearly. Sue was not in a terrible state; unquestionably she had been weeping recently, but she was calm enough when Durant entered the living room.

She rose instantly at his entrance and advanced toward him, holding out her hand. "Jack, you've heard about Tommy? You'll help me, won't you?"

She had said exactly the right thing; she had assumed that the man to whom she had once been engaged would be loyal to her in distress. Durant took her hand and led her to a couch. For a moment she was silent, and her lip trembled. Then, quite unexpectedly, she smiled.

"I see you've taken out the Rembrandt," she said.

He smiled at her. "Even though you come here no more, the apartment must have nothing in it of which you don't approve," he told her.

"But I do approve. Only it didn't belong in this room."

"I seem vaguely to have heard the statement before," he said.

"Stubborn man. As long as I—as long as we—well, when it no longer mattered because I wouldn't know, you took it out of the room."

"You won a victory that you didn't know about," he said.

"And an unimportant one, wasn't it?"

He shook his head. "The victory was unimportant, perhaps, but the battle wasn't. It let me see your blue eyes sparkle; it let me hear your voice become disdainful."

A Different Sue

"Those weren't pleasant things," she protested.

"Yes, they were. They showed the will of you, Sue. But you didn't come to gloat over that triumph, did you?"

"I came to let you gloat over your triumph," she said.

"Mine?"

She rose from the couch and walked to the wide windows. She stared out upon the scene that had drawn Durant's gaze a little while ago.

"Remember how we used to sit here and wonder where the little boats were going, and who was on them and what they were thinking of. Once you said that we were like a god and goddess looking down over our domain, superior, aloft, aloof. Remember?"

"You know," he said.

"And the last time I was here I begged you to be the Jack Durant I'd always known. I pleaded with you—remember?—not to give up your honored career that lay ahead of you. I told you that while you might win the applause of Broadway, you'd forfeit the esteem of your friends. Was I right?"

Over her shoulder she glanced at him. Something had happened to Sue in the last six months; half a year ago she had been lovely, a china blonde, a Bouguereau figurine. But now she was mature. Her face was as young and her figure as slim, but there was some subtle changes from within that affected the external. Then, she had been a beautiful girl; now, she was a lovely woman.

"You were right," he said.

"And yet how wrong I was," she said. "For if you had listened to me you wouldn't be now the man, the only man, who can save Tom. And Jack, you'll do it."

Her last sentence was not a question. It was an affirmation, yet her voice held the faintest trace of uneasiness.

"Of course I will," he assured her.

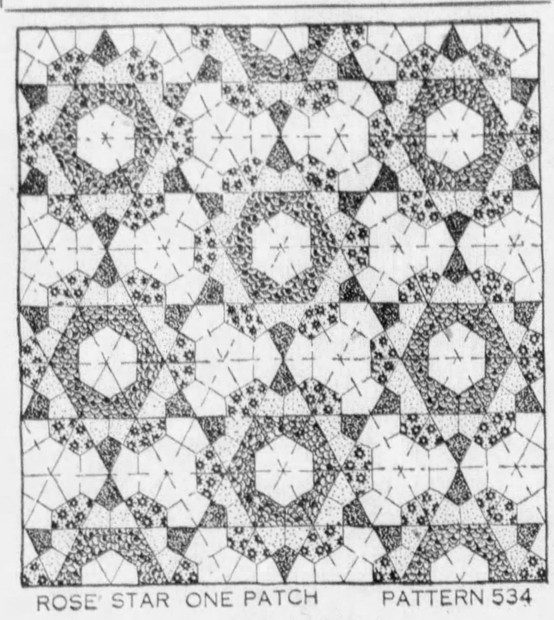
ONE-PATCH QUILT



ROSE STAR ONE PATCH PATTERN 534

By LAURA WHEELER

This is the famous Laura Wheeler one-patch quilt. Simple to cut—simple to make—exquisite when finished—it has all the ideal qualities that the quiltmaker looks for in a quilt. In design it resembles the rose windows of the old cathedrals, and it takes no imagination to visualize it if carried out in similar beautiful colors. As shown, each block is made of the same materials. However, it is very handsome when made of scraps of material with each rose star in different colors. In the pattern, color suggestions for doing this and for making the quilt as shown are given.

Pattern 534 comes to you with complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

The Junior Patrol Mail Box

We hope you like all your teachers, fellows.

Teachers are just like your mother and father in wanting to be kind to you and in wanting you to be successful. No fooling, fellows, all teachers would like to have every one of their pupils get good grades.

Help your teacher all you can, fellows. She wants to help you, we're sure, and it's up to every good Junior Patrol member to help others—and especially those who want to help you.

And, fellows, here's another good idea—don't be late or absent from school. Great men watch the clock on their way to work—not after they get to the office.

School for children is just like work or the office for grownups.

Now here's a letter from Lucille J. Cooper, of 8 Gaskell street, Mt. Washington, who writes:

"I am a girl 12 years old and am much interested in the Junior Patrol. I attend the Whittier School and belong to the safety organization of the school. I enjoy the Junior Patrol Mail Box very much. I also enjoy the pictures other children draw. I am going to start a Junior Patrol here on Mt. Washington."

Laura Neslanik, of 153 Auriles street, Duquesne, Pa., writes:

"I am sending in a Junior Patrol pledge. I want to start a club, but it seems that all my friends are on a vacation so later I will talk it over with them. I read the Junior Patrol Mail Box every day and I like it very much. I play a piano accordion and have played it at many doings. I was not at your picnic as I was not a member. I hope that I can get a lot of members together and then we can elect our captain. I close now promising to do my best in all ways and hoping to hear from you all in the near future."

Robert Craft, of 3352 McNeil place, writes that he has been elected captain of the Herron Hill Chapter and that they will start holding meetings as soon as school starts. They are going to discuss their winter activities.

Lois Morrison, of Sandy Creek, Pa., has her pin again.

Dante Liberatore, of 452 Pearl street, wants to go to a meeting of the Junior Patrol, but doesn't know who'll start a patrol in that neighborhood.

John Schevchik, of 451 Merchant street, Ambridge, Pa., sends in an original cartoon of kids going happily back to school. He reads the comic strip and the Mail Box every day.

Capt. Christine Elinsky, of 1615 Lewis street, North Braddock, writes:

"I am captain of our Junior Patrol Club in North Braddock. I sent in about 12 members and I am sending in more. I would like to have the orange and black armband. We have a nice clubhouse and the meetings are two times a week. We are putting on a show in a few days and it is one cent for everybody that comes to see it. I appreciated Marion Swart's letter in the paper and I wrote to her. She said so many nice things that I wish I could see her in person. We had so much time for meetings before, but now we will have to cut down because of school. I can't write letters good, but still I wish this letter would be in the paper, and I hope that I will receive letters from different captains."

Verneida M. Frisch, of 629 Sixth avenue, Coraopolis, writes that she would like to play the piano on the Junior Patrol program.

Don't Cross Your Bridge Players

One set of American players had a lovely outing in a back room in England. The walls were soundproof, the keyholes were stagnant, the air was putrid and the sunlight was neatly wrapped up in fog.

The contest lasted two weeks. The players kept alive on cracked ice and suspended animation. No matter how far gone a bridge player is you can always bring him back to life by fanning him with a spade ace.

At the finish of the match, which was won by the hermetically sealed Yanks, the two teams staggered out of the boiler room to change their sox. Everybody should learn bridge and reduce their laundry bills.

There has been a decided change in gambling. When the steamboat Charles chugged down the Mississippi they prided themselves on their personal appearances. They wore flowing ties, dapper trousers and nippy collars and cuffs. The modern contract bridger is an artist who cares nothing for clothes. He plays long distance tournaments in burlap bags, lets his hair grow and concentrates on his cards.

Against our lawyer's advice, we are forced to concede that contract bridge is a game of skill. And most of the skill is directed to the science of avoiding fresh air.

Fresh air not only is difficult to breathe but oxygen tarnishes the silver trophy.

And the sensible citizen will not learn any game you cannot play with the windows open. Contract bridge is merely slow asphyxiation plus important but suffocating information from your partner.

Of all our tormenting pastimes we give the duke to contract. It's a simple game of conventions, rules and by-laws. The bidding is accumulative and the playing mechanical. If you are thinking of learning the game this winter we advise you to put on the switch and learn snow-snoeing in Canada. It is not only more difficult but the snapshots enlarge beautifully.

Walking into a room where four people are playing bridge is like disturbing bats in an old barn. They flutter around the room, uttering distressed squeaks and are blinded by the glow from the smoky end of a wet cigar.

Honesty First!

The Prime Requisite of Candidates for Public Office Is That They Shall Be Trustworthy.

The last week has been a humiliating one for the people of this community.

One shameful charge after another, involving the honesty of public officials, has been made by responsible persons.

Judge Thomas M. Marshall has accused Maj. J. Clyde Miller and H. H. Dixon, county directors of the poor, and a deceased colleague, Dr. W. L. Henderson, of having personally profited to the amount of $40,831 in a real estate transaction in which they acted as the county's agents, and has ordered the two officials and the Henderson estate to make restitution.

Leo A. Riordan, an investigator for the county, has charged Donald C. Anderson, secretary of the Allegheny County Bar Association's committee which is investigating unethical practices in the legal profession, with having appropriated to his own use more than $2,000 that the county granted for other purposes.

Dr. Vincent L. Marino, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for coroner, charges Coroner W. J. McGregor with misappropriation of public funds, and gives dates, amounts and other details. An audit of the coroner's office has brought to light that many of the records are missing.

Judgment must be suspended, of course, until the truth or falsity of the charges has been passed upon by the courts.

The accusations should, however, arouse the citizens to appreciation of the importance of honesty in public officials. Honesty should be the first requisite of candidates for office.

Too many voters, it is feared, are influenced by qualities that are comparatively unimportant. What difference does it make if a candidate is a good fellow, congenial and kind to the poor, if he is a rascal and will rob the taxpayers if he has a chance and thinks he can get away with it?

The prudent citizen will put affability and pleasant personality near the bottom of the list of qualities desirable in public officials. He will place honesty at the head of the list and vote for no one whose fitness to be entrusted with the people's money is open to question.

Slow in Coming

The City and County Are Not Among the Municipalities Thus Far Favored With NRA Funds.

The National Recovery Administration has allotted $1,397,896,138, or more than one-third of its $3,300,000,000 fund for public works.

We note that contracts making $79,500,000 of federal funds available for the construction of a bridge and tunnel in New York City have just been signed.

Pittsburgh, too, has a bridge and tunnel project—the rebuilding of the Wabash span and tube to make them suitable for vehicular traffic—in which we could use federal funds very conveniently.

The administration's housing division has given tentative approval to model housing projects in a number of cities, but Pittsburgh is not in the list.

While it seems probable that the flood reservoirs will be built as a national project, NRA funds are slow in coming to Pittsburgh and Allegheny County for strictly municipal improvements. And the question arises if we have done all that could or should be done in presenting our claims for consideration.

High Grade Pilots

The Federal Government Should Help to Develop Them in the Commercial Air Transport Lines.

British sea power has been built upon the theory expressed by one of her greatest admirals, Lord Fisher, when he said "men fight, not ships."

American air-power, if it is to attain supremacy, must be built upon the theory that "pilots fly, not planes."

The federal government acts upon this sound theory in maintaining a high standard for the pilots who fly the colors over land and sea.

The federal government should act upon the same theory by maintaining a high standard for the pilots who fly the mails and passengers.

It was the intention of Congress that this should be done, when it passed the air commerce act, and entrusted to the Secretary of Commerce its enforcement.

The air line pilots already developed under this policy could not fly the transport planes night and day, up and down the federal airways, with such success if they did not represent the professional character of the pilots' vocation by measuring up to the high intellectual and physical standards which have been fixed by law for this profession.

When Congress fixed these standards and entrusted to a cabinet officer their maintenance, it accurately evaluated the importance of the pilots' profession in the development of American air transport and in the strengthening of a vital arm of our organized reserves.

Many of the air line pilots today hold commissions in the organized reserves. All of them should hold such commissions.

And the federal government should not only encourage the air line pilots to join the air reserves, but should require the air transport industry to co-operate with the government in making the relationship between air transport and the national defense as close as is the relationship between the merchant marine and the Navy.

This the air transport industry can do and should be required to do, if the federal government will carry out the policy established by Congress in the air commerce act.

To carry out this policy, the federal government should continue to maintain the federal airways without cost to the industry and to fulfill the contracts it has made for transporting the mails by air. These contracts were entered into in good faith by the air transport industry and the government should carry out these contracts and KEEP THE FAITH.

In this way the federal government can develop the highest grade and the highest paid transport pilots in the world.

These pilots will make America supreme in air commerce and aid their comrades of the air who fly the colors, in making America supreme in air power against the day of national defense.

Isn't It So?

A wise man changes his opinion occasionally, but somehow the simpleton who can change a thousand dollar bill always commands more respect.

After a man has been married a year he doesn't get brain fag from thinking of his wife when she is spending a few weeks in the country.

There is something radically wrong with the woman who is unable to find an excuse for a good old-fashioned cry at least once in a while.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—A wandering minstrel blowing sourly on a clarinet for luncheon diners across the way at Chatham Walk has somehow touched off a stinging nostalgia for the old-time musical act of vaudeville. The curtain went up on an ordinary room scene. Remember?

There were musical instruments all about on scattered stands with silver-starred plush throws. A straight man in velveteen smoking jacket opens with: "I put an ad in the paper for a smart boy to work around the studio. It's 8 o'clock and no answer." A sudden knock. "Ah, there he is now."

A Negro with puff sleeves, big red bow tie, Carnera shoes and a fright wig dashes in and rushes right out again. Then is coaxed back, removes eight vests and lights a cigar that begins to expel stars like a Roman candle. His first imitation is on a clarinet of a cow choking on an apple.

Then he plucks a whisk broom out of his hip pocket and brushes the ashes off his cigar. He makes a violin sound like an old church organ and say "Howdy folks!" The wind-up of the turn is an imitation of a minstrel band coming down the main street playing "The Turkish Patrol." A riot of noise.

Hap Ward, old time showman, has a stunt that produces the same effect on every actor of importance. He mentions seeing them in their current play. He thought it a wow but murmurs solicitously: "But, say, what was the matter with you?" Invariably the answers run from "just received bad news" to "I was almost blind with a splitting headache." Invariably an alibi.

And Charlie Russell, the western painter, used to tell of an old desert miner who traipsed into Tucson without his partner of 50 years. He was thoroughly disgusted. John J. McGraw, despite rigid discipline when commanding the Giants, often relaxed into brief clutches of humor. There was the time when the team was training in Marlin he received a letter from a Texas longhorn who wanted to join. McGraw wrote him gravely Matthewson had slowed up, Chief Myers was in a terrific slump and that Donlin was not doing so well, so there was a chance. He wound up asking the job seeker what position he could play. In a few days came back a letter enclosing a photograph with the information: "I play a stooping position."

In earlier days there was a big league umpire named Byron. He had a poetic way of trilling decisions. A musical "stree-ike" and a cadent "Yo-o-o are out!" After a time the ribbers began referring to him as Lord Byron. There was one double-header game where the fans were particularly annoying. They jeered at the umpire's walk, his voice, and imitated other mannerisms. Finally Lord Byron could stand it no longer, and, jerking off his mask rushed to the stands shouting: "Cut out them personalities!" There was a sudden silence and finally a booming voice high up and far back screamed: "Cut out them grammar!"

But the prize mot of the Polo Grounds was when a very cocky player was retained as a substitute batter. He was a show-off. One day when a one-sided game reached the last half of the ninth inning, with a score 14 to 1, he was sent in to bat. The umpire glanced at him, removed his cap, and yelled: "Huttin now batting—for exercise!"

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

College days. What are those college days going to do to the future bosses of America?

ARE THEY GOING TO TURN 'EM INTO SQUARE-SHOOTING CITIZENS, OR SUPERCILIOUS SNOBS?

How come? Am I starting a campaign against colleges? No, I'm not. I'm 100 per cent for colleges. I wish every youngster could get the right kind of a college education. But—

I HAVE A LOT OF MEAN SUSPICIONS ABOUT SOME OF THE THINGS THAT GO ON IN OUR COLLEGES.

And here's a college grad who agrees with me. The following communication is his. It's about fraternities—and plenty more. It's an arraignment of our whole college system which says one G. McC. IS DOOMING DEMOCRACY!

If you can bear to face some red hot facts, read his letter—then tell this column what you think about it.

Dear Elsie:

Can you—or any other honest-to-goodness, grown up American—tell me what our educational system is doing, all cluttered up in its upper branches, so-called, with the Greek letter sorority and fraternity bunk?

Yes; I am a university graduate. University of Nebraska, 1911. And you'd think that in 20 years or so I would have got over feeling all hot and bothered about it. I hated the system in school. I never could overcome my feelings of outraged surprise and amusement at the faculty members kowtowing to the Greeks; and I always consoled myself with the reflection that in the great busy outside world, the sacred calf would be forgotten.

But, no! Every paper you pick up, every article you see about education, every society column, has its bit to say about the "Greek letter" connections of the man or woman under discussion. Are they being married? Ha! She was a Kappa and he was a Sigma Chi. Are the colleges under discussion? Leave it to the bright-eyed young Mary Jones of the Pi Phis or Henry Smith of the Dekes to speak for the assembled youngsters of the nation.

Maybe this looks like a lot of heat to manifest over something which is of minor importance. Well, it's not of minor importance, Elsie. Anything which has to do with the education of youngsters, along in that "green salad" age that a college deals with, is of major importance.

We have those youngsters in school, among other things, to help them form the right sort of ideals and values. And if the best that a college can do is to send "rush cards" out to a few favored little dears throughout the high schools of the state, and get the little freshies all divided off before they've even seen each other or the university, then God help this democracy.

Yes, I know there are "mixers," and so on, for the great unwashed, well along in the year, after things have started. All the important decisions have been made then. All the goats have been sorted from the sheep.

I've been there. I know all about the great "teas" and assemblages, where you have about as much sense of belonging (in a school of five thousand) as you would have in a mass meeting in Soldier Field. But the close, intimate touch—the mixing in classes, working out the question of whose brains and whose talents would fit best in offices and activities; the really democratic part of college life—what happens to that?

I know how they did at Nebraska U—fenced you off into odd corners; wouldn't let you sit at the tables by the windows because tradition had assigned each sorority a table sacred to them (and you sat in stuffy corners, even if every one of the Greek tables was empty). You weren't to wear a bright High School or society pin of any kind because it would look as if you were infringing upon the vested rights of the Greeks. You weren't to sit near a group of them in class; they might want to reserve seats for their own crowd.

Oh, yes, Elsie; such a "hazing" would have been all right—just a part of the fun—if it had been class doings, and you a green Freshman who had to be "squelched." But when it went on through the four years, emphasizing the big division between the Greeks and the barbs, and you realized that offices, honors, everything worth having, lay in their hands—then, if you had the gumption of an ordinary canary bird, you saw what a really rotten deal it was.

This isn't a case of sour-grapes. My folks were education-loving Scotch. They revered "honors." For their sake, I made Phi Beta Kappa—took the pin, and never put it on. For I felt then, as I feel now, that the whole system was wrong.

It starts a youngster off on the wrong foot; gives him an entirely wrong sense of values. Perhaps a hard-hearted oldster might buck it, but no bewildered youngster can. And so his whole horizon becomes limited and dominated by the almighty dollar and social position, before he is in college a month.

It is an intolerable system. There is no excuse for it in tax-supported public schools. And I'm convinced that one of the most dangerous and hypocritical things in American life is that we boast of being democratic, yet brand our finest young lives by such a stupid, undemocratic, class institution.

The Human Side of the News

The Federal Government Interests Itself In The Suppression of Racketeering—Need of Secret Service.

By EDWIN C. HILL

THE WORD has gone forth from the White House and the war is on against the racketeer. The President orders that no expense be spared, that every resource of the government be employed, while Congress, through a special committee of the Senate, is collecting evidence and is ready for a complete expose of a most vicious and un-American system which is honeycombing the entire country.

It is one of the shortcomings of a democracy that organized lawlessness should have been permitted to sprout up and to mature into such a menace. Loose laws, incompetent and dishonest enforcement, open and secret alliance of crime with political machines—these have nourished the cancer which calls now for the sharp, decisive thrust of the surgeon's knife.

Racketeering is a colorful work. In plain, brutal language it is blackmail and robbery with intent to maim or to kill. Just as we seem to have developed the picturesque term "bandit" to take the place of the real word murderer, so we misname these extortioners and conspirators and tolerate, even glorify them in our fiction and films.

The racketeer of today is the counterpart of the English highwayman who danced on Tyburn Hill. He is no more than the road agent of the Wild West, who kept the vigilantes busy stretching rope. He is kin to the pirates of the Barbary Coast and the one-time Mafia bands of Sicily which it took a dictator, Mussolini, to round up and remove for all time.

Racketeers Invade The Social System

RECENTLY THE District Attorney of New York, in naive astonishment, announced that racketeering was so prevalent in the metropolis that it extended all the way through the social system from the infant's milk to the octogenarian's funeral. Getting down to brass tacks, he meant that an invisible government was solidly entrenched and powerfully at work collecting tribute directly and indirectly from every man, woman and child in the community.

He could have gone farther and deeper and said that this invisible and malicious government is only the hideous outgrowth of the graft and spoils system of machine politics. All this should come out in the public hearings before Senator Copeland's committee. Col. Franklin S. Hutchinson, its counsel, has had the entire staff of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice at his command, and when he has finished and laid the cards on the table for public opinion to read—then we may see the rats of protection scurrying from the sinking ship.

Only the other day a prosecuting official in New York stated baldly that the failure of municipalities to deal with the racketeer was due to the fact that almost invariably wherever one found a racketeer he also found some petty political boss as either the racketeer's friend or his undercover partner. This condition is the reason why Joseph B. Keenan, assistant to Attorney General Cummings, is calling for a Federal detective force such as England's Scotland Yard, and it is more than likely that Congress, in its next session, will create such a force, for if it isn't patent to everyone the Senate investigation will make very obvious the fact that outlawry has been allowed to go so far in our most populous communitnes that the state is unable to protect its merchants and tradespeople.

Aid of Federal Government Needed

THE CAPONE case is an example. Only the power of the federal government was supreme above that of this lord of the underworld. The breaking up of the fish ring in New York is another. For years by intimidation, gangster tactics and personal violence, prices were fixed and trade curtailed. The state and the city could do nothing or would do nothing. But the federal government came through with 80 indictments.

Nothing less than a great Federal Secret Service can stamp out the racketeer. Deprive him of the protection of political rings and he will be, merely, a cringing, cowardly thief. Instead of being on speaking and golfing terms with the police officers and the petty prosecutors and judges, he will have instilled in him the fear which he and his gangs have put into the hearts of honest but unprotected tradespeople.

He will know that an unseen power will be dogging his footsteps, a power much more to be dreaded because it is invisible. These Secret Service men will not be known, their names never revealed. The gangster will never know but that one or two of them may be in his own mob. Money or votes won't be able to buy immunity.

Familiarity breeds contempt. And it is the familiarity of the gangster and mob leader with the present state and municipal forces that has done more than anything to embolden him and raise him to his present estate. A supreme, invisible force such as the Secret Service will put an end to all this. Let us temporize no more. Let us do things.

HER HAPPIEST DAY

By Winifred Black

I saw the little old woman at one of the little tables at the big luncheon the other day.

She was over 90 years of age, and she was straight as a dart. She held her little head, with the old-fashioned bonnet on it, as some queen might hold her crowned grace.

Little she was, and wrinkled with many cares, but in her dim old eyes there was still an eager spark of life.

She is the mother of 20 children, only four of them dead, mind you.

Think of the weddings and the christenings and the engagement parties and the cradle rockings and the arguments and disputes, and the little envies and small ambitions and the good honest love and devotion that that little, wrinkled old woman has known.

She was quietly dressed in the fashion of a by-gone day, but there was nothing shabby about her.

She had a good big umbrella with her, too, a sort of, faded green it was and the handle was taped where it had been broken.

She seemed to think a great deal of that umbrella.

"I'll take care of your umbrella for you, mother," said a gay young man, who seated himself at the table.

The old woman's dim eyes lit with a sudden flair of spirit:

"No, you don't, young man," said she. "That's what a taxi driver told me 20 years ago, and look at what he did to that umbrella."

She laughed aloud.

"There's only one happiest day in the life of any honest woman," she said, "and that's the day the nurse lays her firstborn child in her arms and her husband smiles at her and she smiles back at him, and the baby's wrinkled red face lies against her breast."

Daughters and sons, grandchildren and great-grandchildren she's had, this little old woman.

They've all run together now, the years. She can't remember when it was she took the long voyage to southern seas with her handsome young husband, and often she calls her youngest grandchild by his name and asks him how it is with the ships these days. But out of all the planning and the imagining—there shines to her through the mist of time just one thing—the face of her first born, when the nurse laid the baby in the tender curve of her young arm.

I do hope nothing happens to her precious umbrella on the way home from the party. I'm going to see her about it one of these days. I'd take her a new umbrella, one of the gay ones from Monte Carlo or the Lido—but pshaw, she wouldn't have a thing to do with it.

I think she's rather sensible myself—don't you?
